And whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain other and second mortgage executed and delivered by the aforesaid Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes, his wife, to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, which mortgage bears date the 17th day of November A. D. 1884, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota on the 17th day of November A. D. 1884, at 3:45 o'clock p. m. in book "S" of mortgage deeds, on pages 468, 469 and 470, and whereas said second mortgage was executed to secure the payment of the sum of one thousand dollars with interest from date on the sum of three hundred and fifty dollars at the rate of ten per cent per annum and also to secure the sum of five dollars per month as and for the monthly contribution on five shares of the capital stock of said Association then owned by the said Wenzel E. Newes, said interest and said dues being payable on the first Saturday of each and every month after the date of said second mortgage according to the conditions of a certain bond for the sum of two thousand dollars executed and delivered by the said Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes, to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston and bearing even date of November 16th A. D. 1884, and said second mortgage being upon the same real estate as the mortgage above mentioned.

And whereas it is provided in each of said mortgages herein described, that in case any default should be made in the payment of the said principal sums when due or interest, or any part thereof for the space of six months after the same shall have become due, or in case said shares should be sold for the non payment of dues, then and in such case the whole principal debt should immediately thereupon become due, and whereas default has been made in the payment of said interest and of said monthly dues secured by both of said mortgages for more than six months whereby according to the terms of said mortgages the whole principal debt has become due, and said ten shares of stock have been duly forfeited and sold for non payment of dues, and whereas no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise for the recovery of said debt or any part thereof.

And whereas, there is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice, the sum of nine hundred forty-eight and 05-100 dollars on said first mortgage and the sum of eleven hundred twenty-three and 45-100 dollars on said second mortgage, making in the aggregate the sum of two thousand seventy-one and 50-100 dollars now due.

Now therefore notice is hereby given, that under and by virtue of the powers of sale in said mortgages contained, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the real estate and premises mentioned in each of said mortgages which are situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and described as follows to wit: Lot number thirteen (13,) in block number two (2,) of L. Fletcher's Addition to Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County, State of Minnesota, will be sold by the Sheriff of said County of Polk, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, on Saturday the first day of May A. D. 1886, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on the debt secured by both of said mortgages, together with the sum of fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated March 8th A. D. 1886.

and at least a moderate competence, come to those who follow the teachings of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST. This world-renowned periodical, in addition to its other great features, has now employed the LEADING AMERICAN WRITERS to describe THE RURAL LIVES OF OUR AMERICAN PRESIDENTS, nearly all of whom were reared on farms, or retired to them from active life. DONALD G. MITCHELL, (IKE MARVEL) R. H. STODDARD, JAMES PARTON, JULIAN HAWTHORNE, DR. LYMAN ABBOTT, and others equally eminent are now preparing these supplemental HISTORICAL PAPERS. They are to be accompanied with ENGRAVINGS, 12x18 inches in size, executed at large expense by our first artists, illustrating the Rural Homes and Surroundings of our Farmer Presidents, comprising a MAGNIFICENT PORTFOLIO collection for every house, rich and poor alike. These SPECIAL PAPERS and SPECIAL ENGRAVINGS, will be of absorbing interest to all interested in country life, and likewise constitute an important ACQUISITION to the historical knowledge of the country.

R. H. Stoddard writes: "I am sure they will be popular in a literary sense, and equally sure they will be of great value to the boys of this country, who have a right to look forward to becoming our future rulers." Donald G. Mitchell: "I write about Washington's farming, in respect to which I have some copies of unpublished letters." Lyman Abbott: "It is an admirable design, showing the close connection of our Farmer Presidents with the soil." Julian Hawthorne: "An attractive scheme. I shall be glad to have a hand in it." James Parton: "One of my articles will be ready in three weeks."

Every subscriber to the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST for 1886 is entitled to these descriptions and engravings of the Rural Lives of our Presidents, forwarded without additional cost with the numbers of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST, as they appear; or specially executed on heavy, highly finished paper, and forwarded with the additional trifling cost for packing and postage. CROOKSTON, MINN., MARCH 11.

Mr. S. Collins has gone below after more cows and horses.

Geo. Macdonell has rented the house recently vacated by D. Buchanan, on Fletcher St.

Register Smith and family are now "at home" in their new residence in this city. We bid them a hearty welcome to Crookston society.

Mr. J. A. Bemis, formerly of the Lake Park Hotel, has assumed control of the Commercial, Mr. Carroll retiring. Mr. B. is said to be an excellent hotel man.

H. G. Gallasch has returned to duty, from a pleasant visit with friends in the old home. The trip has done him worlds of good—he looks quite handsome now.

There will be a Memorial Service on Sunday evening the 14th, at the Methodist Church in honor of John B. Gough, the great temperance lecturer, whose loss we all mourn.

If you go to Herb's Branch and buy 500 shot guns, you get a chance at a good A No. 1 cigar—or vice versa.

Dr. M. VanDyke and G. W. Lewis have purchased an interest in E. C. Davis' patent railroad tie. Mr. Davis has gone east to attend to business in the interest of said tie.

Herb has a No. 1 shot gun to give away to smokers.

The Japanese tea, given by the ladies of the Episcopal church, last Wednesday evening, was a grand affair, well patronized and highly enjoyed. The Celestials say they were never better received than in Crookston and may decide to stay and grow up with the country.

Go and see Herb when you want a cheap smoke and get a chance at that shot gun all the same.

A minstrel show called "Do Judge's minstrels," is advertised to appear at the opera house to-morrow evening, March 12th. If this DeJudge is the same one who ran a snap variety show on Robert Street and later a disreputable den over Warninger's saloon, the citizens of this berg ought to give him a wide berth for it is liable to be a dead give away. If he is not the same one he is unfortunate in his name.

The farmer's meeting at Moorhead last week was well attended and very interesting. The railroad commissioners were there and Gen. Baker stated that the board had recommended a large reduction in the freight rates and that Mr. Hill would recommend the same to the board of directors. We trust that the reduction will be made. The freight on wheat to Minneapolis or Duluth would then not exceed ten cents per bushel.

Rev. W. F. Davis of Chelsea, Mass. would like to meet the Christain workers of Crookston of all the different churches on Friday evening the 19th inst., at half past seven at the Reading Room. He comes as a Christain worker under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. and will give a gospel temperance lecture in the Congregational Church, Sunday evening the 21st. He will also hold gospel services in the Reading Room, Sunday afternoon at half past three. Young men especially invited, to be present.

Every article in my store, without any reserve whatever, will go at a great discount this month. C. H. Saake, Jeweler.

Sheriff Zwickey has for some time been on the still-hunt for a man wanted in Bufalo, N. Y., for alleged embezzlement. Last week being warned by "a dream" that he would find his man in the land of "Chronicles" (yelept Woodside) he departed hence for that better country. Upon arrival he found his bird had lit out for Crookston on the stage. Hastily following he overtook and arrested his man and brought him to Crookston where he provided for his safety until he could get ready to take him to St. Paul, to deliver him to the New York officers. It is said that the man has a wife in New York State and he was recently married to a Woodside lady.

You can buy yourself a watch at C. H. Saake's jewelry store cheaper than any other place in the city.

W. G. Lytle, Frank Lytle, Frank Bivins, and E. E. Perry took a trip up to Bailey's lumber camp last week and extended it to Red Lake. They report a good time, Indians all quiet and likely to remain so, as long as they can be petted in the way they are now. Somebody put up a fine job on the innocent Thirteen Towns man, by telling him that our Mr. Perry wore the "Rev." as an every day handle. Why, bless your honest soul Kaiser, can't you tell a granger when you see him? He is a healthy looking preacher, now, don't you think so? Why, there has never been a whisper before off color, except that the boys talk of running him for the granger candidate for the Legislature, and we can assure you, Al, that Perry don't know a breath about that as yet. No sir! HE IS AN HONEST FARMER!

The masquerade ball on Tuesday evening, was fairly well attended and a good time.

N. J. Small was elected mayor of Brainerd over C. B. Sleeper, by a small majority, as it were.

The sale at Terry & Collins' barn on Saturday was well attended and a considerable property was sold.

The Odd Fellows dance, on Friday evening of last week, was a financial success and an enjoyable season.

The gang played the Crookston boys for a lot of suckers and got left. They did not get away with more than $150 or $200.

It is reported that the Manitoba surveyors will take the field to-morrow and make the first survey for the Crookston and Duluth road.

J. T. Brown, the Fertile cheeseman, was up on Saturday to attend the sale at Terry & Collins' stables. He will cheese it numerously next season.

Mr. J. W. Slee has returned from below where he had been for treatment for his eyes. He has lost the sight in one of them but the other is sound.

Fred Stauff came in on Tuesday from the north. Max says that he sold Fred that Holstein pup for $100. We have heard Fred say that "wheat raising" don't pay.

Charlie Seely is still on deck and ready to bet on Carruth or set up the liquid refreshments on the shortest possible notice. He goes off at the drop of the hat.

Dr. P. Beaupre, has disposed of his interest in Gentilly and will open an office in this city. The doctor is one of the oldest inhabitants here, having come in an early day, and as such he needs no introduction.

Henry Steege came near losing one of his mares on Monday night. The animal got into her manger in such a way that she could not be got out before the manger was torn down. It was a close call and in a short time Steege would have had a dead horse.

The race on Friday night between Carruth and Bromley, was a close contest. Bromley took the lead on the start and kept it for two or three miles, when Carruth passed him, but only for a round or so. On the fifth mile Carruth again passed and held the lead to the close.

N. F. Reynolds and family have gone to Chillicothe, Mo., to engage in his old business, books and stationery. He has been a resident of Polk County about six years and was one of our best farmers. We shall be sorry to part with him but wish him abundant success in his new venture.

E. D. Childs had his Norman-Messenger, four year old colt hitched up and driving about the streets last week. The animal is a good one and is a credit to his owner and the county. The effects of all this good stock, lately imported, will be long felt for good in this county.

For several days the work of putting in a new front and shelving the store just one door south of VanDyke & Co's. has been going on and it was rumored that a gentleman from Winona had rented it for a general store. It now looks as though Charley Chiniquy had designs upon that store, as he is pretty numerous about it. We sincerely trust that this may be the size of it.

The second annual convention of the Polk County Sunday School Association will be held in the Presbyterian church, in this city, commencing on Tuesday evening, March 16th, and continuing through Wednesday, the 17th. An interesting program has been prepared, and it is hoped that all who feel an interest in Sunday school work will find time to attend. Free entertainment will be furnished those coming from a distance.

There are those who believe that the man called "Gamble" is no other than Skinner, the champion skater of the world, and it is not impossible that such may be the case. Be that as it may, the fact that Carruth, with the small amount of experience that he has had, and his honest way of skating, is as good a skater, speaks volumes for his prowess and indicates what he could do with a little more practice. "Freeman," or "Gamble," or "Skinner," or whoever he may be, shows that he is afraid of Carruth as it is, or he would not have attempted any of his little tricks of the trade in order to do him up, as he did on Saturday evening. If Carruth's skating was not phenomenal there would have been no necessity for a resort to gambling devices to down him, but this whole business only shows to our mind that this jockey racing is poor business. So far Carruth has never got entangled, and we trust that he never will.

Explanation.

MR. EDITOR.—Since the race I was referee in Saturday evening, it has been circulated that I had money bet on Mr. Gamble and was under obligations to certain traveling men. I wish to say that I had not one dollar on the race, and will give any person one hundred dollars to point out a single bet that I made or had any person make for me in any way. I made my decision on what I thought was true and honest, and I know nothing at all about any sharp game being practiced.

Yours Truly,
GEO. G. MACDONELL.

A Card of Thanks.

CROOKSTON, March 8th, 1886.

EDITOR POLK COUNTY JOURNAL.

Dear Sir:—I desire through your paper to explain my position in the Bromley-Carruth race, which was skated in this city Friday evening last. Myself and the others, who have been connected with this affair attended the races at Minneapolis, where, although Carruth was victorious in every race he was unable owing to the small attendance to make enough money to pay his expenses. Knowing this, Crocker suggested that if we desired to give Carruth a benefit he would bring both of his men up to Crookston, and would be willing to divide the receipts equally with him; he intends to quit skating and wants to do it with as good a record as possible. Now, I would just as soon let him win both of those races. We were all present when Crocker said this and could see no harm in it, as we were satisfied that Crookston people would back Carruth to a man after the record he had made in Minneapolis, after these arrangements were completed Crocker suggested that we say nothing about that, for, said he, if people know that the race is only for the gate receipts, they will not take much interest in it. People always turn out better where they think there is a good deal of money up on a race. Now let us arrange it in this way. A couple of days after you arrive home I will challenge Carruth to skate two races on your rink and will tell him I have placed a forfeit in your hands. In this way we can advertise the race and bring out a big crowd. This we thought would be all right, and suggested that an agreement be drawn up and signed, and the following agreement was drawn up:

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 26th, 1886.

It is agreed that the undersigned, Frank L. Crocker, party of the first part, and D. Jacobus, party of the second part, that the party of first part is to bring R. C. Bromley to Crookston to skate a five mile race with E. C. Carruth on the Queen City Rink, on Friday evening March 5th, 1886, and L. Jay Gamble to skate a ten mile race, at the same rink, on Saturday evening, March 6th, Carruth to win both races. It is further agreed in consideration of the above that the party of the second part allow the party of the first part one-half of the gross receipts of both the Friday and Saturday evenings entertainments above mentioned.

FRANK L. CROCKER.
DELOS JACOBUS.

Two copies were made and Crocker and myself signed them both. After the first race he signified his intention of breaking this agreement and skating the race on its merits. This we were glad to do, but after we had bet our money on Carruth he came and claimed his half of the gate receipts the same as if he had lived up to the agreement. This we refused to give him, and he and the gang of gamblers who were with him began to make all the false statements they could think of which would in any way place us in a bad light before the people of Crookston, and there is no doubt but to a certain extent they have succeeded. The facts as stated above, however, are the whole truth and nothing but the truth. I had no more intention of defrauding anyone when I signed that contract than I did of flying. I did it simply as a benefit for Jud and for no other reason. Jud himself knew nothing at all about it until after the race was skated and if there is any blame attached to the business he does not come in for a share of it.

D. JACOBUS.

As there has been a great deal of excitement, and much hard feeling engendered over the result of Saturday evening's race THE JOURNAL has given a great deal of time, trying to get at the true inwardness of the thing and arrives at this conclusion: "That the Crocker clique came here with the avowed intentions to down the city for any amount possible, and to do it in any way possible, by fair means or foul. This seems plain by the result, as it is said that they had their men spotted whom they intended to pluck and they came prepared to do their business by fair means or foul. That they did not do it as fully as they intended we believe is due to the influence of D. Jacobus, who seeing their little game in time, was enabled to head it off. "Jake" and Herb and the others who were the most instrumental in getting up the race have been severely criticised, charged with being in collusion with the gang from Minneapolis, but as far as we are able yet to learn we believe with injustice as their explanation seems perfectly reasonable and more than all that, we can not find a single case wherein they have received a single dollar on bets against Carruth. They knew beforehand that Carruth was to win (or thought they did) and they claim that they made no agreement for a race this week, as Crocker said they did. Now, if they had had an understanding with Crocker, the time for them to make their money was on Friday and Saturday nights. Crocker himself threw off on the arrangement on Saturday and then tried to inquire the boys (who he tried first to make his stool pigeons) by stating that they were in the ring. If they had done the thing, they would be worthy of the severest condemnation, but we believe they did not, the only mistake they made was in having anything to do with the gambling ring at all. Elsewhere we give Jacobus' version of the affair and the original and only contract in the matter.

Mortgage Sale.

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Wenzel E. Newes, and Augusta M. Newes, his wife, mortgagors, to the Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, a corporation duly organized and acting under the laws of the State of Minnesota, mortgagee, which mortgage bears date the 9th day of November A. D. 1883, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 8th day of January A. D. 1884, at 11:20 o'clock a. m., in book "P" of mortgage deeds on pages 192, 193 and 194, and whereas said mortgage was executed to secure the payment of the sum of one thousand dollars with interest from date on the sum of four hundred and fifty dollars, at the rate of ten per cent per annum, and also to secure the sum of five dollars per month as and for the monthly contribution on five shares of the capital stock of said Association then owned by the said Wenzel E. Newes, said interest and said dues being payable on the first Saturday of each and every month after the date of said mortgage according to the conditions of a certain bond for the sum of two thousand dollars executed and delivered by the said Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, and bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain other and second mortgage executed and delivered by the aforesaid Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes, his wife, to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, which mortgage bears date the 17th day of November A. D. 1884, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota on the 17th day of November A. D. 1884, at 3:45 o'clock p. m. in book "S" of mortgage deeds, on pages 468, 469 and 470, and whereas said second mortgage was executed to secure the payment of the sum of one thousand dollars with interest from date on the sum of three hundred and fifty dollars at the rate of ten per cent per annum and also to secure the sum of five dollars per month as and for the monthly contribution on five shares of the capital stock of said Association then owned by the said Wenzel E. Newes, said interest and said dues being payable on the first Saturday of each and every month after the date of said second mortgage according to the conditions of a certain bond for the sum of two thousand dollars executed and delivered by the said Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes, to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston and bearing even date of November 16th A. D. 1884, and said second mortgage being upon the same real estate as the mortgage above mentioned.

And whereas it is provided in each of said mortgages herein described, that in case any default should be made in the payment of the said principal sums when due or interest, or any part thereof for the space of six months after the same shall have become due, or in case said shares should be sold for the non payment of dues, then and in such case the whole principal debt should immediately thereupon become due, and whereas default has been made in the payment of said interest and of said monthly dues secured by both of said mortgages for more than six months whereby according to the terms of said mortgages the whole principal debt has become due, and said ten shares of stock have been duly forfeited and sold for non payment of dues, and whereas no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise for the recovery of said debt or any part thereof.

And whereas, there is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice, the sum of nine hundred forty-eight and 05-100 dollars on said first mortgage and the sum of eleven hundred twenty-three and 45-100 dollars on said second mortgage, making in the aggregate the sum of two thousand seventy-one and 50-100 dollars now due.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that under and by virtue of the powers of sale in said mortgages contained, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the real estate and premises mentioned in each of said mortgages which are situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and described as follows to wit: Lot number thirteen (13) in block number two (2) of L. Fletcher's Addition to Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County, State of Minnesota, will be sold by the Sheriff of said County of Polk, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, on Saturday the first day of May A. D. 1886, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on the debt secured by both of said mortgages, together with the sum of fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated March 8th A. D. 1886.

and at least a moderate competence, come to those who follow the teachings of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST. This world-renowned periodical, in addition to its other great features, has now employed the LEADING AMERICAN WRITERS to describe THE RURAL LIVES OF OUR AMERICAN PRESIDENTS, nearly all of whom were reared on farms, or retired to them from active life. DONALD G. MITCHELL, (IKE MARVEL) R. H. STODDARD, JAMES PARTON, JULIAN HAWTHORNE, DR. LYMAN ABBOTT, and others equally eminent are now preparing these supplemental HISTORICAL PAPERS. They are to be accompanied with ENGRAVINGS, 12x18 inches in size, executed at large expense by our first artists, illustrating the Rural Homes and Surroundings of our Farmer Presidents, comprising a MAGNIFICENT PORTFOLIO collection for every house, rich and poor alike. These SPECIAL PAPERS and SPECIAL ENGRAVINGS, will be of absorbing interest to all interested in country life, and likewise constitute an important ACQUISITION to the historical knowledge of the country.

R. H. Stoddard writes: "I am sure they will be popular in a literary sense, and equally sure they will be of great value to the boys of this country, who have a right to look forward to becoming our future rulers." Donald G. Mitchell: "I write about Washington's farming, in respect to which I have some copies of unpublished letters." Lyman Abbott: "It is an admirable design, showing the close connection of our Farmer Presidents with the soil." Julian Hawthorne: "An attractive scheme. I shall be glad to have a hand in it." James Parton: "One of my articles will be ready in three weeks."

Every subscriber to the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST for 1886 is entitled to these descriptions and engravings of the Rural Lives of our Presidents, forwarded without additional cost with the numbers of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST, as they appear; or specially executed on heavy, highly finished paper, and forwarded with the additional trifling cost for packing and postage. Single Subscription, $1.50; Ten Subscriptions, $1 each.

The St. Paul Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway Company v. s. Charles W. Greenhalgh et. al. The same vs. Charles Wenzel. Opinion:

These cases are so nearly alike that they can be considered together. The complainant claims to be the equitable owner of certain lands, the legal title of which is in defendants, and files these bills to enforce such claim. Both tracts lie along the St. Vincent extension of complainant's railway and north of the indemnity limits of the Northern Pacific Railroad. The definite location of this line was made in 1871, and a man thereof filed with the secretary of the interior, and approved Dec. 20, 1871. The Greenhalgh land is within ten miles and the Wenzel tract within six miles of the line. The road was built past the Greenhalgh land in November, 1872, and finished to St. Vincent by November 1878. After the filing of the map of the definite location, and on Feb. 15, 1872, the secretary of the interior withdrew from sale or other disposal the odd-numbered sections within 20 miles, on June 18, 1872, the secretary directed the vacation of the order of withdrawal, notice of which was recieved at the local land office on July 5, 1872. This order of vacation was itself revoked on Sept. 4, 1872. On June 26, 1872, Greenhalgh settled on the land in question in his case, subsequently filed and proved up his claim, and received a patent. Wenzel settled upon his claim June 2, 1884. In the outset the defendants challenge the validity of complainant's grant in this upper part of St. Vincent, and upon three grounds: First that this was Indian land in 1857, and therefore never subject to the grant; second, the change authorized by the act of '71 was not in accord with the legislation of Minnesota; and third, the line of definite location was not within the scope of the act. None of the reasons are sufficient. First, the Indian title was extinguished by treaty May 5, 1864; second the case of Nash vs. Sullivan, 29 Minn., 206, is conclusive as to the harmony between the act of congress and the state legislation; third, any question that might otherwise exist as to the line of definite locasion being within the scope of the congressional grant, is put at rest by act of congress of March 3, 1873. This far the way is clear. It is claimed generally that prior to any final vesting of title in complainant to these lands, and, while the control and disposal of them remained with Congress, that body exempted them from the operation of complainant's grant, and that the state took similar action. The complainant took nothing by the withdrawal. A withdrawal passes no title. It only prevents other titles from accruing. A definite location of the road identifies the tracts within the place limits, and a title thereto passes by relation as of the state of the grant subject to defeasance upon failure to perform the conditions of the grant within the lines limited. The title to indemnity lands passes only upon selection. Wenzel's land was within the place limits, Greehalgh's not. For since the decisions in St. Paul Railroad Company vs. Winona Railroad Company, 112 U. S., 730, it must be considered settled that the grant of lands in place was limited to six sections, and that the additional four sections were simply a grant by quantity. The selection of the Greenhalgh land was made by the Company, on March 18, 1880, long after the acts referred to and Greenhalgh's entry. Until that time the company had no pretense of title, and all that it can claim is that under the existing laws and withdrawal, no one else could acquire any interest taken prior thereto. As to Wenzel's tract, the definite location operated to transfer, as the date of grant, the title to the company, subject to forfeiture on failure to build the road within the time limited. After such failure, the grantor had power to forfeit the grant and retake the land. Having power to forfeit the entire grant absolutely, it had the lesser power of forfeiting a part and conditionally. The act of June 22, 1874, extends the time for the completion of the road to March 8, 1876, on the condition that all legal rights of actual settlers who have in good faith entered upon and resided upon the said lands prior to the passage of the act, shall be saved and secured to them. The act also contains other important conditions which the railroad company failed to comply with. The act also provided that "upon the acceptance of the provisions of this act by the acceptance of the provisions of this act by the said company, it shall be deemed by the governor of this state as a relinquishment by said company of all such lands now occupied by actual settlers." No acceptance as above provided was ever made by the company. The act of June 1874 may be regarded as a proposition calling for an acceptance, and no acceptance being given, wholly without force. The act of March 1877, may be subject to a like criticism and to the further criticism of an implied repeal by the act of March, 1878. From the force and effect of the statutes above mentioned in the opinion, I will state some of the propositions based on them collectively. First. All were passed after the time given for the completion of the road, when there had been a nonperformance of the conditions of the grant, and when therefore there existed the right of absolute and total forfeiture by the grantor, the United States, and of resumption and transfer by the state to another beneficiary. Second—Nothing can be plainer than that both congress and the state legislature intended to give to actual bona fide settlers prior to the railroad company. Third—All legislative land grants are to be regarded not merely as contracts but also as laws. As such they are subject to the same rules of interpretation that govern other laws, and a primary rule is that the intent of the legislature is to be sought, and when ascertained it controls. The technical rules which govern the interpretation of private contracts must yield to the single inquiry of the intent of the one party, the legislature. Fourth—The legal title is in the defendants. Complainant rests upon its alleged equitable rights. There is no equity in striking down a legal title, when so to do involves a disregard of the manifest intent of the original owner, grantor of such title. Decrees will be entered in favor of the defendants, dismissing the bills at costs of complainant.

MR. POLK COUNTY JOURNAL:—We would like to poke you just a bit, and while in your issue of February 11th, you invite us to "come in out of the wet," we would say to you Crookston editors, and all others that we know and some that we don't know, that you had better come in out of the cold! Whew! Cold is hardly a name for it, when the spirit thermometer freezes up. You will have to build longer thermometers or let up on the weather. But now for a little word of counsel from a "New Yorker," of another stripe from that Moffat (he lives in "Chipnockie," I don't wonder much at his report. But, if he had lived a little lower down the Susquehanna, among the CIVILIZED of Chenango county, may be he would have another story to tell.) The snow banks have been very small to those of your early recollection of "Toad Hollow" and smaller than many times in my own remembrance. But snow drifts (O my!!) Or no snow drifts, that's not the question. If it had not have been for the State of New York, I sort o' wonder what Minnesota would have done for the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL? And, I guess it must be a trifle wet in that region for things "out in the wet" sometimes swell up, and I understand that some of your inhabitants of Crookston have grown to fair sized proportions since they have resided in your fair city. Take for instance that school superintendent, and his better half, that Wm. Moffat came to see, and by the way, I would like to take a peep at them some Saturday night, and stay all the week. (You need not tell them who sent you this scrawl.) What I want you "come in out of the wet fellows" to remember is, that the State of New York grew you up to be somebody, and started you out pretty well, and Minnesota may well be proud of her New York sons, and daughters too, for they are there as well. "Remember the rock from whence you were hewn," and don't forget that morally and physically, this grand Empire State sent out her sons and daughters with mental culture adapted to build up towns and villages and cities and even to form states all along our western frontiers, and even to make Minnesota, so near the north pole, what it is. It makes me s-h-i-v-e-r-r to think of it! Mr. Editor, if V. D. Carruth and wife, or any other of my early friends, should inquire after my welfare, tell them that the left-handed writer of this still cherishes in memory a kindly thought of some of them, and hopes that "the friendship here in time begun, may be lasting in that world of light and growing still." If this should find a place in your paper, and any other issue should clandestinely reach me and my own native state need my defense, I shall be there to bring to your pure minds a remembrance of where you first saw daylight and where your bringing up started from, if you have forgotten. But all on ye'z, up in Minnesota, and especially in Crookston, and ye editor, and V. D. C. and family in particular, "come in out of the cold."

GUESS WHO.

The first line of the above led us to think we had aroused the N. Y. S. Militia, who desired to "poke" us with their pine bayonet, but a careful perusal revealing nothing very militia-ous we conclude that it must be some real estate man, who is afraid that the fame of our vigorous young state will depopulate N. Y. and bust him up in business. One thing is very evident, that he has never been here to see for himself, for if he had he would now be doing just what Moffat is, i. e. looking for a chance to invest in Minnesota dirt, with a view of making one more New York boy "gone estray." We know that many of our citizens, when in a state of nature, were residents of New York State, but as soon as their eyes were opened to the truth, they "sought a better country;" became converted and are among the best citizens of this happy land. (Moffat was on the anxious seat before he left New York. He came out bright and shining, and does not intend to back-slide.) We pity the writer of the above communication, because we believe that he has spent many years in trying to persuade others to lead a better life and now, in his blindness advises them to keep right on in the error of their ways, when, in the light of the examples he has had he could better be pointing out the way to the better country and thousands would rise up to call him blessed. However, as a faithful public servant, THE JOURNAL must not let up by day nor night to urge men to come to this better country—the better the men the more we want to see 'em happy. So again we repeat, to "guess who" and all other desirable citizens, by all means "come in out of the wet."

The Stock Breeder.

SWINE.

Mirror and Farmer.

At this time, while the attention of farmers is turned to the low price of dairy products and the prospect of a rise in wool, there is danger that the pig will be forgotten, or at least neglected, under the impression that he is nothing but a pig any way and can take care of himself. But if every farmer could be made to realize the full importance of the pig in the economy of his operations, there would be a change of scenery around many a back yard and rickety old shed. The pig is always salable for cash at some price, and this fact causes many brokers and jockeys to keep on hand a lot of half starved, shivering shotes for sale to farmers and others who want them to feed. The pig will endure and recover from a more severe course of starvation than any other animal on the farm, and this good quality is often turned against him, and he is made to suffer because he will live through it. Men who have warm stalls for their cattle and horses, and dry pens for their sheep, will oblige their pigs to crawl into a pile of litter wet with their own filth, so that when the warmth of the body thaws it, they are steaming on one side and covered with frost on the otrher, and when they come out to eat they must wade through a snow drift and cover their sides with a new source of misery. These may be extreme cases, but they are more common than they should be, and it is time this course of treatment was abandoned. The pigs will pay for good care and treatment as well as any animal, and much quicker than toe most, and all that is added to them fa sise or flesh has a ready market value and, aside from the consdeiration of crtielty, there is every inducement to give the pig good care and treatment.

Farmers often do well by taking shotes from the city stables and butcher's pens, but it is safe and more profitable for a farmer who wants to feed five or six more pigs in a year, to raise them himself. If the sow is tame and properly handled, and the pen and bedding suitably arranged, there is little risk or trouble in raising a litter of pded Use any of the improved breeds pigs suit your fancy, and there is slihat danger of making a mistake. If pigs happen to be cheap when they are big enough to sell, hold them for a little there is a call for shotes nearly every spring and fall, and they can be made to pay their board if they are supplied with absorbents. Get ready now and raise some pigs in the spring.

A Farmer, a Bushel of Corn and Two Drinks.

Toledo Blade.

Do you see that man over there? Well, he's a farmer. There he goes with a friend; they're going to get a drink. The farmer will pay for it. Now, let me see. That man will sweat two mortal hours next spring to plow enough ground to raise one bushel of corn. That bushel of corn he will sell for thirty cents. He is going in there now to spend the thirty cents for two drinks. Therefore, the farmer and corn have parted. Now, let me tell you what becomes of the corn. A bushel of corn makes seventeen quarts of whiskey—four and-a-quarter gallons. The distillery gets its first profit—40 cts. a gallon. There you are; $2 for a bushel of corn. Now the government comes in, 90 cents a gallon—$3.85 added to the $2 makes $5.85. That brings the product of the bushel of corn down to the jobber and the wholesaler and finally, by several stages, to the retailer. By the time it reaches the latter the bushel of corn or its product of four and a-quarter gallons has been reduced one-half, which means eight and a half gallons. There are sixty drinks to the gallon—that is the average—eight and a half gallons means 270 drinks at 15 cents each—there we have $46.35 as the consumer's price for a bushel of corn, which the farmer raises and sells for thirty cents. Who says there is not industry in this country? But the farmer we saw just now spent his whole bushel of corn in the price of two drinks, and the people who do not till the soil got away with $46.35.

The church of to-day, much more the church of the future must take to its heart the duty of combining and massing its forces against that gigantic atrocity of Christian civilization that mothers nine-tenths of the woes and sorrows that blight and curse our modern age, the traffic in intoxicants which hides its deformity under forms of law. Are we reduced to the shame of admitting that a civilization that has grown up around our altars is impotent to cure the evil? How can we go to the heathen with this cancer of worse than heathen infamy festering in our own bosom? Our church from the first has borne testimony against it, but we must renew our protest with louder and more solemn emphasis until our land is rescued. If ever the pulpit had the right, the duty to flame with unsparing rebuke, it is here. If ever there was a cause which deserves to unite philanthropy and patriotism with piety in restless endeavor, it is this.—[Bishop Foster of M. E. Church.

It is in vain that every engine is set to work that philanthropy can devise, when those whom we seek to benefit are habitually tampering with their faculties of reason and will,—soaking their brains with beer, or inflaming them with ardent spirits. The struggle of the school, the library, and the church all united against the beer-house and gin-palace, is but one development of the war between heaven and hell. —[Charles Buxton, M. P., at one time England's greatest brewer.

A Catholic legend says that the devil gave a hermit the choice of three great vices, one of which was drunkenness. The hermit chose this as being the least sinful; he became drunk, and then he committed the other two.—[Rev. Wm. Reid.

No statistics are needed to assure you that temperance reform lies at the bottom of all further political, social and religious progress. Drink is the curse of the country. It ruins the fortunes, it injuries the health, it destroyes the lives of one in twenty of our population, and anything which can be done to diminish this terrible sacrifice of human life and human happiness is well worthy of all the attention and study we can give it.....The agitation will go on without us if not with us. If we are silent, the very stones would cry out. If there is in the whole of this drink business any single encouraging feature, it is to be found in the growing impatience of the people at the burden which they are forced to bear, and their growing indignation and sense of the shame and disgrace it imposes upon them.]—Joseph Chamberlain, M. P., President of the London Board of Trade and Chairman of National Educational League of England.

Judges are weary with calling attention to drink as the principal cause of crime, but I cannot refrain from saying that if they could make England sober, they would shut up nine-tenths of the prisons.—[Lord Chief Justice Coleridge of England.

An experience of more than twenty years of judicial life has taught me that more than seven-eights of the crimes committed in this country—which involve personal violence—were traceable to the use of intoxicating liquors—that of all the causes of sin and misery, of pauperism and wretchedness, intoxicating liquor stands forth the unapproachable chief—Noah Davis, Chief Justice of the New York Supreme Court.

What makes these slums [of London] so horrible? I answer with certainty, and with the confidence of one who knows—drink! I tell the nation with conviction founded on experience that there will be no remedy until you save these outcasts from the temptation of drink. Leave the drink and you might build them palaces in vain. Leave the drink, and before the year is over your palaces would be reeking with dirt and squalor, with infamy and crime. —Canon Farrar.

The Burmese are "catching on" to some of our ideas of civilization. Lately in Burmah licenses have been granted for highway robbery. This strikes the New York Tribune as very shocking indeed. The Tribune however, takes kindly to the idea of licensing the dram shop which robs, not the rich, but the poorest and most needy of their hard-earned money, which ought to go over the counters of honest tradesmen for the necessaries of life. If like the licensed Burmese highway-robber, they then left their victim to go on his way with a clear brain, a clean conscience and good health, he could earn more money and it would not be so bad. Such is not the case. The licensed dram shop robber of our Christian country, not only robs its victim of his money but the subtle and devilish poison peddled over the bar destroys his manhood, wrecks his morals, makes him a dangerous maniac or a babbling fool—a diseased, loathsome, mockery of the man he was when he first became a patron of the legalized robber that disgraces American civilization. —[State Sentinel.

Every day's experience tends more and more to confirm me in the opinion that the temperance cause lies at the foundation of all social and political reform.—[Richard Cobden.

Every benevolent institution utters the same complaint. Strong drink—by whatever name the demon is styled, in whatever way it presents itself—this prevents our success. Remove this one obstacle, and our cause will be onward, and our labors will be blessed.—[John Bright.

POULTRY NOTES.

Minneapolis Tribune.

Let the laying hens run at will in the barn yard. They find grass seeds, partially digested grain, etc., and so require less feeding. If you expect eggs this cold weather, don't forget to give them a hot mash in the morning. Keep a big iron pot hidden under the kitchen table, and into it throw parings all kinds, all sorts of table refuse, and fill up with small potatoes. Cook until very soft and keep it on the back of the range all night, in order to have it warm in the morning. Before feeding, mash all well, and stir in bran, meal or middlings.

Although the best morning meal is one composed of soft food, warm, and of variety, yet it should not be fed in a manner so as to allow the hens to eat their fill. The better plan is to give them only a small quantity as a stimulant, when just coming off the roosts, the remainder of the meal to consist of grain, for which the hens should be made to hunt.

Too much meat, especially if raw, will hurt the fowls, but they need a moderate supply of it in winter, when they cannot forage upon the insects of the fields.

The droppings of the hens should be occasionally removed; they should not be allowed to accumulate. The floors should be covered with loam or sand.

J. S. Durant, of Lower Cabot, Vt., writes that during the past year 70 Brown Leghorn hens which he kept laid 11,963 eggs.

Saving The Cost of Horseshoes.

Several members of the Cortland County Farmers' club report favorable experience with unshod horses. One whose forefeet had become badly contracted has been barefoot over a year, and now drives nicely, has no difficulty in drawing loads into the barn and does not limp so bad on the ice as might be expected. Mr. Rawley took off shoes from a horse for a year and a half, as his feet were in a bad condition, and now he has entirely recovered." Mr. Blodgett observed in Illinois that horses never shod travel all day on the road with no apparent inconvenience. The advice was given that when unshod hoofs get too long, set the foot on the plank and cut off at the toe, using a chisel and cutting from the top side. This is better than paring. Mr. Wood's recent book was quoted against shoeing or cutting the frog. Mr. Shearer's horses have sharp toe calks, both summer and winter. A team will handle a mowing machine much easier. More horses are strained by slipping than any other way.—New York Tribune.

These cases are so nearly alike that they can be considered together. The complainant claims to be the equitable owner of certain lands, the legal title of which is in defendants, and files these bills to enforce such claim. Both tracts lie along the St. Vincent extension of complainant's railway and north of the indemnity limits of the Northern Pacific Railroad. The definite location of this line was made in 1871, and a map thereof filed with the secretary of the interior, and approved Dec. 20, 1871. The Greenhalgh land is within ten miles and the Wenzel tract within six miles of the line. The road was built past the Greenhalgh land in November, 1872, and finished to St. Vincent by November 1878. After the filing of the map of the definite location, and on Feb. 15, 1872, the secretary of the interior withdrew from sale or other disposal the odd-numbered sections within 20 miles, on June 18, 1872, the secretary directed the vacation of the order of withdrawal, notice of which was recieved at the local land office on July 5, 1872. This order of vacation was itself revoked on Sept. 4, 1872. On June 26, 1872, Greenhalgh settled on the land in question in his case, subsequently filed and proved up his claim, and received a patent. Wenzel settled upon his claim June 2, 1884. In the outset the defendants challenge the validity of complainant's grant in this upper part of St. Vincent, and upon three grounds: First that this was Indian land in 1857, and therefore never subject to the grant; second, the change authorized by the act of '71 was not in accord with the legislation of Minnesota; and third, the line of definite location was not within the scope of the act. None of the reasons are sufficient. First, the Indian title was extinguished by treaty May 5, 1864; second the case of Nash vs. Sullivan, 29 Minn., 206, is conclusive as to the harmony between the act of congress and the state legislation; third, any question that might otherwise exist as to the line of definite locasion being within the scope of the congressional grant, is put at rest by act of congress of March 3, 1873. This far the way is clear. It is claimed generally that prior to any final vesting of title in complainant to these lands, and, while the control and disposal of them remained with Congress, that body exempted them from the operation of complainant's grant, and that the state took similar action. The complainant took nothing by the withdrawal. A withdrawal passes no title. It only prevents other titles from accruing. A definite location of the road identifies the tracts within the place limits, and a title thereto passes by relation as of the state of the grant subject to defeasance upon failure to perform the conditions of the grant within the lines limited. The title to indemnity lands passes only upon selection. Wenzel's land was within the place limits, Greehalgh's not. For since the decisions in St. Paul Railroad Company vs. Winona Railroad Company, 112 U. S., 780, it must be considered settled that the grant of lands in place was limited to six sections, and that the additional four sections were simply a grant by quantity. The selection of the Greenhalgh land was made by the Company on March 18, 1880, long after the acts referred to and Greenhalgh's entry. Until that time the company had no pretense of title, and all that it can claim is that under the existing laws and withdrawal, no one else could acquire any interest taken prior thereto. As to Wenzel's tract, the definite location operated to transfer, as the date of grant, the title to the company, subject to forfeiture on failure to build the road within the time limited. After such failure, the grantor had power to forfeit the grant and retake the land. Having power to forfeit the entire grant absolutely, it had the lesser power of forfeiting a part and conditionally. The act of June 22, 1874, extends the time for the completion of the road to March 3, 1876, on the condition that all legal rights of actual settlers who have in good faith entered upon and resided upon the said lands prior to the passage of the act shall be saved and secured to them. The act also contains other important conditions which the railroad company failed to comply with. The act also provided that upon the acceptance of the provisions of this act by the acceptance of the provisions of this act by the said company it shall be deemed by the governor of this state as a relinquishment by said company of all such lands now occupied by actual settlers. No acceptance as above provided was ever made by the company. The act of June 1874, may be regarded as a provision calling for an acceptance, and no acceptance being given, wholly without force. The act of March 1877, may be subject to a like criticism and to the further criticism of an implied repeal by the act of March 1878. From the force and effect of the statutes above mentioned in the opinion, I will state some of the propositions based on them collectively. First. All were passed after the time given for the completion of the road, when there had been a nonperformance of the conditions of the grant, and when there [illegible] the right of absolute and [illegible] forfeiture by the grantor, the [illegible] and of resumption and transfer by the state to another beneficiary. Second—Nothing can be plainer than that both congress and the state legislature intended to give to actual bona fide settlers prior to the railroad company. Third—All legislative land grants are to be regarded not merely as contracts but also as laws. As such they are subject to the same rules of interpretation that govern other laws, and a primary rule is that the intent of the legislature is to be sought, and when ascertained it controls. The technical rules which govern the interpretation of private contracts must yield to the single inquiry of the intent of the one party, the legislature. Fourth—The legal title is in the defendants. Complainant rests upon its alleged equitable rights. There is no equity in striking down a legal title, when so to do involves a disregard of the manifest intent of the original owner, grantor of such title. Decrees will be entered in favor of the defendants, dismissing the bills at costs of complainant.

P. J. McGuire,
County Auditor.

Mr. Polk County Journal.—We would like to poke you just a bit, and while in your issue of February 11th, you invite us to "come in out of the wet," we would say to you Crookston editors, and all others that we know, and some that we don't know, that you had better come in out of the cold. Whew!! Cold is hardly a name for it, when the spirit thermometer freezes up. You will have to build longer thermometers or let up on the weather. But now for a little word of counsel from a New Yorker of another stripe from that Moffat (he lives in [illegible]), I don't wonder much at his report. But if he had lived a little lower down the Susquehanna, among the civilized of Chenango county, may be he would have another story to tell. The snow banks have been very small to those of your early recollection of "Toad Hollow," and smaller than many times in my own remembrance. But any drifts (O my!) Or no, any drifts, that's not the question. If it had not have been for the State of New York, I sort o' wonder what Minnesota would have done for the Polk County Journal? And I guess it must be a trifle wet in that region for things "out in the wet" [illegible] some of your inhabitants of Crookston have grown to fair sized proportions since they have resided in your fair city. Take for instance that school superintendent, and the [illegible] the week. (You need not tell them who sent you this scrawl.) What I want you "come in out of the wet fellows" to remember is, that the State of New York grew you up to be somebody, and started you out pretty well, and Minnesota may well be proud of her New York sons and daughters too, for they are there as well. Remember the rock from whence you were hewn, and don't forget that morally and physically this grand Empire State sent out her sons and daughters with mental culture adapted to build up towns and villages and cities and even to form states all along our western frontiers, and even to make Minnesota, so near the north pole, what it is. It makes me s-h-i-v-e-r-r to think of it! Mr. Editor, if V. D. Carruth and wife, or any other of my early friends, should inquire after my welfare, tell them that the left-handed writer of this still cherishes in memory a kindly thought of some of them, and hopes that "the friendship here in time begun, may be lasting in that world of light and growing 'still.'" If this should find a place in your paper, and any other issue should clandestinely reach me and my own native state need my defense, I shall be there to bring to your pure minds a remembrance of where you first saw daylight and where your bringing up started from, if you have forgotten. But all on ye'z, up in Minnesota, and especially in Crookston, and ye editor, and V. D. C. and family in particular, "come in out of the cold."

Guess Who.

The first line of the above led us to think we had aroused the N. Y. S. Militia, who desired to "poke" us with their pine bayonet, but a careful perusal revealing nothing very militia-ous we conclude that it must be some real estate man, who is afraid that the fame of our vigorous young state will depopulate N. Y. and bust him up in business. One thing is very evident, that he has never been here to see for himself, for if he had he would now be doing just what Moffat is, i. e. looking for a chance to invest in Minnesota dirt, with a view of making one more New York boy, "gone estray." We know that many of our citizens, when in a state of nature, were residents of New York State, but as soon as their eyes were opened to the truth, they "sought a better country," became converted and are among the best citizens of this happy land. (Moffat was on the anxious seat before he left New York. He came out bright and shining, and does not intend to back-slide.) We pity the writer of the above communication, because we believe that he has spent many years in trying to persuade others to lead a better life and now, in his blindness advises them to keep right on in the error of their ways, when, in the light of the examples he has had he could better be pointing out the way to the better country and thousands would rise up to call him blessed. However, as a faithful public servant, The Journal must not let up by day nor night to urge men to come to this better country—the better the men the more we want to see 'em happy. So again we repeat, to "guess who" and all other desirable citizens, by all means "come in out of the wet."

Mirror and Farmer.

At this time, while the attention of farmers is turned to the low price of dairy products and the prospect of a rise in wool, there is danger that the pig will be forgotten, or at least neglected, under the impression that he is nothing but a pig any way and can take care of himself. But if every farmer could be made to realize the full importance of the pig in the economy of his operations, there would be a change of scenery around many a back yard and rickety old shed. The pig is always salable for cash at some price, and this fact causes many brokers and jockeys to keep on hand a lot of half starved, shivering shotes for sale to farmers and others who want them to feed. The pig will endure and recover from a more severe course of starvation than any other animal on the farm, and this good quality is often turned against him, and he is made to suffer because he will live through it. Men who have warm stalls for their cattle and horses, and dry pens for their sheep, will oblige their pigs to crawl into a pile of litter, wet with their own filth, so that when the warmth of the body thaws it, they are steaming on one side and covered with frost on the other, and when they come out to eat they must wade through a snow drift and cover their sides with a new source of misery. These may be extreme cases, but they are more common than they should be, and it is time this course of treatment was abandoned. The pig will pay for good care and treatment as well as any animal, and much quicker than [illegible] most, and all that is added to them in size or flesh has a ready market value. And aside from the consideration of cruelty, there is every inducement to give the pig good care and treatment. Farmers often do well by taking shotes from the city stables and butcher's pens, but it is safe and more profitable for a farmer who wants to feed five or six more pigs a year to raise them himself. If the sow is tame and properly handled, and the pen and bedding suitably arranged, there is little risk or trouble in raising a litter of [illegible] pigs. Use any of the improved breeds [illegible] suit your fancy and there is almost no danger of making a mistake. If the pigs happen to be cheap when they are big enough to sell, hold them a little [illegible] there is a call for shotes nearly every spring and fall, and they can be made [illegible] with [illegible] ready now and [illegible]

A Farmer, a Bushel of Corn and Two Drinks.

Toledo Blade.

Do you see that man over there? Well, he's a farmer. There he goes with a friend; they're going to get a drink. The farmer will pay for it. Now, let me see. That man will sweat two mortal hours next spring to plow enough ground to raise one bushel of corn. That bushel of corn he will sell for thirty cents. He is going in there now to spend the thirty cents for two drinks. Therefore, the farmer and corn have parted. Now let me tell you what becomes of the corn. A bushel of corn makes seventeen quarts of whiskey—four and a quarter gallons. The distillery gets its first profit—40 cts. a gallon. There you are, $2 for a bushel of corn. Now the government comes in, 90 cents a gallon—$3.85 added to the $2 makes $5.85. That brings the product of the bushel of corn down to the jobber and the wholesaler and finally, by several stages, to the retailer. By the time it reaches the latter the bushel of corn or its product of four and a quarter gallons has been reduced one-half, which means eight and a half gallons. There are sixty drinks to the gallon—that is the average—eight and a half gallons means 270 drinks at 15 cents each—there we have $46.35 as the consumer's price for a bushel of corn, which the farmer raises and sells for thirty cents. Who says there is not industry in this country? But the farmer we saw just now spent his whole bushel of corn in the price of two drinks, and the people who do not till the soil got away with $46.35.

The church of to-day, much more the church of the future must take to its heart the duty of combining and massing its forces against that gigantic atrocity of Christian civilization that mothers nine-tenths of the woes and sorrows that blight and curse our modern age, the traffic in intoxicants which hides its deformity under forms of law. Are we reduced to the shame of admitting that a civilization that has grown up around our altars is impotent to cure the evil? How can we go to the heathen with this cancer of worse than heathen infamy festering in our own bosom? Our church from the first has borne testimony against it, but we must renew our protest with louder and more solemn emphasis until our land is rescued. If ever the pulpit had the right, the duty to flame with unsparing rebuke, it is here. If ever there was a cause which deserves to unite philanthropy and patriotism with piety in restless endeavor, it is this.—[Bishop Foster of M. E. Church.

It is in vain that every engine is set to work that philanthropy can devise, when those whom we seek to benefit are habitually tampering with their faculties of reason and will,—soaking their brains with beer, or inflaming them with ardent spirits. The struggle of the school, the library, and the church all united against the beer-house and gin-palace, is but one development of the war between heaven and hell.—[Charles Buxton, M. P., at one time England's greatest brewer.

A Catholic legend says that the devil gave a hermit the choice of three great vices, one of which was drunkenness. The hermit chose this as being the least sinful; he became drunk, and then he committed the other two.—[Rev. Wm. Reid.

No statistics are needed to assure you that temperance reform lies at the bottom of all further political, social and religious progress. Drink is the curse of the country. It ruins the fortunes, it injuries the health, it destroyes the lives of one in twenty of our population, and anything which can be done to diminish this terrible sacrifice of human life and human happiness is well worthy of all the attention and study we can give it. The agitation will go on without us if not with us. If we are silent, the very stones would cry out. If there is in the whole of this drink business any single encouraging feature, it is to be found in the growing impatience of the people at the burden which they are forced to bear, and their growing indignation and sense of the shame and disgrace it imposes upon them.—Joseph Chamberlain, M. P., President of the London Board of Trade and Chairman of National Educational League of England.

Judges are weary with calling attention to drink as the principal cause of crime, but I cannot refrain from saying that if they could make England sober they would shut up nine-tenths of the prisons.—[Lord Chief Justice Coleridge of England.

An experience of more than twenty years of judicial life has taught me that more than seven-eighths of the crimes committed in this country—which involve personal violence—were traceable to the use of intoxicating liquor—that all the causes of crime and misery [illegible] intoxicating liquor [illegible] approachable chief.—Noah Davis, Chief Justice of the New York Supreme Court.

What makes these slums [of London] so horrible? I answer with certainty, and with the confidence of one who knows—drink! I tell the nation with conviction founded on experience that there will be no remedy until you save these outcasts from the temptation of drink. Leave the drink and you might build them palaces in vain. Leave the drink, and before the year is over your palaces would be reeking with dirt and squalor, with infamy and crime. —Canon Farrar.

The Burmese are "catching on" to some of our ideas of civilization. Lately in Burmah licenses have been granted for highway robbery. This strikes the New York Tribune as very shocking indeed. The Tribune however, takes kindly to the idea of licensing the dram shop which robs, not the rich, but the poorest and most needy of their hard-earned money, which ought to go over the counters of honest tradesmen for the necessaries of life. If, like the licensed Burmese highway robber, they then left their victim to go on his way with a clear brain, a clean conscience and good health, he could earn more money and it would not be so bad. Such is not the case. The licensed dram shop robber of our Christian country, not only robs its victim of his money but the subtle and devilish poison peddled over the bar destroys his manhood, wrecks his morals, makes him a dangerous maniac or a babbling fool—a diseased, loathsome, mockery of the man he was when he first became a patron of the legalized robber that disgraces American civilization. —[State Sentinel.

Every day's experience tends more and more to confirm me in the opinion that the temperance cause lies at the foundation of all social and political reform.—[Richard Cobden.

Every benevolent institution utters the same complaint. Strong drink—by whatever name the demon is styled, in whatever way it presents itself—this prevents our success. Remove this one obstacle, and our cause will be onward, and our labors will be blessed.—[John Bright.

POULTRY NOTES.

Minneapolis Tribune.

Let the laying hens run at will in the barn yard. They find grass seeds, partially digested grain, etc.; and so require less feeding. If you expect eggs this cold weather, don't forget to give them a hot mash in the morning. Keep a big iron pot hidden under the kitchen table, and into it throw parings all kinds, all sorts of table refuse, and fill up with small potatoes. Cook until very soft and keep it on the back of the range all night, in order to have it warm in the morning. Before feeding, mash all well, and stir in bran, meal or middlings.

Although the best morning meal is one composed of soft food, warm, and of variety, yet it should not be fed in a manner so as to allow the hens to eat their fill. The better plan is to give them only a small quantity as a stimulant, when just coming off the roosts, the remainder of the meal to consist of grain, for which the hens should be made to hunt.

Too much meat, especially if raw, will hurt the fowls, but they need a moderate supply of it in winter, when they cannot forage upon the insects of the fields.

The droppings of the hens should be occasionally removed; they should not be allowed to accumulate. The floors should be covered with loam or sand.

J. S. Durant, of Lower Cabot, Vt., writes that during the past year 70 Brown Leghorn hens which he kept laid 11,963 eggs.

Saving The Cost of Horseshoes.

Several members of the Cortland County Farmers' club report favorable experience with unshod horses. One whose forefeet had become badly contracted has been barefoot over a year, and now drives nicely, has no difficulty in drawing loads into the barn and does not limp so bad on the ice as might be expected. Mr. Rawley took off shoes from a horse for a year and a half, as his feet were in a bad condition, and now he has entirely recovered. Mr. Blodgett observed in Illinois that horses never shod travel all day on the road with no apparent inconvenience. The advice was given that when unshod hoofs get too long set the foot on the plank and cut off at the toe, using a chisel and cutting from the top side. This is better than paring. Mr. Wood's recent book was quoted against shoeing or cutting the frog. Mr. Shearer's horses have sharp toe calks both summer and winter. A team will handle a mowing machine much easier, [illegible] by slipping than any other way.—New York Tribune.

FRIEND COOKE.

Dear Sir:—Please mention in your local columns that I will soon be in Crookston on deck, ready to attend to my customers this spring, in all lines of nursery stock. There was a heavy snow storm here yesterday. Business of all kind is very dull in this part of the country. The tobacco crop brings a very low price as also, does pork, beef and grain. I am having a splendid visit with my family. My intentions are to leave here in about two weeks.

Yours Truly,

FRANK T. HASELTINE.

WOODSIDE.

The wicked Province of Woodside has some attractions after all as it seems that those who go away cannot stay away, yesterday witnessed the return of Mr. F. Redlon, to his farm. Mrs. Works has returned from Warren, and Mrs. Martha Dunfee and Master William Dunfee returned from a long visit to their friends at Clear Lake. One of our neighbors say kill the prodigal the calves have got back. Mr. Charles Churchill is just able to be out, but is still suffering from his recent illness. Mr. Green called on your correspondent yesterday looking pale and weak from recent sickness. Such weather as this is enough to make a man swear like a printer. It is either cold, stormy or rough, one hour like spring; the next winter. Mr. Snyder crossed the prairie last Wednesday and got it up his nose, (the blizzard we mean.) Messrs Goodrich & Rome are now cutting timber in good earnest. Now Mr. editor it is strange how some innocent people are persecuted; and as innocent a personage as your correspondent is accused of having visions and seeing dreams, but how glad we are that we are not living in the old puritan days, when they burnt witches and whipped quakers, for the glory of God. But when a man eats pickles for supper he can not help dreaming.

Wholesale Poisoning.

Seventeen Persons by Eating Compressed Cooked Corn Beef.

The Thirteen Towns.

Two sleigh loads of Hansvillains arrived here Monday evening and marched in single file, keeping time to the music of the Hansville orchestra, into the Belmont parlors, taking Mr. and Mrs. Hilligoss completely by surprise. But notwithstanding the way in which they were taken, the worthy couple managed to entertain their friends in royal style. Evhrything passed off merrily till after the midnight lunch—consisting of cold meats, compressed cooked corn beef, cakes, pies etc., was served, when suddenly a dizzy sensation passed over seventeen of the merry makers, followed by vomiting and cramps in their stomachs. Dr. Gilmour of Fertile, who happened to be present, after hastily examining the sufferers and the different kinds of food, pronounced them poisoned from arsenic, a substance in the corned beef, and the proper restoratives were at once administered. All were in a dangerous condition for some hours and Dr. Lewis was called in to assist Mr. Gilmour.

The following were effected: Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hilligoss and daughter, Miss Edith, Mr. and Mrs. John Flesch and daughters, Misses Kate and Lena, Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Austin, Mrs. Andrew Eaton, Mrs. John Brown, Mrs. Joseph Reed, Miss Anna Hogland, Messrs John Chapman, Barney Flesch are still suffering from the effects of the poisoning.

A JOLLY PARTY.

MR. EDITOR:—There was a very pleasant surprise party, which was the most enjoyable of any given this season, occuring at the residence of W. G. Lytle, in Andover, on the evening of February 25th, which was a happy surprise to W. G. and his worthy wife. We will name a few who were from Crookston, who rode in a thribble box sleigh, and used for seats, a few straws thinly shaken up, with a scarcity of robes and blankets, the first collected were Henry Lewis and wife, Dr. Van Dyke and sister, Bert Bivins and wife and others. We arrived after due time and found a host of Mr. and Mrs. W. G.'s friends and relativis assembled. They received the Crookston people very cordially. Those of Andover who were present, were O. H. Richardson and wife, A. Lytle and wife and many others. The program of the evening was as follows: Instumental music on the piano by Mrs. Bivins was well rendered, tables were arranged and all took part in a game of progressive euchre. When the hour told of midnight a bountiful supper was served by the ladies to which ample justice was done. After supper good [illegible] was provided followed by more music, after which the game of euchre was resumed and kept up until the participators started for home. The Crookston people arrived home at 4 a. m. The last invitation from Mr. and Mrs. W. G. was that the latch string always hangs on the outside.

The last issue of the Bathgate (Pembina Co., Dakota) Sentinal contains fifteen mortgage sale advertisements, and the last issue of the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, (Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.,) contains nineteen. The abundance of these advertisements bespeaks prosperity for the newspapers, but hard times for the farmers, most of the mortgaged property offered for sale being farm lands. Judging from this fact, the farmers of Northern Minnesota and Dakota do not appear to be as prosperous as their brethren on this side of the 49th parallel—Emerson [Manitoba] International.

We presume the same state of things exists in Manitoba and Dakota as here and these sales do not indicate as "hard times among the farmers" as they seem to. In nine-tenths of the cases we have published, the sheriff finds when he goes to serve the papers, that the land is unoccupied and has been so for a long time, which shows that the occupant had borrowed all he was able to get and then left for other worlds to conquer, leaving the lands to be disposed of as the company, of whom they borrowed the money sees fit. We do not know of one single case wherein a farmer was living on his place and trying to keep his interest up wherein he was unable to make arrangements to do so. These changes are really an advantage to the County as the owners will sell to those who wish to become actual residents on long time and it will result in the cultivation of these tracts that for several years have been deserted, this will be a good thing for the country. These cases by no means indicate the distress that our good brother Douglas, of the International would seem to intimate, and we personally know that our farmers in Minnesota and Dakota are, as a class, fully as well off as our cousins, over the line.

A Literary Curiosity.

The glass of time, in the first and second age. Divinely handled by Thos Peyton, of Lincolnes Inne. Gent. Seen and allowed. London: Printed by Bernard Alsop for Lawrence Chapman, and are to be sold at his shop over against Staple Inne, 1620. New reprinted in a new volume, long primer type, bound in fine cloth, gilt top, beveled boards. Price 50 cents.

The quaint poem, of the title page of which the above is a transcript, appeared nearly half a century earlier than Paradise Lost, and it is intrinsically probable that it would have fallen under the eye of Milton, in any case there are striking points of resemblance between the two poems, and many have supposed Milton's immortal work to have been inspired by the former. Only two copies of the work are known to be in existence previous to the issue of the present edition, one being in the British Museum, the other in the Bodlein Library, Oxford. The copy in the British museum was purchased at a noted sale of old books in 1819, by Baron Bolland, who notes upon a blank leaf that it cost him $210. Some years ago a gentleman of Virginia, Mr. J. L. Peyton, sprung from the old English family of that name, made an accurate transcript of the copy in the British Museum, preserving even the quaint spelling, punctuation, capitalizing of the original. The present edition is printed without alteration. Apart from its presumed connection, with Paradise Lost, the poem has good merits of its own, and in every way a literary curiosity. John B. Alden, Publisher, New York.

A Brilliant Newspaper Success and a Fraternal Word.

The Mayflower, of Yarmouthport, Mass., is proving a popular success in the newspaper field. It is published every week at only 50 cents a year. There are 48 columns (20 inches long) of interesting matter, such as five or six charming stories, and general news, all illustrated portraits of prominent men, illustrations of public and private buildings in different sections of the country, and many other features too numerous to mention. Each issue contains from thirty to forty illustrations by prominent artists. People wonder how such a valuable paper can be furnished at such a low price. It is simply because such an enormous edition is printed weekly and the ratio of expense on each copy is very small—even then the margin is exceedingly close.

Any subscriber to the Mayflower who meets with loss by fire or lightning to his property recieves a present not exceeding $25.00 from the Mayflower publisher, who is a practical fire insurance man. Trial subscriptions 6 months 30 cents. If this advertisement is cut out and sent it will be received as ten cents of that amount. Address, the Mayflower, Yarmouthport, Mass.

Alden's Library Magazine, which is generally acknowledged to be the most enterprising and most valuable of the eclectic monthlies, and quite beyond all rivalry in its low price ($1.50 a year, or 15 cents a copy,) presents the following attractive contents in its March number: Mr. Gladstone as a theologian, by S. Laing; a pedantic nuisance, by Frederic Harrison; the tyrants of Britain, Gaul and Spain, by Edward A. Freeman; impressions of a modern arcadian, by Mrs. E. M. Nicholl; myths and mytheligists, by Andrew Lang; my contested election, by a defeated candidate; British Columbia, by William A. Grohman; home rule in Ireland, by Justin McCarthy; actors and their calling, by K. S. S.; the care of pictures and prints, by P. G. Hamerton; tea culture and tea drinking in Japan, by F. A. Junker; on the pleasure of reading, by Sir John Lubbock; Ireland and the Victoria colony, by A. V. Dicey. Single copies of the magazine are sold at 15 cents, though the type is large and the amount of matter is nearly equal to that of 35 cent monthlies. John B. Alden, Publisher, New York.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, on the 24th day of June 1885, at the City of Crookston, of Polk County, Minnesota, one P. J. Lachapelle and one Andrew Absalomson the said P. J. Lachapelle being then and there the owner, as mortgagee, by virtue of a chattel mortgage, and the said Andrew Absalomson being in legal possession of a certain hack, did request Euclid and Angus Munn, co-partners under the firm name of Munn Bro's, to make and perform certain repairs on said hack. And whereas, the said Munn Bro's pursuant to said request did do, make and perform repairs on said hack of the just and reasonable worth and value of fifty dollars, and the said Munn Bro's claim a lien on said hack to the amount of said repairs and still hold and retain possession of said hack since the making of said repairs. And whereas, more than three months have elapsed since the making of said repairs upon said hack and the said $50 has not been paid or any part thereof, although the sum has been heretofore duly demanded of the said P. J. Lachapelle and the said Andrew, Absalomson. Now therefore, notice is hereby given that pursuant to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, the said Munn Bro's, will, on the 5th day of April, 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the front door of Munn Bro's Carriage Works, on the corner of Third Street and Broadway, in said City of Crookston, expose said hack for sale, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy the said lien, and the costs of such sale.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by John Brandt and Mary, his wife, mortgagors, to Colonial and United States Mortgage Company, (Limited,) mortgagee, dated the 20th day of December in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred eighty-three, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 28th day of December A. D. 1883, at 11:45 o'clock a. m., in book "O" of mortgages, on pages 531, 532, 533, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of seven hundred and forty-five dollars and sixty-two cents, ($745.62,) besides the further sum of $8.20 paid for taxes upon the mortgaged premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described; which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy, on Friday the 16th day of April A. D. 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon; and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and provided by law.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section number fourteen (14.) in Township number one hundred and fifty-three (153.) in Range number forty-nine (49) west of the 5th principal meridian, containing 160 acres.

Dated Paul. Feb. 1, A. D. 1886.

WE ARE NOT SELLING OUT AT COST, NOR have we any old shop-worn or hand me down top shelve goods, but always to the front with Bargains at cut prices that compel our competitors to hang out their yearly sign, the familiar words "Selling Out at Cost!" to meet our sledge hammer prices. Why do we own our goods cheaper? Because we buy in large quantities, buy for the Great Commander, Cash, and we have experienced buyers; because we sell for cash and have no bad debts; because we turn our goods often and are satisfied with the small profit system. MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication January 28th, 1886.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Carl Kretzschmar (widower) mortgagor, to John Martin Lumber Company, a corporation then and at all times since duly incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Minnesota, mortgagee, which mortgage bears date the 27th day of August A. D. 1884, and was recorded on the 1st day of September A. D. 1884, in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk County in the State of Minnesota, in book "N" of mortgages, on page 568. No action has been instituted at law to recover the amount secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. And said mortgagor failed to pay the taxes, lawfully assessed, on a portion of said mortgaged property for the year 1883, and said John Martin Lumber Company, mortgagee paid said taxes and all penalties and charges thereon amounting in all to the sum of eighty-three and 57-100 dollars, and there is claimed to be due and is due at the date hereof upon said mortgage and the debt thereby secured the sum of one thousand nine hundred fifty-eight and 15-100 ($1958.15-100) dollars, which includes one thousand five hundred and fifty-five and 53-100 dollars ($1555.53-100,) mortgage debt and three hundred and nineteen and 05-100 dollars ($319.05-100,) interest and eighty-three and 57-100 dollars ($83.57-100) taxes.

The premises set forth and conveyed by said mortgage are situated in the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota and are described as follows, to-wit: Lot numbered twenty (20,) in block numbered sixteen (16) in the original township (now city) of Crookston and also lots four (4,) and eight (8,) in block thirty-three (33,) in the said original townsite of Crookston, also lot one (1,) in block two (2,) in Clements' first addition to the city of Crookston, according to the recorded plats of said lots, blocks and additions now on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk and State of Minnesota. Also the west half of the northwest quarter and lots two (2,) and three (3,) in Section thirty-two (32,) Township one hundred fifty-two, (152,) Range forty-three (43,) also the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of Section thirty-one (31,) Township one hundred fifty-two (152,) Range forty-three (43,) according to the Government survey.

Said mortgage contains a full power of sale in due form of law in case of default of the payment of the principal or interest in said mortgage specified, or any part thereof when due, said mortgage also contains a stipulation on the part of the mortgagor to pay the sum of fifty dollars as and for attorney's fees for the foreclosure thereof.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of the principal and interest due on said mortgage and said power of sale has become operative: Now therefore notice is hereby given that by reason of said default and by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the above described premises will be sold at public auction at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Saturday the thirteenth day of March A. D. 1886, at ten o'clock a. m., to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage, together with fifty dollars stipulated by said mortgagor to be paid as attorney's fees, and including also such costs as are allowed by law.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication January 28th 1886.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Thorval Brauyn, mortgagor, to N. H. Galusha, mortgagee, dated the 25th day of January, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-three, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 26th day of January, A. D. 1883, at 10:30 o'clock a. m., in book "K" of mortgages, on pages 182 to 184, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the amount of four hundred and twenty-four dollars and twenty-five cents ($424.25) and the amount of sixty-four dollars and thirty-four cents ($64.34) advanced for taxes, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and by and under the authority in said mortgage contained the said N. H. Galusha, mortgagee, elects to and does declare and claim that the whole sum secured by said mortgage, and now unpaid, is due and payable.

Now, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described at public auction at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Friday, the 2d day of April, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, by the Sheriff of said county, or his deputy duly appointed, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage with interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars ($25) attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The east half (e½) of the northwest quarter (nw¼) and the east half (e½) of the southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section nine, (9) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-four (44) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres of land, more or less, according to the United States Government survey thereof.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication February 11th, 1886.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by William Wylie and Mary Jane Wylie, mortgagors, to Edwin H. Pease, mortgagee, dated the 25th day of February A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-one and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota on the 4th day of March A. D. 1881, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "D" of mortgages, on pages 201, 202 and 203, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of three hundred and ten dollars and seventy-three cents ($310.73,) and the sum of eighteen dollars and fifty-five cents ($18.55,) necessarily paid for taxes on said land and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and by and under the authority in said mortgage contained, the said assignee elects to and does declare and claim that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid, is due and payable.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Friday the 9th day of April A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, by the Sheriff of said county or his deputy duly appointed, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars ($25.00) attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-five (25,) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres according to the United States Government survey thereof.

Dated February 1st 1886.

Diversify Your Farming.

We find the following good advice in the North Dakota Farmer an excellent agricultural paper published at Jamestown, D. T. It will repay a careful perusal, containing as it does many reliable suggestions to the farmers of this new Northwest:

At this season of the year the agriculturist, who expects to get his living out of the soil, must of necessity have serious thoughts as to his plans and prospects for the coming season. He will carefully consider what can be grown most profitably and done most efficiently, using his time to the greatest advantage, and he will decide how best his resources can be best employed to bring the best results. Many will inquire what can be done to avoid the mistakes of the past, and how the errors of 1885 can be utilized, or their recurrence prevented in 1886.

All new countries are compelled to pass through a transition state before their capabilities and adaptabilities are thoroughly understood.

Experience, though reputed to be a "hard master," is a most convincing instructor, and with many their only guide. A knowledge of the soil, the climatic changes, the special peculiarities of the country, and how to take advantage of them, form an important item in the success or failure of the husbandman of this great Northwest.

It has been said, to be born with the coveted "silver spoon in his mouth" is really the greatest misfortune that can befall a man, destroying his energies and paralyzing his best development. This truism is to a greater or less exten applicable to our immigrant or settler from the East.

The generosity of many of our rich alluvial lands is not infrequently similar in its effect on the beginner, by responding too readily to his rudimentary system of farming. A copious yield, with a little labor the first or second year, induces a rekless assurance of success with but little exertion, and with a desire to produce the same comodity over and over again regardless of the impoverishing results that are being wrought in the soil, and which must inevitably reflect upon himself. As long as the soil will yield up her treasures, just so long will the unthinking draw on them without regard to the future.

The early pioneers of Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa thought just as the new settlers of Minnesota and Dakota do to-day, that the soil is inexhaustible, and all that they have to do is to plow, sow and reap with unvarying routine, continually abstracting the same constituents from the ground, without any attempt at rotation of crops or means of returning the elements which are withdrawn, with the most sublime faith that nature's labratory will, unassisted kindly do the work they put upon her. This policy is a short-sighted procedure and one that will inevitably declare itself sooner or later.

Let him who would make agriculture ultimately a success reason with himself and draw his deductions from the local price list of farm products. Let him impartially compare the relative proportions of the supply and demand of the wheat market, with that of a number of other products, such as meats of all kinds, dairy produce, poultry, eggs, vegetables, etc., and what will he discover? That the wheat crop of 1884 and 1885 was marketed at lower figures than ever before known in the memory of man. Large proportions of it being forced on the market at less than it cost to produce it.

Let the specialist farmer modify his course, in view of the fact that he is raising for market a single comodity of which there are, in some years, produced many million bushels more than are consumed.

From the difficulties coincident with the settlement of all new countries, there is a scarcity of all kinds of live stock and their products, and the temptation arises to follow the pursuit of what is most easily obtained with the smallest amount of labor, while for the indespensibles enumerated, we have been and still are dependent almost absolutely on Chicago, Kansas City and other sources of supply.

Can anything be more suicidal than the continuance of a system which compels the dwellers in Dakota and Minnesota to depend on their more southerly neighbors for the most high-priced staples of universal consumption. The farmer who sluts himself up to this course unwittingly choses the hardest and longest road to competence.

The Farmer's Convention at Moorhead was not without its good results. The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That the farmers of the Fifth district have full confidence in the board of railway commissioners.

Resolved, That we request of the railroads a reduction of 33 1-3 per cent in rates. If it is not granted in 30 days, we demand that the board of commissioners fix the rates.

Resolved, That we commend that the farmers of the Northwest build flat warehouses, and ship wheat only to houses complying with the warehouse laws at terminal points.

Resolved, That we instruct our senators and representatives to support the Cullum interstate commerce bill.

Resolved, That we recognize in the State Farmer's Alliance a powerful organization for the overthrow of monopoly, and thank them for the fearless declaration of principles adopted. We recommend the Alliance to the farmers as deserving of earnest financial and personal support.

What Is It?

By special arrangements with the publisher of Farm and Fireside, we can for a short time, offer a free gift in connection with our paper. It is a Magnificent Engraving entitled "Hamlet and Ophelia." Our offer is as follows:

The price of Peck's Sun one year is $2.00, the price of Farm and Fireside one year is 50 cents and the value of the engraving is fully $2.50. We give all the above, worth $5.00 for only $2.00. Subscribe for Peck's Sun at once and secure them all. Address Peck's Sun Milwaukee, Wis.

Peterson's Magazine for April opens with a very beautiful engraving, viz: "The little Pilferer," after a picture by a celebrated german artist, Meyer Von Bremen. Then comes a double-size colored fashion-plate, which all the ladies will rave over; two colored patterns; and some fifty wood-cuts of fashions, embroideries, etc. The stories are all original, and even better than usual. "On the Roxbury Sands" is one of great power. "Sister Dorothy," by Edward Fawcett, is a society novelet of very high merit. "The Burglar-Alarm," by Frank Lee Benedict, is intensely funny. "The Millionaire's Daughter," by Mrs. Ann Stephens, grows in interest with every number. Altogether, we don't see how any lady can do without "Peterson." The terms are but two dollars a year; and now is a good time to subscribe. Address Charles J. Peterson, 306, Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

John B. Gough.

In the death of John B. Gough this country loses its most popular lyceum lecturer, and the world the foremost champion of total abstinence. The career of Mr. Gough as a platform orator was remarkable both for its length and for its unabated success until the very end. Before Beecher and Wendell Philips were heard of, Gough was at the pinnacle of National reputation. And as he expected and desired, he died in the harness. As a speaker he was unique. In commencing a lecture he was invariably seized with stage fright. But the extreme nervousness of which this was a symptom was the secret of his power. Once he felt himself master of the situation, the movements of his mind and of his body were electric. What he said when read afterwards in cold type did not seem extraordinary. But his way of saying it defied the art of the reporter. Every part of his person seemed to assist in the drama. As some one has said, even his coat-tails seemed to talk. In describing a storm he would say: "The thunder r-o-a-r-e-d, and the lightning—(smiting his hands.)" In the faculty of fascinating an audience and swaying their minds and wills while discussing the drink theme he was alone. Probably to no one man so much as to him is due the temperance sentiment existing in this country. His voice has been heard in every State, in the every city, almost in every hamlet. The writer well remembers a conversation held with him at Northfield, Massachusetts, last summer: "I think, Mr. Gough, the best thing you ever did was to lend your influence to the St. John ticket." Said he: "I did so after the fullest deliberation. It cost me many months of anxious thought to decide upon that course." Then he added: "I hope you will not attack the Republican party more than you can help. I have been a Republican all my life, and though I am now a Prohibitionist in politics, I have not entirely lost my first love." Kind, genial, heroic spirit! Glorious is thy present state, eternal is thy reward; for "they that turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars for ever and ever." May Christians everywhere learn by thy marvellous record what it is possible for one disciple to achieve on earth in the service of his Master!

"Boycott the Saloons."

Hudson, (Wis.,) Star and Times:

The Prison Press, a little paper published and edited by convicts at the State Prison at Waupun, recently printed some interesting statistics showing that a large majority of the inmates of that institution attributed their being there to the use of liquor. This same paper this week contains an editorial on the whisky question which is of peculiar interest from the opportunities the writer has evidently had to judge of some of the effects of drinking. The article is headed "Boycott the Saloons," and says:

We read in the papers not long ago that the Knights of Labor had resolved to boycott all firms in Chicago, employing prison labor to manufacture their goods in competitition with honest labor. Now we do not wish it understood that we are the champions of the cause of persons or firms employing prison labor—for we are not—but it occurred to us that it would be a step in the right direction, if the Knights of Labor in the next general assembly would resolve to "boycott" the saloons. If this was done and carried out as effectually and as sincerely as the boycott resolved on, and included in its scope the whole United States of America, the firms employing the prison labor would quietly pass out of existence as a factor in labor competition. It has proven again and again that liquor is the greatest cause of crime. It may not be so directly, but the foundation may be traced to the use or abuse of liquor. We therefore advise all friends of good government; all friends of fair play; all friends of heart broken mothers, sisters and wives; all friends of law and good order—to "boycott the saloons." Boycott the brewery and distillery, boycott those who make it, boycott those who sell it, boycott all who are in any way identified in its trafic, boycott the preacher who dare not condem it, boycott the politician who in any way encourages it.

If a boycott of this kind could be effectually carried into force, we believe the laboring men all over the country would have less cause for other kinds of boycott. They would be better, wiser and richer, and would increase their power to enforce their rights a thousand fold.

The poor laborer often grumbles of hard times—very often with good reason—but when that same man can afford to step into a saloon, treat the crowd to the value of a couple of dollars, while his children run barefooted and his wife has teased him for weeks for twenty-five cents to buy a calico dress with, we think his grumbling is in bad taste.

Prohibition in Iowa.

Samuel F. Cooper, of Grinnell, Iowa, writes to the New York Evangelist: "Prof. Fisk P. Brewer, in the Evangelist, makes no exception to the statement of one Henry Bickel, that 'Prohibition is not meeting with any great degree of success in Iowa,' and that 'Public sentiment in behalf of prohibition is rapidly dying out.' I beg to take issue with my good friend the professor, who in the retirement of his quiet and cultured home, clearly misapprehends the situation. Drunkenness is not on the increase in Iowa. Public sentiment in behalf of prohibition is not dying out by any means. It is not, perhaps, so pronounced and active as at first, but it is broader, firmer, wiser. The law is not a failure by any means; else why should the Liquor League and the saloon interest put forth such frantic efforts for its repeal? The fact is, the law is enforced thoroughly and effectively in eighty of the one hundred counties in the State. In the other counties its partial failure is owing not at all to its own inherent weakness, but to the fact that its execution is in the hands of its bitter foes, from the Judge upon the bench down to the pothouse constable and saloon-keeping justice of the peace. The statute cannot execute itself; no statute can do that. Hence it is that the river towns, where the foreign element is largely in the ascendancy, the law is openly defied, as any law would be which in the least restricted the sale of malt or spirituous liquors. On the other hand, I would cite this (Poweshiek) county as an instance of the beneficent working of the law. Under the old regime there were not less than a dozen saloons in the county, with all their baleful influence; now not one drop is sold, except clandestinely, and under imminent risks. And all this blessed change has been wrought in almost every county in the State. Does that look like failure?"

and at least a moderate competence, come to those who follow the teachings of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST. This world-renowned periodical, in addition to its other great features, has now employed the LEADING AMERICAN WRITERS to describe THE RURAL LIVES OF OUR AMERICAN PRESIDENTS, nearly all of whom were reared on farms, or retired to them from active life. Donald G. Mitchell, (Ike Marvel) R. H. Stoddard, James Parton, Julian Hawthorne, Dr. Lyman Abbott, and others equally eminent, are now prparing these supplemental historical papers. They are to be accompanied with ENGRAVINGS, 12x18 inches in size, executed at large expense by our first artists, illustrating the Rural Homes and Surroundings of our Farmer Presidents, comprising a Magnificent Portfolio collection for every house, rich and poor alike. These special papers and special engravings, will be of absorbing interest to all interested in country life, and likewise constitute an important acquisition to the historical knowledge of the country.

R. H. Stoddard writes: "I am sure they will be popular in a literary sense and equally sure they will be of great value to the boys of this country, who have a right to look forward to becoming our future rulers." Donald G. Mitchell: "I write about Washington's farming, in respect to which I have some copies of unpublished letters." Lyman Abbott: "It is an admirable design, showing the close connection of our Farmer Presidents with the soil." Julian Hawthorne: "An attractive scheme. I shall be glad to have a hand in it." James Parton: "One of my articles will be ready in three weeks."

Every subscriber to the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST for 1886 is entitled to these descriptions and engravings of the Rural Lives of our Presidents, forwarded without additional cost with the numbers of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST, as they appear; or specially executed on heavy, highly finished paper, and forwarded with the additional trifling cost for packing and postage. Single Subscription, $1.50; Ten Subscriptions, $1 each.

The city health officer issues his proclamation desiring all good citizens to slick up a bit. Timely warning.

Peter Carroll, recently of the Commercial House, has purchased an interest in the Bay View House, Duluth.

B. LeDuc is building a store adjoining the Canada House on the north, which he will stock up when completed.

Just received by Houston & Ross, a large invoice of crockery, glassware, flower-pots and hanging baskets. Call and examine stock and get prices.

We had one Foot down at Hallock last Saturday, and that was enough. If anything, Kittson County is duller than Polk or Marshall and that is needless.

Herb's shotgun is still on deck. You don't have to smoke but 5,000 cigars to get it, and 4,000 and some odd have already gone up in smoke. Get there, Eli!

Joe Serwe, representing the J. W. Butler Paper Co., was around calling on the boys last week. Joe is a rustler and if he is not doing well it is not from lack of energy.

Miss Fannie Bruce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Bruce, of Larimore, died at the residence of H. A. Sten , in Carman, on Sunday morning last, of inflamation of the brain.

Upon opening a barrel of Malaga grapes this week Herb found them all spoiled. Four more barrels returned the same report and Herb mournfully remarked: "That takes the profit off!"

A few more days like Monday and Tuesday would put many pieces in shape to drag. Should the break-up come now it would be the earliest opening in years—but it may not be here yet.

We have heard rumors of late of "gambling behind green baize doors!" We can't say how it is for we were "not invited" to take a hand—in fact the lords of creation are all ruled out in the "deal"!

J. F. Holmes was down from the Falls last week. He reports the prospects for the Duluth & Manitoba line booming. He is sanguine that they will hear the whistle on their own line before snow flies.

The name of the unfortunate man, injured at the mill on Tuesday, is Lorenzo Libby. His brother was formerly in the law office of D. Brower, and his father kept a hotel at St. Hilaire. They now live at Park River, D. T.

J. W. Pitts reports the arrival of a pair of bouncing grade Holsteins on Saturday last. They are not twins but might be so far as size and color is concerned. They are fine calves and the heifer will, if she lives, be a grand cow.

A person who passed the old Catholic cemetery one day this week reports that steps should be at once taken to prevent several bodies being washed out. Those whose business it is to look after that matter should attend to it before it is too late.

There is to be one this afternoon. We s'pose the town will be painted red—it was so intimated—but we are not at liberty to say anything about it until we learn who wins the jack-pot. Our reporter is on deck and we shall get full—particulars.

We understand that a series of "rooster euchre parties" will soon be instituted in this city, in self-defense. We are willing to risk a nickel that they will be all the rage. When a fellow is a bachelor from force of circumstances he has got to do something for amusement if it is'nt so cute.

The rainbow party to be given for the benefit of the G. A. R. boys will be one of the finest of the season. No pains nor expense will be spared to render the event one long to be remembered, and a very enjoyable one. Don't know what like a rainbow party is? Well, you will find out, if you go.

District Attorney Baxter is up looking after timber cases before Judge Ives. There are not many cases demanding attention; the Judge has only issued 50 or 60 warrants. This timber business is developing a great deal of expense for this country, which could have been saved if the government had been farsighted enough in the outset to do what ought to have been done, i. e. to reserve all of the timber lands for the use of actual settlers. They need all there is and should have had it, and this course would also have saved much trouble and expense.

H. G. Palmer, of Warren made us a pleasant call on Monday and reported his Holstein herd in a thriving condition. He rejoices in the arrival of six high grade calves and the cows are splendid milkers. His cows are of the Aggie family, the choicest butter cows of the breed. He intends to pay a great deal of attention to dairy farming in the future and has got a splendid start in that direction.

Col. Gorgus returned to civilization on Saturday looking hale and hearty.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Palmer, of Warren were visiting friends in the city early this week.

D. H. Bates, the Carman lumber merchant has gone on a business trip to St. Paul and Duluth.

The boys are beginning to return from the woods in squads and the town has a more lively appearence.

The Congregational church sociable, held at the residence of Henry Lewis Esq., was a success. Hank is a good entertainer.

The execution of John Hutchinson has been postponed owing to the fact that the day appointed was Good Friday. The day of execution has been fixed one week later.

J. T. Johnson was down from the Maple Lake country on Monday. He was enroute to Fergus Falls to sell some city lots and expects to be gone about two weeks.

Mr. Frank Bivins has bought a pair of Holstein grade calves of H. G. Palmer and will try his hand at raising fine stock. Very soon the farmer who has not one or more Holstein grades will be hard to find in Polk County.

You can buy yourself a watch at C. H. Saake's jewelry store cheaper than any other place in the city.

A ladies progressive euchre party was given on Thursday afternoon of last week by Mrs. H. I. Hanscome, Mrs. E. Carey took the head and lone hand prizes, Mrs. Cromb the "gents" progressive, Mrs. Dawley the ladies head prize, Miss Emma McKenzie the "gents" lone-hand prize and Miss Newland and Mrs. C. E. Dampier what was left. These left-handed parties are awfully jolly but somehow "us fellers" don't appreciate 'em.

The latest agricultural reports show that there was a decrease of over one-tenth in the area sowed to winter wheat and that the past winter has been a very severe one for that crop. How much it has been injured it is impossible to say, but it is probable that considerable injury has been done and that the crop for '86 will not be as great as that for '85.

Services at the Congregational church next Sunday morning and evening. Sunday school at 12:15 o'clock. Preaching in the morning at 11 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. W. H. Medlar. In the evening a union Gospel Temperance service will be held in which all the churches of the city are expected to unite. The sermon will be preached by Rev. Mr. Davis, the Evangelist from Chelsea, Massachusetts. He will continue a five days meeting in our city.

Our surmises were correct last week, and we are now able to announce by authority that C. A. Chiniquy will occupy the old blue front store in Dobson's Block. Mr. Chiniquy intends to leave for the east to-night to purchase his stock and upon his return we shall be able to enter more fully upon a discussion of his plans for the future and explain them in detail. We wish him well deserved success in his new venture.

John E. Tice was down from the Maple Lake country last week and reports renewed confidence among the farmers. They will still continue to sow in faith but will arrange to go into stock as soon as it can be done, believing that this country is as well adapted to diversified husbandry as any in the world. As soon as the fact becomes generally impressed upon the minds of all and the practice is adopted then will dawn the era of a prosperity heretofore unknown among us.

Every article in my store, without any reserve whatever, will go at a great discount this month. C. H. Saake, Jeweler.

Mr. W. F. Kelso, of the Kelso Farm, Hallock, was in the city yesterday, and gave THE JOURNAL a pleasant call. The Kelso Brothers have 2,500 acres under cultivation and are thorough farmers. They raise 1,000 acres of wheat each year, and the balance of the land not sowed to oats and barley is summer fallowed. They endeavor to keep their land absolutely free from foul weeds of all kinds and farm on the principle that one acre thoroughly cultivated is more profitable than three acres poorly worked. They pay a great deal of attention to procuring good seed and in fact will use nothing but good seed; in one case they paid over $3 per bushel for their seed wheat. The success that they have met with shows not only that it pays to cultivate well and be careful to procure good seed but that farming, if rightly conducted will pay well in this country. What wheat they sell in the fall they sell by sample. They also calculate to have plenty left to sell for seed wheat in the spring. Elsewhere appears their notice of some Saskatchewan wheat which they have for sale for seed and the sample that Stone & Pinkerton have shows that it is a magnificent specimen. They have a few bushels of barley also of a choice kind. They believe in diversified farming and have a herd of 60 cattle. So far they have not paid any attention to making butter for the market, making only enough to supply the needs of the farm but will increase this branch of the business as the herd grows. Of course the farmer on a quarter section can not adopt the same style in every particular, but it would pay him to adopt the thorough style of cultivation, which is the keynote to the success of the Kelso Farm.

The auction sale on the Stambaugh place will doubtless draw a big crowd, as all articles mentioned will be sold regardless of cost, if there is a bidder. This will afford a rare chance to all in need of stock or machinery.

Don't forget the auction sale at E. O. Flanders' place on Saturday next. There will be an opportunity to buy good work horses, machinery and many other things useful on the farm at your own figures, on time or for cash.

C. P. Cahoon dropped into our den on Monday, with a good cigar, which he said was owing to the ten pound son and heir, of the house of Cahoon, which event transpired on Friday last. He feels prouder of it than as though he owned a whole progressive euchre party of the feminine persuasion.

Carl Olson came down to have Dr. Thomas take his mouth all to pieces and went home grinning like a circus with the knowledge that in a few days he will have a set of grinders worth talking about. Doc don't gas much, but when he does the victim don't know anything until he has lost all the teeth he ever had.

Don't anybody seem to be inclined to serve their country, "officially," not to any alarming extent, judging from the quietness that is apparent. As quiet as it appears on the surface, however there is a strong under current that is liable to leap forth at a moments notice, when the proper time comes. But hain't it about time that some-body should make a motion?

Jud Carruth started for Minneapolis last Friday evening to take a hand in the great six days race that is transpiring this week. He tackles some of the best skaters in the world, yet this does not dash his spirits and while he does not promise unreservedly to win, he does promise to give 'em an awful good try. This will call for all of his powers of endurance, but we believe he will be on deck every time.

E. E. Adams, the genial editor of the Fergus Falls Journal paid us a pleasant call last week. He was accompanied by C. D. Wright, of the First National Bank, and attorney M. E. Clapp. Mr. Clapp is a candidate for Attorney General and is a man every way qualified for the position, except his locality. It is not reasonable to suppose that the southern machine will pay any attention to our rights up here until we are in a position to assert them; and they don't propose to let that occur right away.

A Bad Accident.

On Tuesday, as two men from Fisher were engaged in getting a load of saw-dust, at Walker's mill, the saw-dust caved burying one of them beneath a heavy weight. He was dug out as soon as possible and taken to the Sherman House where doctors were called to attend him. Upon examination both legs were found to be broken and he was also very badly bruised up otherwise. It is said that his name is Libby, that he lived at St. Hilaire at one time. He was very severely injured and his recovery is a matter of doubt.

1st ward—City Hall.
4th ward—office of J. W. Lilly.

Lorenzo Libby, the man injured in the saw-dust at the mill on Tuesday, died from the effects of his injuries at about 6:20 p. m. last night (Wednesday.) A. E. Bradish came up from Fisher on Tuesday evening and gave him all the care possible until the end. He was fearfully crushed and his sufferings were terrible. His wife arrived Tuesday evening and his brother on Wednesday. He leaves a young wife and two children to mourn his untimely end. The remains will be taken to his home about three miles south of Fisher, for burial. He was about 34 years of age. From the man who was working with him, Mr. Green, we learned that they were together digging saw-dust underneath a frozen crust several feet thick, when suddenly without a warning, the crust gave way burying them under many tons weight. Mr. Green was hurt badly but is able to be around.

RED LAKE FALLS, Minn.,
March 18th, 1886.

EDITOR JOURNAL: I saw an article in your last week's issue, from "Vox Populi," of a boy who was punished so severely as to be in the hands of a physician. In reply to the article, I wish to inform the writer that the person punished happened to be a girl instead of a boy, and she is not under the care of a physician, nor never was. Furthermore, she stopped at a neighbor's house on her way home and played with the other children. So, Mr. Vox Populi, if you wish for any further information in the matter, just call at district No. 83, and I will serve you the same, providing you come to school and act the same. TEACHER.

George Holden, Stewart & Laurence' clerk left the city on Monday in a suspicious manner. He took the Devil's Lake train on the quiet and in a manner that left the impression that he meant business. If he returns alone we miss our guess. He deserves a happy lot and we trust that he will get his deserts.

Six-Day Roller Skaters.

Minneapolis Tribune: To-day, at the Washington rink, commences what will undoubtedly prove the greatest skating race that has ever taken place. All the best men are entered, and they promise to place a large score to their credit by next Saturday night. The track will be exactly eight laps to the mile, and everything necessary to authenticate the record that will surely be made, has been attended to. The track will be resurveyed this morning, and a certificate to the correctness will be issued. Score sheets, specially printed to simplify the scoring, will be used, and each contestant will have a tally-board. Yesterday, although it was Sunday, was a scene of bustle at the rink; a corps of carpenters, etc., were busy all day taking out sections of the bicycle track and cleaning up for this great contest. Of the contestants entered, the following are now in the city: J. A. Snowden, holder of the long-distance championship of the world, emblematic of which he has with him a solid silver and gold belt, which he won in the great six-day race at Madison Square Garden, New York city. Wm. Boyst, champion 100-mile skater of America. Boyst took second place to Snowden in the race for the above-mentioned champion belt. H. A. Skinner, champion speed skater of the world. Skinner holds the one, two, three, four and five mile records, also the 72-hour record. Jud Carruth, the Crookston boy, champion of the Northwest and holder of the 100-mile record of America, which race took place in the Washington rink and was won by him in 6h. 46m. and 30s. R. C. Bromley, who took second place to Carruth in the above-mentioned 100-mile race, making the distance in 6h. 50m. Bromley is the champion of the West. L. Jay Gamble, champion of Illinois, considered one of the fastest skaters in America. Chas. Cole, champion of Minneapolis, with a record for 100 miles of 6h. 59m., L. D. McLean, of Minneapolis, 100-mile record, 7h. 2m., Ed. O'Neil, of Minneapolis, and C. W. Smith, of Milwaukee. Besides these men the following are entered and expected here: J. A. Lightford, Englewood, Ill.; F. Barron, St. Paul's favorite, and E. A. Maddecks, of Boston, who took third place in the New York race. The race here will be six days, eight hours per day, commencing each day at 2 p. m., and ending at 10 p. m. From the fine field of starters it is hard to pick a winner. Nearly every man is a champion at some distance, and the same can truly be called "a race of the champions."

To-day at 10 a. m. the contestants meet at the Washington rink and sign articles, also agree on the distance a man must cover to share in the receipts, which will be divided into but five prizes. The distance will be 450 or 500 miles.

On Account of Good Friday.

Pioneer Press: An incorrect statement has recently been published by a St. Paul newspaper—and widely circulated by being copied into other papers—that efforts were being made to obtain a commutation of the sentence of Hutchinson, the murderer, the date of whose execution at Grand Forks has been fixed for April 23d. No such efforts are being made—or, at least, Gov. Hubbard has not been advised of such a movement. The error in the statement probably grew out of the fact that the governor inadvertently hit upon Good Friday as the date for the execution. His attention has been called to the matter by a clergyman at Grand Forks, who suggested that the execution be postponed in deference to religious sentiment. While the governor has arrived at no conclusion, it is probable that the date of the execution will be postponed one week.

Woodside Wonders.

We have been so much astonished of late with the visions and revelations of Woodside, that we have not looked to the items of news, which are scarce at present.

Mrs. Martha Dunnfee and son have returned from a winter's visit to friends in Minneapolis. She reports having a pleasant visit, and her many friends here welcome her back again.

We are informed that Mr. Robert Knowles intends to move out to his farm on the prairie soon.

Messrs. Roame & Goodrich are running their sawmill to its fullest capacity and are turning out good lumber, which finds a ready sale.

We are informed that Mr. Louis H. Burch, who left Woodside on the 3d inst., was escorted to town by Sheriff Zwickey and entertained at the State's expense. But as we do not know what for, we cannot say anything about it, only that the said L. H. Burch was given twenty-four hours in which to get out of the town of Woodside.

Mr. Charles Crossman lost an ox last week, one of his work oxen, which leaves him without a team just as the spring work is about to begin. And would you believe it, Mr. Editor, that Woodside possesses one man so lost to humanity and sympathy as to say he was heartily glad that his neighbor had lost one half of his team. And, oh, the shades of our forefathers, that man professes to be a christian and asks a blessing at his table! Where are the Puritans who whipped Quakers and burned witches? Surely, such thanks, given with such a depraved heart, must be as a stink in God's nostrils.

We had a pleasant visit from one of your townsmen, in the person of Mr. Thos. Ratchford, last week, who expressed himself pleased with our place.

Mr. C. Crossman and Samuel H. Dunfee cut and skidded 25,000 feet of logs for E. D. Childs last month, and the same two men are now cutting the tops of saw timber into cord wood, which, when done, will amount to about 100 cords.

Mr. Samuel H. Dunfee sold a very fine steer last month, which netted him near $40, raised and fattened on grass and hay, at a small cost.

We are sorry to record the fact, as learned, that Mr. Charles Churchill is still very nearly confined to his room, having been ailing all winter.

At the town election, last Tuesday, Mr. George Goodrich was elected town clerk, Mr. E. Foster was elected justice of the peace.

Our new store, kept by Tagley & Son, is a success, as they keep a good assortment of goods and sell for cash at Crookston prices, and as they seem to understand their business, we look for a prosperous and increasing trade.

And now we know that spring is near, as

Vernal winds blow soft again,
Black bird, sky lark, thrush and plover
Join and swell the merry strain,

when they get here. T. J. WEST.

Fosston Foolishness.

From the Thirteen Towns:

Messrs. Christopher and Levi Steenerson passed through Fosston Monday on their way to the Steenerson lumbering camps on Clearwater River.

The largest amount of lumber hauled from the Hostetter saw mill to Fosston with one team was unloaded at Nelson & Opheim's lumber yard by Mr. O. P. Carver Wednesday—1,690 feet.

The community was startled Tuesday of last week by the announcement of the sudden death of Andrew Breden, who was enjoying good health up to within a few minutes of his demise. It is thought he took a dose of poison as a bottle of strychnine was found on a shelf at the head of his bed.

Messrs. Frank and W. G. Lytle, Frank Bivins and Rev. E. E. Perry, of Crookston, arrived here Sunday afternoon from Red Lake, making the remarkable drive of 65 miles in eight hours.

Despite the efforts of the bears to depress the price of wheat and to convey the impression that the winter wheat crop will be larger than ever before, the wheat market is daily getting stiffer and stronger and everything points to a good price for '86 wheat. While this is all so yet there is a lesson in the teachings of the past that all will do well to heed. The less wheat raised the better the price will be of course and every farmer who is so situated as to be able to make a fair profit on anything else would do well to raise everything else that he can make a profit on and give wheat a partial rest. Cows are coming to the front in this country and it is well that it is so for therein can be found the best substitute for wheat that can be found for this country. Everybody is not so situated that he can go into stock at once; but there is hardly a farmer who can not work into stock-raising by degrees if he will. At the very best rate of progress this country is able to make in the directions of stock-raising it would require many years to get to that point where there would be any danger of over-doing the business. When that day should come the change to more wheat would be easy and natural. But for the present while wheat is and must be handled as it is it would be the part of wisdom to give the question of stock-raising serious attention and this embraces quality as well—in fact is one of the most important points to be considered. The cow that will make two pounds of butter a day is obviously more valuable than the cow that will not make more than a quarter to a half. The first question of importance to consider is what you want to do and next what breed is best adapted to the purpose? Any breeds of thoroughbreds is better than a scrub, but any breed is not equally as good for all purposes. There are dairy breeds and beef breeds and the man who buys the beef cow for the dairy will be bitterly disappointed in results. For this country a breed that has good size and makes a fair amount of butter will be found to be the best suited to our needs. However, the most essential point is to decide upon some certain time and bend every energy to accomplish the purpose.

West vs. East.

The Eastern Skating Champions May Lose Their Laurels to the West.

Evening Journal, March 16th.

A sporting event at the Washington rink at which no records are broken has come to be regarded as a tame affair. It is no cause for surprise, therefore, that the best previous achievements were surpassed yesterday by some of the participants in the six-day roller skating race. The men got away at 3:48 p. m., and to complete 8 hours, were obliged to skate until 11:48 Hereafter the day's skating will begin at 2 p. m., and end at 10. Snowden took the lead in the first lap and maintained it. Smith of Milwaukee, dropped out at the end of the 19th mile. Following are the contestants, with their scores: Snowden, 114 miles; Boyst, 113; Gamble, 113; Carruth, 113; Bromley, 111; Skinner, 110; O'Neill, 108; Cole 92. W. M. Woodside, the bicyclist, is the referee. One-half the door money will be divided into five prizes, to be given to the five men having the best scores at the end of the race.

When the 8 men were all on the track this afternoon, Gamble took the lead and set a pace which the others did not care to make an effort to exceed.

Laps were made in 29½ seconds. The eight skaters kept close together.

Cole the Minneapolis boy, moved with a long stroke that sent him over the ground seemingly with less effort than his opponent. Skinner in a dark blue shirt stripped with red, was the handsomest of any of the racers.

After 30 minutes of monotonous work, relieved only by a fall on the part of Snowden, Cole darted swiftly to the front. Snowden shut his teeth hard and in less than a lap had passed the Minneapolis boy. Skinner and Boyst, eager to keep their fellow Easterner in the lead, crowded in front of the other skaters. Carruth and O'Neil brought up the rear.

The skating was fast and furious. Laps were made in 26 seconds. Gamble and Bromley did some very fast work, until the former fell. Snowden gained very slowly, and at length relaxed his pace.

The scores at 4 o'clock were: Skinner, 135; Snowden, 139; Boyst, 139; Bromley, 139; Gamble, 139; O'Neil, 131; Cole, 125; Carruth, 140.

The dispatch received in this city on Wednesday morning, and posted on the bulletin board at Herb's, reads as follows:

Carruth, 225; Boyst, 224; Gamble, 224; Snowden, 224; Bromley, 224; Skinner, 220; O'Neil, 219; Cole, 208.

This brings the record down to the close of the second day, and shows that the Crookston boy is no slouch. When we consider the advantage that the practice his competitors have had, we must confess that Carruth is making a phenomenal record.

W. B. Main & Co., open out in a broad gauge manner this week. Charlie Westler starts for below this week to fill the space which will be made vacant through this ad., and when he returns will be prepared to "jaw back again" in great shape. Watch out for developments.

A friend, 'way back in old Steuben Co., N. Y., sends us a copy of the Advance, a spicy local paper published at Avoca; from which we receive a hint of how matters stand in that far-away frigid zone. Says the Advance: Our esteemed friend, Trimsharp, "drove into town last Monday, from Prattsburgh, and was so badly chilled as to require assistance to get into the hotel! It was a terrible day, and enough to paralyze man or beast subject to its effects!" Again: "Many disasters are reported from various parts of the State!"

Well, what CAN you expect when people will persist in living in such a country? Haven't we warned you faithfully, at the same time pointing out to you that better country, the Red River Valley, where storms never come to destroy life and property and where a man can ride eight or ten miles without getting too "paralyzed" to get into a hotel? The boys up here would suspect it was a severe case of sun-stroke, but we know better. We spent many years of boyhood's happy hours in old Steuben and we know for a fact that they never "smile" there; they are strictly temperate in everything except snowbanks and cold weather. Now, if "Trimsharp" had been in the Red River Valley on that day, (as he ought to be) he could have ridden 50 miles without getting "paralyzed"—not in that way and we have not had a day this winter that he could not have repeated the experiment. The Advance should advise the boys in this matter; tell them how they can avoid paralysis in the future.

The Manitoba surveyors took the field on Monday, beginning at the half-way house, on the Maple Lake road going east and west. The line from that point will be changed, crossing the river about three miles east of the city and forming the junction on section 19, north of the city, instead of section, at Carman, as the first survey was made.

A WOMAN'S REVENGE.

Madge Heathcote was the only daughter of a widow, whose income was so slender that she was glad to find accommodation during the warm months for one or two city boarders. The summer in which our story opens their only boarder was Guy Travers, a wealthy young man, who had taken board with Mrs. Heathcote in the quiet little village of Glenmore for three months, which time he had spent in teaching Madge Heathcote to love him. Had any one asked him, he could not have told why he had done so, unless it was for amusement; her artless innocence was so refreshing—and—and—well, Madge Heathcote, "that tall, awkward girl," who would have been positively ugly but for her magnificent black eyes and luxuriant dark, wavy hair, possessed a greater charm for Guy Travers than older, fairer women had ever done.

Then after three months of perfect happiness to poor Madge, he told her he was going away, going, perhaps, never to return; he said she had made the time pass very pleasantly during his stop in the village, and when he returned to his city home, he should often recall "the pleasant days and the nice little girl at Glenmore."

That was all; he had held her in his arms and kissed her sweet red lips a hundred times; he had told her over and over again that she was the only woman he ever loved; and now he was going back to his city home, where he would condescend "to think sometimes of the nice little girl he had left behind him at Glenmore."

Guy Travers, with his handsome looks and soft, honeyed words, had broken the heart of many a sweet girl before he had met Madge Heathcote, but none of them had ever repelled him with the scorn and contempt that blazed from her dark eyes as she said:

"So this is the end! I was foolish to have expected anything better from you, I suppose?"

"What did you expect of me Madge?" he questioned. "You surely did not think I was going to marry you; if you did, I must say I am surprised at your lack of judgment."

"Guy Travers, I expected you to act as an honorable man; that was all. What right had you to win my love if you did not intend to marry me?"

"Madge!" He went over to where she was standing and attempted to put his arm around her in the old fond way, but she repulsed him angrily. "Madge," he repeated, "if you love me, darling, why do you speak in this cruel way? I'm very fond of you, little one—indeed I am—and would not hurt you by word or deed for anything in the world; you know that. But, my little darling you forget how different are our stations in life."

"Leave me!" she exclaimed. "Never let me see your cowardly face again!"

He laughed lightly but uneasily.

"Madge, be reasonable; you do not know what you are saying, my child; I have done you no harm."

"No," she answered passionately, "you have done me no harm; you have only broken my heart; but that is nothing. What difference can the breaking of one heart, more or less, make to Guy Travers? Guy Travers," she continued, turning fiercely toward him, "you came here this summer for your pleasure; and for your amusement you have wantonly broken my heart and spoiled my whole life. But I declare to you this day that as you have made me suffer, so you shall suffer. The God of the widow and orphan will never let you go unpunished."

She turned quickly from him with the words.

"Madge! Madge!" he called. You will not go without saying good-by? Let us at least part as good friends."

She turned her pale face toward him for a moment, as she scornfully echoed:

"Friends! friends! Guy Travers, I am your bitterest enemy, henceforth and forever!"

Guy Travers pulled his dark mustache fiercely, for in his way he loved this proud girl, who now cast his friendship aside with such contempt.

"Well," he said slowly, "I suppose this is the end. Am I sorry or the reverse?"

Ah! could he have penetrated the future he would have had little doubt on that subject.

The next day Guy Travers left Glenmore for his city home. He endeavored to see Madge, but she always succeeded in avoiding him; he was piqued and angry, and mentally he called her "a little fool" more than once.

After he had departed, Rhoda, the little waiting maid, gave Madge a letter "what Marse Guy dun lef' for her," and in the seclusion of her own room she opened it and read as follows:

My Darling—Why have you kept yourself out of my sight all this day—never giving me a good-by kiss or wishing me bon voyage? Is it that you are still angry with me? Silly child, you must forget that little scene of yesterday—forget that you ever loved me other than a chance friend—your mother's boarder—and be again your own dear little self. Some day you will thank me for what you now view in the light of a grievous wrong. Meantime, should you ever need a sincere friend—faithful and affectionate—you will find one in yours devotedly,

"Guy Travers."

An hour later Mrs. Heathcote found her daughter, white and senseless, prostrate on the floor, with this cruel missive at her feet.

That night and for many others Madge Heathcote tossed in a raging fever—brain fever the doctors pronounced it, and gave small hopes of her recovery. Mrs. Heathcote, sitting by her daughter's bedside, learned from her delirious [illegible] had suffered in [illegible] Madge Heath[illegible] and finally [illegible] as she began [illegible] worn out with constant watching and anxiety, gradually weakened, and in three months from the day Guy Travers had left them Madge was an orphan alone in the world.

"And for all this," she said bitterly, "I have to thank Guy Travers."

Then, with the few dollars remaining after all debts were settled, and her first love letter in her purse, she left her native village forever. The villagers shook their heads and looked grave whenever Madge Heathcote was mentioned.

* * * * *

Weak and weary Madge Heathcote arrived in New York, after a journey of sixteen hours. The next morning, after a scanty breakfast, she started to find her old music teacher, in the hope that he would be able to aid her in obtaining pupils; but her heart sank when, arriving at her destination, she was told that Professor Schwartz had been dead more than a year.

What was she to do now? She went from place to place, but without any success whatever. She was a stranger, alone and friendless, and in all that great, grand city there was no place for her.

"I will make one more effort," she said. "I will go to the great Signor de Lanza and ask him to aid me, and if I can but return to my poor lodging and make a fresh start to-morrow."

Asking the first policeman to direct her to the residence of the professor, she started thither. Signor de Lanza listened attentively while she told him the sad story of her poverty and utter friendlessness and her anxiety to earn an honest living.

When she had finished he requested her to let him hear her play, and seating herself at the piano she played a brilliant "fantasia," which he pronounced "well done."

"Well," she said, "let me sing something for you; I want to know if you think I could earn my living with my voice."

Then, after a few preliminary chords, she sang, with great expression, "Home, Sweet Home." The professor listened breathlessly. She began the second verse—and as the recollection of her dear old home and the mother she had lost came back to her, she burst into tears, and her head sank upon the keyboard. De Lanza was deeply moved. He went over to her, and placing his hand on the bowed head said earnestly:

"Signorina, you are friendless; let me be your friend; come and make your home with us. I have a young daughter who will be delighted to have a companion about her own age, and—Signorina, listen—in five years you can make your fortune with that magnificent voice. You have one of the finest voices I have ever heard in America."

"You can make my fortune in five years!" she repeated. "Are you sure?"

"As sure as that you and I are in this room; that is of course if you will put yourself entirely under my management," he answered.

A glad look crept into the weary black eyes, slight color into the pale cheeks, as she repeated over and over again to herself:

"A fortune in five years! It is a long time, but I can afford to wait."

* * * * * * *

"You really must go to the opera to-night, Guy; I don't believe you have heard Viola de Lanza yet; all New York is raving over her. She is quite the fashion."

Guy Travers had just returned from a three years' tour on the continent. He had forgotten all about that little episode in Virginia five years ago. In looks he had not altered one iota, but was the same handsome, careless fellow, and all his dear five hundred friends were glad to welcome him home again.

"Who is she—this Viola de Lanza?" he asked in a careless tone. "I do not remember of hearing of her abroad."

"No, she is a new star from Italy, I believe. Her father or uncle, I forget which, is her manager, and a deuced old bore he is, too, I can tell you; won't let a fellow look at her off the stage, much less speak to her."

"All right, I'll go with you and see our divinity," said Guy.

That night the Opera House was crowded to excess. When the singer appeared in all her regal beauty she was wildly applauded, and Guy Travers, as he looked at the graceful, rounded figure the dimpled white arms, the shapely hands and the glorious black hair piled high on the proud head, little thought that this queenly woman was the girl with whom he had trifled so heartlessly five years before.

The opera over, Jack Mordaunt presented himself at the stage door and sent in his card, asking permission to introduce to the signorina his friend Guy Travers. The signorina sent out her regrets, but she would be unable to see either gentleman that night. Night after night they received the same answer. "The signorina was very sorry, but she was too much fatigued," etc.

For three weeks Guy Travers was the first to enter the opera house and the last to leave it each night, and although his friends often chaffed him about being hard hit, and remarked his worn, haggard face, he was not the man to give up while there was the faintest shadow of a chance to win. On Viola de Lanza he had staked his all, even though it was reported that she was betrothed to Sir Maurice Conway, a wealthy English Baronet.

At last fortune favored him. At a grand dinner party he met her, and was supremely happy. She said she was delighted to meet him, as she had seen him so often at the opera house, but, of course, she did not know that he was the Mr. Travers whom Mr. Mordaunt wished to present, and she was so sweet and gracious that he was more infatuated than ever. The day she had so longed for had [illegible] she had waited, and now she would pay him back in his own coin. She invited him to call on her whenever he "had nothing else to do," and she would always make him welcome.

After this he was always near her; he walked with her, drove with her, and for three months he was her devoted slave. During this time he often saw Sir Maurice, but as Viola did not seem to notice him much he did not consider him a rival.

One evening he told her how dear she was to him; how he worshiped her, and how, if it would serve her, he would gladly lay down his life for her dear sake.

He took the dimpled hand and covered it with kisses; then he answered:

"Viola, my darling, until I saw you I never met a woman for whom I cared one iota."

"And when was that?" she questioned. "When did you see me first—remember, now, the very first time?"

"The night you appeared in 'Traviata,'" he replied.

"And you never loved any one before that? I can scarcely believe you," she said laughingly.

"Viola, darling, you have told me nothing of your life, and you know I am so eager to know everything about you, my queen."

"My early life would be scarcely interesting to you, Guy, as it was a very sad one," she replied; "and my career in public ends with this month. And you," she declared, "have told me nothing of yours. Come, Guy. I am your confessor to-night. Is there nothing in the past that you regret?"

"Confession is good for the soul," he quoth gayly. "No, my dearest, there is nothing I regret or repent of excepting that I did not meet Viola de Lanza years ago."

He had utterly forgotten Glenmore then. If he had only remembered that she might have had some pity, but now—

"Guy, you are sure you love me—no other woman in the world but me?"

"No other, so help me heaven!" he answered, solemnly. "Viola, when will you be my wife?"

"I will give you my answer to-morrow; I will write."

Then, as he could not induce her to say any more on the subject, he took his departure.

To-morrow! to-morrow! would it never come? He paced his room all the night through, and counted the hours which must elapse before he could receive the promised letter.

At last it came. He snatched it passionately, kissing the superscription over and over again; then he opened it, and out fell the old letter he had sent to the "nice little girl at Glenmore." It bore across the bottom, in her hand writing, these words:

I have bided my time. As I suffered then you must suffer now. This is the end.

Madge Heathcote,
Otherwise Viola de Lanza.

This was all; no, not all, for at his feet lay two cards—wedding cards—bearing the names of Sir Maurice Conway and Miss Madge Heathcote. This was her revenge.—San Francisco Call.

Ben Wade and the Restaurant Man.

Ben Wade, of Ohio, when he was elected President pro tempore of the Senate, enjoyed the privilege of appointing the keeper of the Senate restaurant. That establishment, elegantly fitted up in the basement story of the Senate wing of the Capitol, brilliantly lighted and supplied with coal and ice, was enjoyed rent free by the person fortunate enough to obtain it. It was customary, however, for him to send a good lunch every day to the Vice-President's room, without charge.

At the commencement of the July session of 1867, the restaurateur, hearing that he was to be superseded by a caterer from Cincinnati, called on Mr. Wade and said, obsequiously, "I am the keeper of the Senate restaurant, Senator." "Oh, yes," replied Mr. Wade, "you run the cook shop downstairs, don't you?" "Yes, sir," was the reply, with a low bow. "Well," said Mr. Wade, "what can I do for you, what do you want?" "I have called to express my wish, sir, that I can continue to keep the restaurant, and anything you want, sir, you have only to send a page downstairs, and it will be sent to you quick as a flash, without costing you a cent, sir."

Just then Mr. Wade appeared to recollect something, and looking at the man directly in the eye, said: "Oh, I don't want you to feed me; when I do I will pay for what I eat like other people. But listen: Complaint has been made to me that you don't treat the little pages fairly or kindly. They complain that they can't get anything to eat except expensive things, for which they have to pay a large price. Now, sir, just remember that these pages are our boys and you had better overcharge Senators, who are able to pay, than these little chaps who want to save all of their wages they can for their mothers. You must be civil and kind to these pages, sir, or I'll have you moved out of your cook shop and put in some one there who will treat the boys well."

The restaurateur promised that he would do so, and bowed his way out. Mr. Wade made inquiry of the pages from time to time, and found that they were civilly treated, and that lunches of reasonable cost were provided for them.—Ben: Perley Poore in Boston Budget.

From the Scottish-American Journal.

His lot is not without trials. Nobody in the kingdom is harder worked or undergoes more fatigue of a certain wearing sort than the Prince and Princes of Wales, and in a less degree the other members of the reigning family. They are not only deprived of all privacy, always in the world and before the world, always attended by persons of consequence and exposed to comment and criticism from fastidious tastes and censorious tongues, but they are dragged from one ceremony to another, from a gallery to a hospital, from a levee to a procession, from a dinner to a ball, till life must often become a weariness. Yet they must never fail to keep an engagement, and they are bound always to display the especial "politeness of kings"—punctually. They must be civil when they are worn out, and gracious when they are sleepy; they must remember the names and faces of the thousands to whom their recognition is an honour; for all this is their trade. They are trained to it from childhood. They do remember people; they are punctual and polite; all of which should be borne in mind for them when people carp and criticise. The Prince is personally popular among those who surround him closest. His invitations are an honour as well as a command, and when he visits a country house the list of the guests who are to meet him is submitted for his inspection.

Mrs. Lizzie Gurnee, a widow, has brought suit in Washington against William Voorhis of Nyack, ex-commodore of the New York Yacht club, for breach of promise of marriage, claiming $100,000 damages. The commodore positively denies the charge. Mrs. Gurnee is a fine-looking blonde of thirty-five, while Voorhis is quite old.

It was an old oriental doctrine that women had no souls. More enlightened philosophy concedes that they have purer, finer, more exalted souls than men. But they are too often contained in feeble, suffering bodies, which hamper and retard their full development. For all these painful ailments incident to the sex, Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" is the best specific in the world, and is sold under a positive guarantee that it will do all that is claimed for it. Price reduced to one dollar. By druggists.

A POPULAR EX-MAYOR.

Ex-Mayor Newton, of Des Moines, Ia., is deservedly popular in the city over whose destinies he presided, by reason of the many good deeds and the unostentatious acts of charity which he is constantly doing. Successful as a politician, he has also recently been playing the part of a good Samaritan with a success equal to his triumphs in politics. The fainting traveler by the wayside, whom he has raised up and refreshed by good counsel in the last instance, is Mr. George A. Crandale, the manager for Oberne, Hosick & Co., Second and Walnut streets. Mr. Crandale, who naturally feels under many obligations to the Ex-Mayor tells as follows how he came into such a wretched plight as to need help and how it was cheerfully given.

"I have never had an ache or pain of rheumatism," he said, "since I used Athlophoros and the medicine cost me only $3. If any one had guaranteed to cure me I would willingly have paid him $50, yes $100. My rheumatism was inflammatory, mostly in my ankles, but a little in the wrist. I could manage to hobble around by the use of canes, but felt as if I were walking on the bare bones, or in other words as if my feet were off and I was walking on the stumps. The pain was terrible to bear, yet I managed to be about and to attend to my business.

"One day during the time I was suffering so much, I hobbled to the Court House to look after some matter. As I was struggling to get up the steps I met ex-Mayor Newton, who asked me what the trouble was. I told him that it was rheumatism, whereupon he advised me to get a bottle of Athlophoros. I did not get it then, as I had no faith in patent medicines and did not want to take any. A short time after this I wrote to an old friend, Charles P. Griffin, of Stuart, to inquire what had cured him. I knew that he had been confined to his bed with rheumatism of the worst kind. His answer was: 'Get Athlophoros. That is what cured me.' I then got some, but really had no faith in its curing me. I began to get relief from it in twenty-four hours. I continued taking it until I had used three dollars worth, when my rheumatism, both the pain and the swelling, was gone, and I have not had any return since. This is now over a year ago."

Ex-Mayor Newton based his recommendation of Athlophoros to Mr. Crandale upon the very remarkable cure it had effected in the case of his wife. That lady thus tells about it:

"I have been comparatively free from rheumatism for the past year and a half. Previous to that I had been a great sufferer for years and had resorted to many remedies, but nothing would do what Athlophoros did for me. I have had a few twinges of late, but I attribute that to myself and not to the medicine, as I have not been so careful as I should have been. Athlophoros took the stiffness out of the joints of my fingers and gave me the use of my hands, in which I had so long had trouble. I have recommended it in many cases and in every instance that I know of the results have been very satisfactory. I do not hesitate in the least in recommending it most heartily to every rheumatic sufferer."

If you cannot get Athlophoros of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed. Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall street, New York.

STOP. Before subscribing for an agricultural paper, consider where it is published and whether the teachings are adapted to the latitude in which you live. Farming in the Northwest cannot be conducted as it is East and be successful. FARM, STOCK AND HOME, of Minneapolis, is edited by the farmers of the Northwest themselves, and is the best, most practical and reliable paper a farmer can have. It is printed twenty-four times a year for only 50 cents; or we will send it and a copy of the JOURNAL for one year for $1.50. [25-tf]

Mortgage Sale.

(First publication March 4, 1886.)

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Theophone Joly and Harriet, his wife, mortgagors, to Colonial and United States Mortgage Company, (Limited) mortgagee, dated the 17th day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 17th day of November, A. D. 1882, at one o'clock p. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 501, 502 and 503, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of six hundred and eighty-three dollars and twenty-five cents, ($683.25) besides the further sum of $27.81 paid for taxes upon the mortgaged premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy, on Friday, the 16th day of April, A. D. 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and provided by law.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section number thirty-three, (33) in township number one hundred and fifty, (150) in Range number forty-three (43) west of the 5th principal meridian, containing 160 acres.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication February 11th, 1886.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of six hundred and twenty-nine and 16-100 dollars ($629.16-100,) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Carl Kretzschmar, mortgagor, to William Massolt, mortgagee, bearing date the twenty-first day of August A. D. 1881, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 16th day of September A. D. 1881, at 2:15 o'clock p. m., in book "N" of mortgages, on page 511, and conveying and mortgaging the following described premises, lying and being in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The southwest quarter of the northeast quarter and the north half of the southeast quarter and the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of Section numbered three (3,) in Township numbered one hundred and fifty-one (151) north, of Range numbered forty-four (44) according to the United States Government survey, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises hereinbefore described and covered by said mortgage, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 2d day of April A. D. 1886, at 10:30 o'clock a. m., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by William Wylie and Mary Jane Wylie, mortgagors, to Edwin H. Pease, mortgagee, dated the 28th day of February A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-one and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of March A. D. 1881, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "D" of mortgages, on pages 291, 292 and 293, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of three hundred and ten dollars and seventy-three cents ($310.73,) and the sum of eighteen dollars and fifty-five cents ($18.55,) necessarily paid for taxes on said land, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and by and under the authority in said mortgage contained, the said assignee elects to and does declare and claim that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid, is due and payable.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Friday the 9th day of April A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, by the Sheriff of said county or his deputy duly appointed, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars ($25.00) attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-five (25,) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152,) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, according to the United States Government survey thereof.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication February 11th, 1886.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one thousand and forty one and 66-100 dollars ($1041.66-100,) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Louise Zalser and John Zalser, her husband, mortgagors, to William Massolt, mortgagee, bearing date the eleventh day of September A. D. 1884, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 22d day of September A. D. 1884, at 3:10 o'clock p. m., in book "R" of mortgages, on pages 440, 441 and 442, and conveying and mortgaging the following described premises, lying and being in said County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: Reserve "S" in the Townsite of Red Lake Falls, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County except the following described piece, to-wit: Beginning at the southeast corner of said Reserve "S," thence running two hundred feet west to the southwest corner of said Reserve "S," thence north on the west line of said Reserve "S" fifty feet, thence east two hundred feet thence south fifty feet to the place of beginning; and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises hereinbefore described and covered by said mortgage, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 2d day of April A. D. 1886, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

STOP. Before subscribing for an agricultural paper, consider where it is published and whether the teachings are adapted to the latitude in which you live. Farming in the Northwest cannot be conducted as it is East and be successful. FARM, STOCK AND HOME, of Minneapolis, is edited by the farmers of the Northwest themselves, and is the best, most practical and reliable paper a farmer can have. It is printed twenty-four times a year for only 50 cents; or we will send it and a copy of the JOURNAL for one year for $1.50. [25-tf]

Mortgage Sale.

(First publication March 4, 188[illegible].)

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Thilesphore Joly and Harriet, his wife, mortgagors, to Colonial and United States Mortgage Company, (Limited) mortgagee, dated the 17th day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand, eight hundred eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 17th day of November, A. D. 1882, at (one) o'clock p. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 501, 502 and 503, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of six hundred and eighty-three dollars and twenty-five cents, ($683.25) besides the further sum of $27.81 paid for taxes upon the mortgaged premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof. Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy, on Friday, the 16th day of April, A. D. 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and provided by law. The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold, are the piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section number thirty-three (33) in township number one hundred and fifty (150) in Range number forty-three (43) west of the 5th principal meridian, containing 160 acres. WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Dominique Payment, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to Colonial and United States Mortgage Company, (Limited,) mortgagee, dated the 24th day of June A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-one, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 25th day of June A. D. 1881, at 11:25 o'clock a. m., in book "E" of mortgages, on pages 43, 44, 45, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice the amount of four hundred and ninety-eight ($498) dollars, besides the further sum of $25.32 paid for taxes on the mortgaged premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Friday the 16th day of April A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and the taxes aforesaid, with interest thereon, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section number twenty-eight (28) in Township number one hundred and fifty (150) in Range number forty-three (43) west of the 5th principal meridian, containing 160 acres.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Henry Tiedemann and [illegible] Tiedemann, mortgagors, to The Beloit Savings Bank, mortgagee, dated the [illegible] day of April A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the [illegible] day of May A. D. 1882, at 10 o'clock a. m., in book "[illegible]" of mortgages, on pages 322 and 323, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the sum of seven hundred and sixty-four and 56-100 dollars, ($764.56-100,) and twenty-six and 82-100 dollars, ($26-82-100) paid for taxes by said mortgagee, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and under the power of sale in said mortgage contained, the said mortgagee elects to declare and claims that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid is due and payable.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy duly appointed on Saturday the first day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section two (2,) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-eight (48) west, containing one hundred and forty-six and 44-100 acres (146 44-100.)

The Buffalo Courier suggests as an improvement upon the public clock device for calling attention to a building that a huge thermometer be used with an illuminated register. This, if practicable, would be a good idea, as it would save people the trouble of tell each other the condition of the atmosphere.

The United States supreme court has decided that the property of corporations can not be exempted from state taxation by legislative authority, the court taking the ground that a previously existing legislature can not bind in this regard the action of succeeding legislative bodies. This is the promulgation of an important principle.

The Supreme Court of the United States, in an appeal from Tennessee, has determined a question, under the inter-State commerce powers of the general Government, whether the State could tax the Pullman sleeping-cars which run within and through the State. The lower Court decided that the State could not levy such a tax, and the Supreme Court of the United States affirmed that decision.

According to newspaper reports the Mormon missionaries are working very successfully among the "poor whites" of Alabama, many of whom, it is said, have embraced the Mormon faith to the ruin of their homes. From time to time protests have come to the United States from foreign governments against the labors of these pernicious missionaries abroad, but our government has not found itself able to check the mischief.

Hon. John L. Sullivan has been visiting Troy and Albany, where he was the lion of the day. When he met and shook hands with his ancient foeman Paddy Ryan, he exclaimed in tones of emotion: "Paddy, I never said you were a coward, and you know I never did." The meeting was so affectionate and touching that many of the spectators were affected to tears. It is indeed pleasant to know that harmony and peace reign between these two eminent scientists.

It is not long since that the remark to the effect that "cotton is king" was in common use. But this valuable crop has lost its position, and has fallen far behind in the race. The dairy has shot ahead of it considerably, and has a present value of at least double that of the cotton crop. The marketable proceeds of the dairy in 1880 amounted to more than $500,000,000, while the cotton crop was valued at $380,000,000. But in the estimate of the dairy products no account is taken of the domestic supply consumed by the 30,000,000 persons engaged directly or indirectly in agriculture, or by three-fifths of the population. If this were included the total value of the dairy would amount to fully $1,000,000,000 yearly, and would then stand easily ahead of any other special interest.

The grain producers of Russia, as a rule, have no knowledge whatever of prices at foreign markets, or even of those at Russian exporting ports. There are no grain elevators in Russia, and no grain stores in the interior of the country. At the railway stations and at the river wharves often there are not even rough sheds to protect grain from rain. Wheat in Russia is not thoroughly cleaned or properly sorted, and for all these reasons it never commands a price equal to that of English or American wheat. At London, for instance, Russian wheat usually sells 12c. below the English and the Australian, and about 10c. below the American wheat per bushel. As there are no grain elevators in Russia, so the loading and the unloading of wheat, costing from 8c. to 10c. per bushel, aside from retarding transportation considerably, consumes a large share of the profit of produstion.

The Washington Critic reports that the Chinese Minister to this country has been directed to demand from the United States the total disavowal of the Rock Springs affair, the condign punishment, capitally, if killing could be proved against individuals, and a pecuniary indemnity to sufferers for their losses, to be paid by the United States. This was the ultimatum. If the United States refused to comply with the demands, the President was to be informed that the Chinese Government would immediately proceed to collect the indemnity from American citizens in business in the imperial territory, and withdraw its protection from them, which meant that they would be notified to leave China at once.

General W. T. Sherman, in reply to a request for a contribution for the support of an aged and destitute female school teacher in St. Louis, pleaded heavy demands on his purse, and penned the sentiment that his wife, who is an intense Catholic, would no sooner consent to have her children enter a public school than a common tavern. Gen. Sherman ought to put a padlock on his mouth. He talks too much, and his best friends are not slow to recognize this fact.

General News Condensed.

VETOED.

The President Vetoes the Bill to Quiet the Title of the Des Moines River Land Settlers.

The president in the message, after describing the nature of the proposed legislation, says that every possible question that ought to be raised in any suit relating to these lands has been determined by the highest judicial authority, and if any substantial point remains unsettled, he believes there is no difficulty in presenting it to the proper tribunal. The president continues as follows:

It seems to me that all controversies which can hereafter arise between those claiming these lands have been fairly remitted to the State of Iowa, and that there they can be properly and safely left, and the government through its attorney general should not be called upon to litigate the rights of private parties. It is not pleasant to contemplate loss threatened to any party acting in good faith caused by uncertainty in the language of laws or their conflicting interpretation, and if there are persons occupying these lands who labor under such disabilities as to prevent them from appealing to the courts for a redress of their wrongs, a plain statute directed simply to a remedy for such disabilities would not be objectionable. Should there be meritorious cases of hardship and loss, caused by an invitation on the part of the government to settle upon lands apparently public, but to which no right or lawful possession can be secured, it would be better, rather than to attempt a disturbance of titles already settled, to ascertain such losses and do equity by compensating the proper parties through an appropriation for that purpose. Notwithstanding the fact that there may be parties in the occupancy of these lands who suffer hardships by the application of strict legal principles of their claims, safety lies in the non-interference by congress with matters which should be left to judicial cognizance; and I am unwilling to concur in legislation which, if not an encroachment upon judicial power, trenches so closely thereon as to be of doubtful expediency, and which at the same time increases the elements of litigation that have heretofore existed and endanger vested rights.

A Decision of the Land Commissioner Overruled.

Devil's Lake, Dak., Special:—James Brittin received a letter from Washington saying that Secretary Lamar had overruled Sparks' decision of last April in the Brittin case. About two years ago Brittin proved up on a premption claim near Devil's Lake and subsequently took a homestead in Towor county, upon which he proved up last year, after a bona fide residence of six months, and having valuable improvements, commuting the same by payment to the government of $1.25 per acre, by virtue of the homestead commutation law. Sparks struck a severe blow to rapid settlement and development upon all government lands in cancelling Britin's homestead proof, holding that having once used his pre-emption right, a settler could not commute a homestead entry by a cash payment, after six months' residence, and that no title could be acquired under a residence of five years. Happily, this being a test case, Brittin possessed sufficient means and pluck to appeal the case to the secretary. The result is hailed with great joy, as being in conformity with the law and every consideration of common sense and justice.

There is a bill before the house committee on the judiciary which provides: All manufacturers of boots and shoes who use in such articles paper or any other material except leather, and all dealers in such boots and shoes, shall cause them to be distinctly marked or branded, and invoiced as paper-soled boots or shoes, as the case may be. Its provisions are to apply only where said boots are manufactured for sale or are sold to citizens or other than citizens of the state in which they are made or to a citizen of a foreign country. Violation of the act is punishable by fine and imprisonment, the fine being placed at $50 to $500, and ten to one hundred days.

The debate on Dillwyn's motion in the commons brought out the fact that there is a strong leaning in parliament toward the serious consideration of the disestablishment of the Church of England. Many Libarals oppose the motion, not from lack of sympathy, but merely because it was an infraction of the pledge given by the government on assuming power not to deal with the church question in the present parliament. The Liberal press, however, reflecting the real opinion and purpose of the Liberal party, predict that disestablishment is certain to be considered in the next parliament and a bill passed severing the official connection between state and church.

Washington Special: The bill to allow Col. Steele of Dakota to buy section 16, which is a school section, in the town of Steele, on the Northern Pacific, has met with a terrific reverse. Col. Steele secured from the house committee on public lands and also from the senate committee favorable reports on a proposition to let him buy that section at $2.50 an acre, the fact being that he had settled on it supposing it was section 17, and he had put $20,000 worth of improvements on it. The other day Chairman Cobb, of the house committee on public lands, received a budget of affidavits from Steele going to show that Col. Steele knew he was settling on the wrong section, and did so with the intention of defrauding the government, etc., etc.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS

SENATE.—The debate on the report of the judiciary committee condemning the attorney general for refusing to send to the senate the papers in the case of United States Attorney Duskin of Alabama, was opened on the 9th by Senator Edmunds. The galleries were crowded with visitors who remained in their seats during the three hours Mr. Edmunds occupied the floor. Senators of both parties were generally in their places and gave marked attention to Mr. Edmunds. A large number of representatives came from the house shortly the discussion began and were assigned chairs to the rear of the senators' seats, the spaces on both sides of the chamber being well filled. Mr. Edmunds' speech throughout was free from that bitterness and sarcasm which sometimes marks Mr. Edmunds' political speeches. The only allusion to which the friends of the president could except were those in which Mr. Edmunds referred to the recent message of the president on this question as a supplement to the report of the minority of the judiciary committee. The speech is regarded as an able exposition of the Republican side of the controversy. The bill authorizing the Central Missouri Railroad company to bridge the Mississippi at Alton, Ill., passed. In executive session the following nominations were confirmed: S. S. Brooks, assistant treasurer, San Francisco; Charles P. Phelps, Vermont, second secretary of legation at London; Henry White, Maryland, secretary of legation at London; J. R. Rasin, naval officer at Baltimore; Jacob T. Childs, Missouri, minister and consul general at Siam; J. D. Kennedy, South Carolina, consul general at Shanghai.

HOUSE.—On behalf of the committee on labor Mr. James (N. Y.) called up the bill to prohibit any officer, servant or agent of the government to hire or contract out the labor of prisoners incarcerated for violation of the laws of the United States government. The bill was passed—yeas 249, nays 8. The bill requiring the Pacific railroads to pay the cost of surveying their lands and to take out patents thereto, passed. The house went into committee of the whole (Mr. Townshend in the chair) on the Indian appropriation bill.

SENATE.—Senator Pugh of Alabama, replied at length to the speech of Mr. Edmunds. Senator Miller introduced a bill requiring all manufacturers of and dealers in oleomargarine, butterine, lardine, etc., to display signs in a conspicuous place at their place of business indicating that they manufacture or sell such articles, imposing a special tax of $500 on manufacturers, $250 on wholesale dealers and $100 on retail dealers in such products, and requiring them to take out annual licenses to carry on such business under penalty of fine and imprisonment, and requiring all persons engaged in such business to keep books and enter therein accurate and detailed accounts of all imitation butter manufactured or sold by them. Such books to be subject at all times to the inspection of the treasury officials.

There was quite a breeze in the senate in which Senators Riddleberger and Logan were the prominent figures. Both got very much excited. Riddleberger referred to the publication of Eads' letter in the Record, and spoke of Logan as "Eads' representative on this floor." Logan immediately sprang to his feet, and turning to Riddleberger with flushed face and flashing eyes replied that the statement that he was the representative of any man or corporation on the floor of the senate was untrue. Riddleberger hastily explained that he meant that Logan was Eads' representative in the sense that any senator was the representative of any measure he introduced.

HOUSE.—The Seney bill to repeal the civil service law was reported adversely. The bill requiring the Northern Pacific company to pay the cost of surveying its lands was reported. The Indian appropriation bill was debated.

SENATE.—Mr. Hawley from the committee on civil service reported adversely Mr. Vance's bill for the repeal of the civil service law. Mr. Logan, from the minority of the committee on military affairs submitted the views of the minority members on the Fitz John Porter bill. It is the same report presented by the minority in the last congress, with the addition of Gen. Logan's letter in reply to Gen. Grant's article in the North American Review justifying the conduct of Fitz John Porter.

Mr. Wilson of Iowa spoke in opposition to the stand taken by the president in the matter of furnishing the senate papers concerning removals from office.

In executive session, the nomination of Richmond S. Dement to be surveyor general of Utah, was taken up. Dement is the man who some weeks ago came out with a story about frauds and bribery, and among other things charged that Senator Teller had received $25,000 for a speech he made in defense of the Mormons. The nomination was rejected by a viva voce vote and was so announced, when Gen. Logan arose and made a vigorous speech in behalf of his young friend and he was confirmed.

Mr. Sanford introduced resolutions, regarding the death of Senator Miller, which was adopted, and after an executive session the senate adjourned.

HOUSE.—The Indian appropriation bill was debated, the discussion being confined to the question of cattlemen occupying Indian lands in the Indian Territory.

SENATE.—On motion of Mr. Plumb, the senate resumed consideration of the bill to forfeit part of the lands granted to the State of Iowa in aid of railroads. Mr. Plumb opposed the amendment offered by Mr. Spooner, witholding from the operation of the act certain of the lands as to which a suit is now pending in the United States supreme court. The bill itself, Mr. Plump said, provided a perfectly impartial tribunal for the settlement of the rights of all claimants. The bill was a bill for peace. He feared the amendment might prove to be a Trojan horse. After debate, Mr. Spooner's amendment was agreed to; yeas, 32; nays, 18; and the bill then passed.

A bill was introduced by Senator Manderson providing for the sale of the site of Fort Omaha, Neb., the sale or removal of improvements thereon, and for a new site and the construction of suitable buildings.

HOUSE.—Mr. Weaver (Neb.) asked leave to offer the following:

Whereas, Nearly every congress embraces at least one crank; and, whereas, the present congress is no exception to this rule; and, whereas, it should not be in the power of an idiot, insane man or crank to prevent the consideration of any measures; therefore,

Resolved, That the rules of this house be so amended that it shall require at least two members to object to the consideration of a bill.

The reading of the resolution was greeted with applause, but Mr. Springer objected to it on the ground that it was not respectful in the house.

Mr. Swope, from the committee on invalid pensions, reported a bill granting a pension of $2,000 per year to the widow of Gen. W. S. Hancock. Private calendar. The report which accompanies the bill gives a brief resume of the services rendered to the country by Gen. Hancock, and closes:

Your committee, considering this one of the exceptional cases in which it becomes their duty to recommend a departure from ordinary precedent and policy, heartily and unanimously recommend the passage of the bill. The day's proceedings were of little interest, it being private bill day.

SENATE.—The senate agreed to a resolution to appoint Rev. J. G. Butler, D. D., of Washington chaplain. Among petitions presented and referred to committees were a number from local assemblies of Knights of Labor throughout the country, favoring the building of the Hennepin canal. Mr. Ingalls submitted a joint resolution proposing a constitutional amendment providing that April 30 shall be the day for the beginning of the successive administrations of the government, instead of March 4. A message from the house notified the senate of the death of Representative Hahn of Louisiana. On motion of Mr. Eustis, out of respect to the memory of the deceased the senate adjourned. Immediately after reading the journal the house adjourned out of respect to the memory of Mr. Hahn.

LOOK OUT FOR BOGUS BUTTER.

A Microscopic View of the Disgusting Impurities Which a Diet of Bogus Butter Contains.

The Results of a Careful and Prolonged Investigation by Prof. Nachtrieb, of the State University.

BOGUS BUTTER.

The manufacturers of butterine claim that it is certainly cleaner, and at least as wholesome as dairy butter. The old adage is that "seeing is believing," and the dairy commissioners of Minnesota want the people who eat butterine, the dealers who sell it contrary to law, and the lawyers who defend them in so doing, to see with their own eyes, aided by the microscope, the toothsome morsel which the law would prevent them from enjoying. The samples analyzed were bought of storekeepers in Minneapolis, and to the eye and taste were a superior article of butterine. The names of the dealers who sold it are withheld until it shall be announced in the courts as defendants for violating the law. In the meantime they are neither better nor worse than other men who sell or defend the sale of the abomination. People of Minnesota's fair cities, this is the delectable substance that graces your dining tables in the garb of wholesome butter? How do you like it? The analyses and drawings were made by one of your own respected citizens, in the name of the state and of the university, whose learning is employed to defend the people. What lesson does it teach? We answer: First, that the business of making and selling this imitation butter is nefarious. It is counterfeiting in its most dangerous form. It springs from cupidity, and is carried on by fraud. It displaces one of the most delicious and nourishing articles of food with a vile compound, which, if it had not stolen the honored name of butter, would be nameless, since no word has been framed to express its real substance or character. That five hundred men and ten cities of this great land may grow rich by fraud, three millions of farmers must be defrauded of an honorable business, and twenty millions of people of a wholesome food. That this object lesson may assist in arousing the people to the nature of this gigantic swindle, and to its purpose to override law if it cannot control it, this article is presented to the people of Minnesota by the state dairy commission.

W. O. RICE,
H. C. HOWARD,
Commission.

PROF. NACHTRIEB'S REPORT.

The following is an extract from the illustrated report of Prof. Nachtrieb, of the state university, to the dairy commission, of the samples of butterine given him for microscopical examination:

"The examination of these samples was by no means exhaustive, and they would probably yield much more than the accompanying figures indicate. The best and cleanest looking sample had a butter odor and taste; and would readily pass for butter. It had a very small variety of living organisms, but a great many spores which, under favorable conditions, I have no doubt would have germinated. It also contained masses of dead mould, bits of cellulous wood, various colored particles, shreds of hair, bristles, etc. The other two samples teemed with life and yielded microscopic preparations of the moulds and bacteria that would have gladdened the heart of the student of biology. The microscope revealed the fact that the greatest variety of life existed in the inner portion of these samples, and that the outer portions contained the greatest quantity of active bacteria. The animals found in the butterine belong to the type of protozoa. Doubtful portions of worms were also noticed. Many of the protozoa, under favorable conditions, pass into an encysted stage or develop spores within protected capsules, and in these conditions lie dormant till the environment is again favorable, and it can hardly be doubted that some of the many spores found in these butterines were merely in a dormant state. The great number and variety of organisms found in the samples, indicate the use of foul water and a criminal filthy process in making it. There can not be the slightest doubt that the person who eats so promiscuous and so lively a mixture as the butterine examined, is running great risk, morally as well as physically. The peace and happiness of future generations is greatly involved in the life of the present generation. By indulging in our homes articles of food filled with spores and seeds of the various classes of the lower organisms, we are increasing the dangers of parasitism. Spores that now are harmless, may, by gradual adaption through more or less circuitous routes, become inimical to the health and happiness of countless millions."

(F G) represents micrococci. Micrococci occur wherever there is a decomposition of organic matter. Some of those intimately related to specific diseases are the micrococci of smallpox, erysipelas and diphtheria. (h) is a small animal, balantidium coli, of which a tolerably good specimen was found. This animal was found nearly thirty years ago in the fæcal evacuation of two hospital patients suffering from chronic diarrhœa. Whether B. Coli was the cause or the accompaniment of the disease could not be decided by the limited number of observations. Later they were discovered in great abundance in the rectum of the hog. (h) represents the mouth.

Murderers Hanged In an Unconcious State.

New Orleans dispatch: Friday morning the 12th inst when the keepers made efforts to arouse Patrick H. Ford and John Murphy, the condemned murderers, they could not wake them up. After examination by physicians, they concluded that the men had taken belladonna. The governor received a telegram from Sheriff Butler of Orleans parish, saying:

Ford and Murphy attempted suicide this morning by swallowing poison. They are in a comatose condition. The doctors believe the attempt a failure, but cannot say how long it will take to restore them to consciousness. Should they not revive before the hour fixed, shall I excute the warrants notwithstanding?

The governor replied: "Yes, go on with the executions. Carry out the warrants." In view of the fact that the condemned had attempted suicide, Rev. Father O'Callahan, in accordance with the rules of the Catholic church, refused to administer the last sacrament to them.

At 12:30 the arms and legs of the men were pinioned, while they were still in a recumbent position. Six witnesses were sworn in by Sheriff Butler, and the death warrant was read to the senseless men. They were carried to the scaffold.

At 12:40, finding that the men were unable to sit in chairs, the ropes were lengthened somewhat in order to reach them as they lay in a half-recumbent position on the gallows. The rain last night caused the ropes to stretch, so that when the rope fell the men's feet touched the pavement. It only took a few minutes for the executioner, robed in his black domino and wire mask, to adjust the rope and black cap before he returned to his cell, followed almost instantly by a sharp "swish" of the axe as it cut the ropes. Then the bodies of Murphy and Ford shot through the air to come up with a sudden jerk. The drop was about eight feet. The bodies were allowed to hang twenty-five minutes and were cut down at 1:15. In Ford's vest pocket was found the following letter:

New Orleans, March 11—at Night.—To the good Sisters of Mercy and all my religious friends: I cannot bear the terrible disgrace I bring on my innocent offspring. I don't deserve this terrible ending. My enemies have triumphed this time. Baker and Cunningham; I leave you my curse; to the balance my blessing. I have been despondent to-day. I will answer all to my God. Good friends Dr. Holland and C. H. Parker, it is your turn next. Dear Sisters, forgive me. Good-bye. P. H. FORD.

Loss of a Splendid Ocean Steamer.

The splendid and fast steamer Oregon which cost over a million of dollars, and had over 800 persons on board, was run into by a schooner below New York. She commenced sinking at once. Part of her passengers were transferred to a pilot boat and part to a schooner, and it is believed that they were all subsequently transferred to a steamer. One of the passengers states that the hole was so large that one could drive a horse and wagon through it; also that when the vessels collided it sounded like the report of an ordinary cannon. The boats were, after some difficulty, manned and lowered into the water. The ladies were first to go into the boats. There were 600 bags of mail, and only 73 were recovered. It was 8 hours from the time of the collision to the time when the captain of the Oregon reached the deck of the pilot boat. The Oregon had settled low in the water, and soon after the captain had gained the pilot boat he saw his magnificent ship go down before his eyes. The Oregon filled rapidly and went down head first in about twelve fathoms of water. The upper parts, main, mizzen and jigger masts remained above water. The schooner that the Oregon crashed into was seen in the wake of the steamship for a moment after the collision, her bow and all her head gear wrecked. Then she disappeared. It is supposed that she sank, and that all her people were lost. The passengers of the Oregon were taken back to New York, from where they started the evening previous with high hopes of a pleasant voyage.

Lee Newton of Yucatan committed suicide at Houston, while drunk, by taking laudanum and "rough on rats." He leaves a large family, and was one of the early settlers of Houston county.

The residence of John Kalke, in North Stillwater, caught fire and burned down, together with the contents, in less than an hour, the loss being $700 on house and $300 on contents.

A young man who came to Luverne some time in January quickly worked himself into the society of the town, especially among the young men of the place. He dressed well, but not expensively, and as he was very free with his money soon got to be quite a favorite. It now transpires that he was a detective who had been employed to ferret out evidence to be useful in a sensational divorce suit which will be tried at the next term of court.

The following patents have recently been issued to citizens of Minnesota: Emil R. Drover, Stillwater, centrifugal; P. Hackler, Minneapolis, lubricator; J. M. Schurtz, Minneapolis, belt gearing for roller mills; B. F. Sheldon, Red Wing, potter's wheel; C. L. Muller, Humboldt, car coupling; C. L. Rudd, Lake City, portable folding hammock stand; W. M. Allyn, Hastings, wooden barrel; W. H. Bigelow, Worthington, fence building machine. C. L. Dewey, Minneapolis, excavating apparatus; G. P. Fuller, Minneapolis, washboard; J. Martin, Minneapolis, blind slat adjuster; S. J. Miller, Minneapolis, carpet cleaning reel; C. L. Travis, Minneapolis, carpet sweeping machine.

The residence of John Whalen, three miles south of Stillwater, was destroyed by fire, the loss being $500, with no insurance.

It is said the Northwestern will at once begin work upon the construction of its Zumbrota line to St. Paul, via Red Wing.

The town of Lake Shore, Lac qui Parle county, voted against bonding the town in aid of the Duluth, Huron & Denver road.

William De Lacy of Getty died suddenly of heart disease. He lived a bachelor's life. About $1,600 was found on his person.

The general store of Sommermeyer & Huebener at Marietta burned. Loss not known; insurance, $15,000.

G. N. Miller and T. Evans are arrested, charged with the assassination of Coleman and Patton at Seattle.

Cyrus Field wants indemnity from the State of Massachusetts because his bid for New York & New England road securities was rejected.

The Knights of Labor in St. Louis make a proposition for a conference with the Gould Southwest companies.

The Washington conference of the M. E. church meets in Charleston, W. Va., Bishop Ninde presiding.

Mrs. E. C. Emerson of Rochester, N. Y., died a few days ago, as was supposed, in great poverty. Investigation shows she was worth $160,000. There is said to be a romantic history connected with her life.

William M. Ireland, general grand secretary of the Scottish Rite of the Southern jurisdiction, has resigned on account of ill health.

George W. Childs denies that he ever advanced $250,000 to Mr. Pulitzer, of the New York World, nor was he asked to do so.

William P. Davis has been elected clerk and treasurer of the town of Yarmouth, Mass., for the forty-second time.

Daniel A. Kimbark, for 22 years associated with the iron interests of Chicago, died recently.

The Dime Savings bank of New Brunswick, N. J., is in trouble. Arthur G. Ogilvie, the secretary and treasurer, it is rumored, is short in his accounts.

Political Aspirants.

Candidates for the various State offices begin to bob up serenely. The time for disappearing, for many of them, will be about convention time. W. W. Hartley, of Brainerd, is mentioned for State Auditor. W. W. is one of the progressive men of the times and, should he be able to command influence enough to get the nomination and election, would fill the position acceptably. A number of aspirants for Sam Nichols' shoes are on deck; the most likely one in the outfit is J. D. Jones, a rising young attorney of Long Prairie, Todd County, whose friends are doing more pushing for him than he is for himself. He has held many offices of trust in Todd County, made an enviable reputation for himself as prosecuting attorney in a murder trial a few years since, and has been Secretary of the Senate a number of times. His reputation is A No. 1, and his extensive acquaintance in the State will give him an advanage not possessed by every one. He deserves, and should have the earnest, united support of the entire Northwest. For State Treasurer editor Bobleter "bobs" up serenely. He is a German in whom is no guile, and evidently expects that his location in the southern part of the State will render him invulnerable, but Minneapolis says: "Hush, we want that possish!" so Bob will not go out of the south solid, while the whole Northwest to a man will demand her man, O. H. Lucken, the present County Treasurer of Polk County, and the best County Treasurer in the State. He is a man whose only fault (if fault it is) is that he has not money enough to buy an office with, and he is too much of a man to do that if he was able. This is a case where the office seeks the man, and Lucken is the man for the office. The office of Attorney General would fit our eloquent friend, M. E. Clapp, of Fergus Falls. Arctander once told the writer that he claimed that office by right of discovery and was bound to have it, but that was last summer and Arctander seems to have forgotten all about it; anyhow, he has weakened, and we don't hear any more about it. The Pioneer Press says that our own Senator, Steenerson, will drop into the position like an over-ripe chestnut, if the Bull-dog Kelley case drops on the right side of the fence. There is no doubt that he could handle the business in a satisfactory manner should he be called upon to assume the duties of the position. As to the Gubernatorial question that seems to be largely a matter of doubt, and all of the old scheming politicians seem to be as afraid as death of "the mysterious man of the woods" watching him like a cat would a mouse, and in terribly hot water because they can't find out what he is going to do about it, while he is too busy choppin' cord-wood at 75 cents per cord and find himself," to go down and inform 'em as to his intentions. It is said that the present incumbent is not averse to accepting another term, but we are mistaken if he, and those who made their money out of the sweat and toil of the poor man, are not the only ones who covet a continuation of the present dynasty. We suppose he has done the best he knows how, but where in a single instance has that helped the farming community, the laboring man? Capital has no reason to complain of Governor Hubbard's course, and if capital could dictate, we presume he could get there again. If he had cared a straw for the rights of labor, he could have convened the Legislature and given the Northwest its due representation, but in that case capital would have been in great danger of losing its grip on the State government. Of course that would not do! If our Governor had cared a straw for the rights of a freeman, though poor, it would have been just the thing to do. The only way that Hubbard can expect to get back is through his failure to do justice to the Northwest; of course the southern politicians owe their continued control to Hubbard, and should reward him in some way; but if the farmers down there are wise they will have a voice in that matter, and should unite on any other man that has been mentioned. The old wheel horses ought to be given a rest and some intelligent farmer called to the helm this time. These old-time schemers need, really need to rest their active, busy brains awhile, and an entirely new set of men should be called upon to run the State affairs, men who will not spend all their time devising and fostering schemes to make the rich man richer and the poor man poorer. Is it reasonable to suppose the Sovereign State is powerless to protect its meanest inhabitant in his rights? Can any intelligent man pretend to say that this thing has been done? Can any one point to a single effort that Governor Hubbard ever made to do it? There is but one real issue at stake in this campaign and that issue is to secure men who will give equal justice to all. Cliques and factions have run this State too long, and through this means built up systems that are crushing the life out of the farming interests—making the rich richer, and the poor poorer. The only real issue at stake is "how to change the program."

O. M. Holmes, the Gazette man, went south on Thursday to take the wife and little one to Minneapolis for a bit of a visit. O. M. expects a boom of large sized proportions during the coming summer. If the Manitoba starts for Duluth and the D. & M. from Lake Park, it will have a tendency to wake things up.

Thirteenth National Conference of Charities and Corrections.

The thirteenth national conference of Charities and Correction, will meet at St. Paul, Minnesota, on Thursday, July 15th, 1886, and remain in session until Wednesday the 21st. The meetings will be held in the hall of the House of Representatives. The conference will be welcomed by Governor Hubbard, of Minnesota, by the Mayor of the city of St. Paul, and the President of the Chamber of Commerce.

The object of the conference is "to obtain and to diffuse information respecting benevolent, charitable, penal, and reformatory work, embracing the care and cure of the insane; the saving and the protection and reformation of children and youth; the whole subject of prison management and reform; the education and the care of the blind, the deaf and dumb, and the feeble-minded; the prevention and cure of pauperism; the management of work-houses and poor-houses; in fact every means devised for ameliorating the condition of the defective, dependent and delinquent classes of our fellow-beings. Papers on the different topics will be presented by distinguished men, supposed to be the best informed in the country on the subjects discussed. Practical men will be persent in large numbers, who have devoted years, perhaps a lifetime, to the study of a specialty. Theories will be tested by the light of experience. The best methods are thus discovered; and every advantage is given to those desirous of improving existing institutions, or founding new ones."

The national conferences have steadily increased in importance and usefulness. The twelfth, held in Washington, D. C., last year, was attended by 400 delegates, and 35 States were represented. The indications are that the thirteenth will be still larger. Several of the Governors of the States have expressed their intention to be present.

All benevolent, charitable, penal and reformatory institutions throughout the United States are entitled to send delegates. The trustees and officers of such institutions, county commissioners, sheriffs and members of legislatures are cordially invited to attend.

The conference has no legislative or executive power; and does not formally express any united opinion upon the subjects discussed. Opportunity will also be offered for private consultations among those especially interested in particular subjects, and every facility will be given for imparting and receiving information.

The railroads will return members of the conference on certificate at one-fifth fare to points in Minnesota, Dakota, Iowa and Wisconsin, provided they pay full fare one way. Rates on other railroads will be announced later.

The hotels of St. Paul offer excellent accommodations at from $1.50 per day up. Good boarding houses will furnish even lower rates.

Letters of inquiry addressed to H. H. Hart, St. Paul, Secretary Local Executive Committee, will be cheerfully answered.

Pioneer Press:

If Senator Steenerson, the able constitutional lawyer of Crookston, gets through with the Bull Dog Kelley case before the political campaign is well under way, his friends will undoubtedly make an effort to secure him the nomination for Attorney General. At least his name is frequently mentioned. Steenerson made a good record in the Legislature, and is a popular fellow. One thing is certain, however, if Steenerson can arrange to have Gebhart Willrich and Pat Conley elected delegates, and secure their appointment as a committee to nominate a candidate for Attorney General, he may wager all his available wealth that he can at least lay out Fayette Marsh, of Stillwater, who is a formidable aspirant for the position.

Rules of Lent.

The official regulations for the observance of Lent by the Catholic diocese of St. Paul, are thus promulgated by Bishop Ireland:

1. All the days of Lent, except Sundays are fast-days precept.

2. The precept of fasting implies the abstaining from food except at one meal in the day, excluding also therefrom the use of flesh meat.

3. By Apostolic dispensation, however, the use of flesh meat is allowed on all days except the Wednesday and Friday of each week, the Saturday of Ember week and the last four days of Lent.

4. Both fish and flesh meat are not to be used at the same meal.

5. The use of lard in preparing food is allowed except on Ash Wednesday and Good Friday.

6. A collation not exceeding the fourth part of an ordinary meal may be taken in the evening; fish, butter, cheese and eggs may be used in the collation. Custom permits, also a cup of coffee, tea or thin chocolate with a small morsel of bread to be taken in the morning.

7. The precept of fasting is binding under pain of grievous sin. For special reasons the following classes of persons are exempt from the obligations of the fast on one meal: First, young persons (under the age of 21) and those advanced in years; second, infirm; third, those who are engaged in hard labor or exhausting duties; fourth, women who are in a state of pregnancy or nursing children.

Those who excuse themselves or seek exemption from this obligation, should satisfy their consciences that their indisposition to fasting is owing to real inability and not to a spirit of self-indulgence. In all cases of doubt they should advise with their pastor, and all who are exempt should endeavor to supply, as far as they can, the non-observance of the fast, by other penitential recollection, and to acts of sorrow and compunction for sin, agreeably with the spirit of the church in this holy season.

8. The precept abstinence from flesh meat is binding on all except young children and the sick.

9. Persons refraining from fasting by reason of infirmity, hard labor, etc., may use meat at all meals on those days for which abstainence is not enjoined.

By special indult the use of flesh meat is again allowed on the Saturday throughout the year, except when a fast day falls on a Saturday.

Pastors will hold special exercises of devotion in their several churches at appointed times during Lent. Instructions of a practical character upon the christian duties, the nature of the sacraments and the preparation for their due reception, should be given on those occasions.

We recommend earnestly for all Friday evenings in Lent the devotion of the Way of the Cross.

JOHN IRELAND,
Bishop of St. Paul.

St. Paul, March 1, 1886.

The Western Rural and Stockman.

Among the very best breeds of dairy cattle that has ever been produced are the black and white cattle formerly known under the names of Holstein and Friesian but now called Holstein-Friesian. The exact orgin of these cattle is a matter of speculation, but unquestionably they are of remote origin. Holland was early noted for its interest in cattle, and possessing some of the finest pasture in the world, it produced in the seventeenth century what the historian, Mr. Motley, describes as the most famous cattle in the world. Butter and cheese were made in immense quantities and were largely exyorted. A historian writing in 1350 in speaking of a certain siege says that the besieged could only receive their butter from Holland which had been famous for its dairy products for five hundred years. Thus Holland shows a long history in attention to the dairy, and as there is no dispute as to her being largely indebted to Holstein for superior cattle, the name of Holstein became attached to the Dutch cattle. Just at what period a systematic improvement of Holland cattle began, which has resulted so grandly in the establishment of the present Holstein-Friesian breed, it is impossible to say, but we have no doubt at all that it was very remote. These cattle are now, and long have been possessed of the fixed characteristics of a breed. The name Friesian was applied to the same cattle that the name Holstein designated, and for a time there were two associations and two herd books in this country, but the two interests were consolidated in 1885, and the name of the Association is now the Holstein-Friesian Breeders' Association and the here book bears the double name.

The cattle found their way into the United States many years ago, but no systematic importation was entered upon until during the first quarter of the past century. Mr. William Jarvis, of Vermont, whose name is intimately associated with the early importation of Merino sheep, imported a bull and two cows about the first of the century, but after breeding these cattle for several years, the blood became entirely lost in the native stock. Herman LeRoy, a resident of New York city, imported a number of these cattle between the years of 1820 and 1825. A few years later a son of this gentleman, Edward A. LeRoy, who was a farmer in New York State, took some of his father's herd to his farm, and both father and son bred them for several years. They were described as being extraordinary milkers, and as possessing the same marks that the Holstein-Friesian of to-day possesses. They were finally crossed, however, with other cattle, and the purity of blood was lost in both herds. In 1852 Winthrop W. Chenery, of Boston, imported one cow. She proved to be such an excellent animal that Mr. Chenery was induced to import a bull and two more cows in 1857, and two years later he imported four more cows. In 1859-60 this herd, with the exception of a young bull, was destroyed by the State authorities, for the purpose of stamping out the "cattle plague," which had attacked it. But Mr. Chenery was not discouraged, and in 1861 he made another importation of one bull and four cows, and has continued to breed these cattle successfully to the present time. Mr. Chenery's stock originally came from Beemster and Purmurend in the province of North Holland. Since the dates named the importations have greatly increased, and the Holstein-Friesian cattle are imported and bred by as enterprising and conscientious a class of men as can be found in the live stock business. They have seen their favorities secure a proud position in the estimation of the public, and know that for milk production a superior cow does not exist. They have also seen a Holstein—Mercedes, owned at the time by Thos. Wales, Jr.—acknowledged to be the champion butter cow of the world, her record of thirty days being 99,6½ pounds. There have been other remarkable butter records by these cows, and their importers and breeders claim that they will make as much butter as any other breed. Certainly they will produce more milk. They are the largest breed of dairy cows that we have, and though rather angular, like all the better milk producing cows tohy produce considerable beef, and are probably as near a general purpose cow as can be found.

Mortgage Sale.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Henry J. Allardt, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to Wesley Light, mortgagee, dated the 28th day of July A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-five, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 30th day of July A. D. 1885, at 8:20 o'clock a. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on page 52, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of four hundred and twenty-three and 77-100 ($423.77-100) dollars, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the front door of the Court-House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on Saturday the 24th day of April A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interests thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: Lots four (4) and five (5), of Block twenty-two (22), of the Townsite of Carman, Polk County, Minnesota, according to the recorded plat thereof on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said county.

Dated March 4th, 1886.

Can any one point to a single effort that Governor Hubbard ever made to do it? There is but one real issue at stake in this campaign and that issue is to secure men who will give equal justice to all. Cliques and factions have run this State too long, and through this means built up systems that are crushing the life out of the farming interests—making the rich richer and the poor poorer. The only real issue at stake is how to change the program.

O. H. Holmes, the Gazette man, went south on Thursday to take the wife and little one to Minneapolis for a bit of a visit. O. H. expects a boom of [illegible] proportions during the coming summer. If the Manitoba [illegible] and the D. & M. from [illegible] [illegible]

Thirteenth National Conference of Charities and Corrections.

The thirteenth national conference of Charities and Correction, will meet at St. Paul, Minnesota, on Thursday, July 15th, 1886, and remain in session until Wednesday, the 21st. The meetings will be held in the hall of the House of Representatives. The conference will be welcomed by Governor Hubbard, of Minnesota, by the Mayor of the city of St. Paul, and the President of the Chamber of Commerce.

The object of the conference is to obtain and to diffuse information respecting benevolent, charitable, penal, and reformatory work, embracing the care and cure of the insane; the saving and the protection and reformation of children and youth; the whole subject of prison management and reform; the education and the care of the blind, the deaf and dumb, and the feeble-minded; the prevention and cure of pauperism, the management of work-houses and poor-houses; in fact every means devised for ameliorating the condition of the defective, dependent and delinquent classes of our fellow-beings. Papers on the different topics will be presented by distinguished men, supposed to be the best informed in the country on the subjects discussed. Practical men will be persent in large numbers, who have devoted years, perhaps a lifetime, to the study of a specialty. Theories will be tested by the light of experience. The best methods are thus discovered, and every advantage is given to those desirous of improving existing institutions, or founding new ones.

The national conferences have steadily increased in importance and usefulness. The twelfth, held in Washington, D. C., last year, was attended by 400 delegates, and 35 States were represented. The indications are that the thirteenth will be still larger. Several of the Governors of the States have expressed their intention to be present.

All benevolent, charitable, penal and reformatory institutions throughout the United States are entitled to send delegates. The trustees and officers of such institutions, county commissioners, sheriffs and members of legislatures are cordially invited to attend.

The conference has no legislative or executive power, and does not formally express any united opinion upon the subjects discussed. Opportunity will also be offered for private consultations among those especially interested in particular subjects, and every facility will be given for imparting and receiving information.

The railroads will return members of the conference on certificate at one-fifth fare, to points in Minnesota, Dakota, Iowa and Wisconsin, provided they pay full fare one way. Rates on other railroads will be announced later.

The hotels of St. Paul offer excellent accommodations at from $1.50 per day up. Good boarding houses will furnish even lower rates.

Letters of inquiry addressed to H. H. Hart, St. Paul, Secretary Local Executive Committee, will be cheerfully answered.

Pioneer Press.

If Senator Steenerson, the able constitutional lawyer of Crookston, gets through with the Bull-Dog Kelley case before the political campaign is well under way, his friends will undoubtedly make an effort to secure him the nomination for Attorney General. At least his name is frequently mentioned. Steenerson made a good record in the Legislature and is a popular fellow. One thing is certain, however, if Steenerson can arrange to have Gebhart Willrich and Pat. Conley elected delegates and secure their appointment as a committee to nominate a candidate for Attorney General, he may wager all his available wealth that he can at least lay out Fayette Marsh of Stillwater, who is a formidable aspirant for the position.

Rules of Lent.

The official regulations for the observance of Lent by the Catholic diocese of St. Paul, are thus promulgated by Bishop Ireland:

1. All the days of Lent, except Sundays are fast days precept.

2. The precept of fasting implies the abstaining from food except at one meal in the day, excluding also therefrom the use of flesh meat.

3. By Apostolic dispensation, however, the use of flesh meat is allowed on all days except the Wednesday and Friday of each week, the Saturday of Ember week and the last four days of Lent.

4. Both fish and flesh meat are not to be used at the same meal.

5. The use of lard in preparing food is allowed except on Ash Wednesday and Good Friday.

6. A collation not exceeding the fourth part of an ordinary meal may be taken in the evening. Fish, butter, cheese and eggs may be used in the collation. Custom permits also a cup of coffee or tea or thin chocolate with a small morsel of bread to be taken in the morning.

7. The precept of fasting is binding under pain of grievous sin. For special reasons the following classes of persons are exempt from the obligation of the fast or one meal: First, young persons (under the age of 21) and those advanced in years; second, [illegible]; third, those who are engaged in [illegible] or exhausting duties; fourth, women who [illegible] or nursing children. [illegible] exemption from this obligation, should satisfy their consciences that their indisposition to fasting is owing to real inability and not to a spirit of self-indulgence. In all cases of doubt they should advise with their pastor, and all who are exempt should endeavor to supply, as far as they can, the non-observance of the fast by other penitential recollection, and to acts of sorrow and compunction for sin, agreeably with the spirit of the church in this holy season.

8. The precept abstinence from flesh meat is binding on all, except young children and the sick.

9. Persons refraining from fasting by reason of infirmity, hard labor, etc. may use meat at all meals on those days for which abstainence is not enjoined.

By special indult the use of flesh meat is again allowed on the Saturday throughout the year, except when a fast day falls on a Saturday.

Pastors will hold special exercises of devotion in their several churches at appointed times during Lent. Instructions of a practical character upon the christian duties, the nature of the sacraments and the preparation for their due reception, should be given on those occasions.

We recommend earnestly for all Friday evenings in Lent the devotion of the Way of the Cross.

JOHN IRELAND,
Bishop of St. Paul.

St. Paul, March 1, 1886.

The Western Rural and Stockman.

Among the very best breeds of dairy cattle that has ever been produced are the black and white cattle formerly known under the names of Holstein and Friesian but now called Holstein-Friesian. The exact orgin of these cattle is a matter of speculation, but unquestionably they are of remote origin. Holland was early noted for its interest in cattle, and possessing some of the finest pasture in the world, it produced in the seventeenth century what the historian, Mr. Motley, describes as the most famous cattle in the world. Butter and cheese were made in immense quantities and were largely exported. A historian writing in 1350 in speaking of a certain siege says that the besieged could only receive their butter from Holland, which had been famous for its dairy products for five hundred years. Thus Holland shows a long history in attention to the dairy, and as there is no dispute as to her being largely indebted to Holstein for superior cattle, the name of Holstein became attached to the Dutch cattle. Just at what period a systematic improvement of Holland cattle began, which has resulted so grandly in the establishment of the present Holstein-Friesian breed, it is impossible to say, but we have no doubt at all that it was very remote. These cattle are now, and long have been possessed of the fixed characteristics of a breed. The name Friesian was applied to the same cattle that the name Holstein designated, and for a time there were two associations and two herd books in this country, but the two interests were consolidated in 1885, and the name of the Association is now the Holstein-Friesian Breeders' Association, and the herd book bears the double name.

The cattle found their way into the United States many years ago, but no systematic importation was entered upon until during the first quarter of the past century. Mr. William Jarvis, of Vermont, whose name is intimately associated with the early importation of Merino sheep, imported a bull and two cows about the first of the century, but after breeding these cattle for several years, the blood became entirely lost in the native stock. Herman Le Roy, a resident of New York city, imported a number of these cattle between the years of 1820 and 1825. A few years later a son of this gentleman, Edward A. LeRoy, who was a farmer in New York State, took some of his father's herd to his farm, and both father and son bred them for several years. They were described as being extraordinary milkers, and as possessing the same marks that the Holstein-Friesian of to-day possesses. They were finally crossed, however, with other cattle, and the purity of the blood was lost in both herds. In 1852 Winthrop W. Chenery, of Boston, imported one cow. She proved to be such an excellent animal that Mr. Chenery was induced to import a bull and two more cows in 1857, and two years later he imported four more cows. In 1859-60 this herd, with the exception of a young bull, was destroyed by the State authorities for the purpose of stamping out the "cattle plague," which had attacked it. But Mr. Chenery was not discouraged, and in 1861 he made another importation of one bull and four cows and has continued to breed these cattle successfully to the present time. Mr. Chenery's stock originally came from Beemster and Purmerend in the province of North Holland. Since the date named the importations have greatly increased, and the Holstein-Friesian cattle are imported and bred by as enterprising and consummate a class of men as can be found in the live stock business. They have [illegible] in the estimation of the public and [illegible] for milk production a superior cow does not exist. They have also [illegible] a Holstein [illegible] owned at the time by [illegible] [illegible] been other remarkable butter records by these cows, and their importers and breeders claim that they will make as much butter as any other breed. Certainly they will produce more milk. They are the largest breed of dairy cows that we have, and though rather angular, like all the better milk-producing cows tohy produce considerable beef, and are probably as near a general purpose cow as can be found.

Mortgage Sale.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Henry J. Allard, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to Wesley Light, mortgagee, dated the 28th day of July, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-five, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 30th day of July A. D. 1885, at 8:20 o'clock a. m. in book "T" of mortgages on page 52, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice the amount of four hundred and twenty-three and 77-100 ($423.77-100) dollars, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Saturday the 24th day of April, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota and known and described as follows to-wit: Lots four (4) and five (5) in block twenty-two (22) of the Townsite of Carman, Polk County, Minnesota, according to the recorded plat thereof on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said county.

Dated March 4th, 1886.

CROOKSTON, MINN., MARCH 18.

MENT-HER, MINN., MARCH 9, '86.

EDITOR JOURNAL.—Town election has come and gone, with it little pains and troubles, with nobody seriously hurt or disabled. The result before election was somewhat uncertain as there were two party tickets in the field and both claimed their ticket was to be the one elected. The result is reported as follows: Supervisors, W. W. Attix, chairman, C. C. Marston, Mr. Quesnel. Town Clerk, E. E. Abbott. Treasurer, F. S. Hayes. Assessor, C. M. Benson. Justice, G. M. Swift. Constable, F. Holcomb.

Several of our inhabitants have been seriously ill and Dr. Clark is kept busy patching up the ailing ones.

W. H. Dugdale is about moving into our neighborhood again, he can't learn to get along without us.

Dumas is doing a rushing business in the fish business and is getting a large stock on hand for the Lent season.

H. S. Attix has rented his farm to Chester Smith for the season. Smith was married a few months ago and now proposes to try farming and we hope that he may succeed.

Our people here are keeping up with the world by taking one or more agricultural papers, such as Farm Stock and Home, for which there was about 80 subscribers at our post office last year, and now are gladly accepting the great offer of Mr. Edwin Webb, of the Fargo Pub. Co., the paper and 50 cents worth of garden seeds for one year, for only 50 cents, several have subscribed and such a class of reading as THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL gives to keep us on the track "paper railroads and sich" and who says the Polk Co., farmers won't ride out OK to Duluth yet?

MENT-HER.

Great Scott! If you want to see a wholesale stock of heavy goods, go to the New York Store. They show the largest line of silks in the city; also dress gooods, dress flannels, tricots etc., and at much lower prices than ever.

Mortgage Sale.

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Wenzel E. Newes, and Augusta M. Newes, his wife, mortgagors, to the Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, a corporation duly organized and acting under the laws of the State of Minnesota, mortgagee, which mortgage bears date the 9th day of November A. D. 1883, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 5th day of January A. D. 1884, at 11:20 o'clock a. m., in book "P" of mortgage deeds on pages 192, 193 and 194, and whereas said mortgage was executed to secure the payment of the sum of one thousand dollars with interest, from date on the sum of four hundred and fifty dollars, at the rate of ten per cent per annum, and also to secure the sum of five dollars per month as and for the monthly contribution on five shares of the capital stock of said Association then owned by the said Wenzel E. Newes, said interest and said dues being payable on the first Saturday of each and every month after the date of said mortgage according to the conditions of a certain bond for the sum of two thousand dollars executed and delivered by the said Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, and bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain other and second mortgage executed and delivered by the aforesaid Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes, his wife, to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, which mortgage bears date the 17th day of November, A. D. 1884, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota on the 17th day of November A. D. 1884, at 3:45 o'clock p. m. in book "S" of mortgage deeds, on pages 468, 469 and 470, and whereas said second mortgage was executed to secure the payment of the sum of one thousand dollars with interest from date on the sum of three hundred and fifty dollars at the rate of ten per cent per annum and also to secure the sum of five dollars per month as and for the monthly contribution on five shares of the capital stock of said Association then owned by the said Wenzel E. Newes, said interest and said dues being payable on the first Saturday of each and every month after the date of said second mortgage according to the conditions of a certain bond for the sum of two thousand dollars executed and delivered by the said Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes, to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston and bearing even date of November 10th A. D. 1884, and said second mortgage being upon the same real estate as the mortgage first above mentioned.

And whereas it is provided in each of said mortgages herein described, that in case any default should be made in the payment of the said principal sums when due or interest, or any part thereof for the space of six months after the same shall have become due, or in case said shares should be sold for the non payment of dues, then and in such case the whole principal debt, should immediately thereupon become due, and whereas default has been made in the payment of said interest and of said monthly dues secured by both of said mortgages for more than six months whereby according to the terms of said mortgages the whole principal debt has become due, and said ten shares of stock have been duly forfeited and sold for non payment of dues, and whereas no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise for the recovery of said debt or any part thereof.

And whereas, there is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice, the sum of nine hundred forty-eight and 05-100 dollars on said first mortgage and the sum of eleven hundred twenty-three and 45-100 dollars on said second mortgage, making in the aggregate the sum of two thousand seventy-one and 50-100 dollars now due.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that under and by virtue of the powers of sale in said mortgages contained, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the real estate and premises mentioned in each of said mortgages which are situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and described as follows to wit: Lot number thirteen (13) in block number two (2) of [illegible] Fletcher's Addition to Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof, on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County, State of Minnesota, will be sold by the Sheriff of said County of Polk at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, on Saturday, the first day of May A. D. 1886, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on the debt secured by both of said mortgages, together with the sum of fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated March 8th A. D. 1886.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication March 11th, 1886.]

WHEREAS, on the 24th day of June 1885, at the City of Crookston, of Polk County, Minnesota, one P. J. Lachapelle and one Andrew Absalomson the said P. J. Lachapelle being then and there the owner, as mortgagee, by virtue of a chattel mortgage, and the said Andrew Absalomson being in legal possession of a certain hack, did request Euclid and Angus Munn, co-partners under the firm name of Munn Bro's, to make and perform certain repairs on said hack. And whereas, the said Munn Bro's pursuant to said request did do, make and perform repairs on said hack of the just and reasonable worth and value of fifty dollars, and the said Munn Bro's claim a lien on said hack to the amount of said repairs and still hold and retain possession of said hack since the making of said repairs. And whereas, more than three months have elapsed since the making of said repairs upon said hack and the said $50 has not been paid or any part thereof, although the sum has been heretofore duly demanded of the said P. J. Lachapelle and the said Andrew Absalomson. Now therefore, notice is hereby given that pursuant to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, the said Munn Bro's, will, on the 5th day of April, 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the front door of Munn Bro's Carriage Works, on the corner of Third Street and Broadway, in said City of Crookston, expose said hack for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy the said lien and the costs of such sale.

'Round Home.

John VanTuyl was in from Maple Lake on Tuesday last. He is one of the successful and happy farmers of Polk Co.

Bert Em. Hall was up during the latter part of last week. He has finished his winter term of school at "Fair Fertile."

A slight sap snow fell on Thursday of last week, going almost as rapidly as it fell.

F. H. Kratka wife and child, of Minneapolis were guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Walsh last week.

J. C. Crenshaw, of Fargo was in the city last week in the interests of the Diebold Safe and Lock Co.

Nels O. Paulsrud was up from Neillsville last week and reports matters going along about as usual down there. A great deal of attention will be paid to stock in the future and the all wheat fallacy will be liable to go the board in in the near future.

Jack Bunnell shook hands with friends at the depot on his down run Thursday, and says that if Carruth gets to the front in the big race that he will at once move to Crookston, as he wants to live in the fastest city of the age. He will come back anyhow, if he can so arrange it.

Mr. Crenshaw, the Fargo man told us that he saw the president of the Dakota and Southwestern road not long since and was told that the road would be built to Crookston at an early day. Mr. C. is quite confident that the road will be built.

S. E. Chapin goes to Inkster to engage in the lumber business. We understand that he has purchased the lumber yard of Stuart & Lawrence there and will run the business hereafter. We wish him a full measure of success.

The New York Store is taking the lead for business this spring. They have the stock and are selling cheap, and they don't spare the printers ink.

That rainbow party will be given to-morrow night and will be a fine affair. The ladies have made arrangements to excel all former efforts and make their party the grand event of the season. From present indications their efforts will be fully sustained as everybody intends to go. The proceeds go to defray the necessary expenses of Decoration day, and the object deserves a liberal support from all.

We learn that a lot of old roosters got their heads together last week, conspired to break up a feminine euchre party by sending in regrets, which, (they thought) would so occupy the time and attention that the ladies would forget to play at all. Well, now, we wouldn't have thought that of the boys. We can't conceive how they could 'a done so! If the evidence was not so positive that they did we should be tempted to deny it on general principles.

If you need any thing in dress goods, carpets or shoes, pay the New York Store a visit and don't forget to bring your pocket book along as our terms are strictly cash.

Horrie Jennings gave a euchre party to a number of his young friends Thurday, at the residence of W. H. Jennings. It was on the ocasion of his birthday and highly enjoyed. Ira DeCamp won the gentlemen's head prize, Miss Baldwin the ladies' prize, Miss Lola Jenks, the ladies' foot prize, while the village school-ma'am, Mr. Churchill, captured the gentlemen's booby. Horrie proved himself an excellent host, but it strikes us that on the occasion of a feller's birth-day, he should be more of a guest than host.

Mr. Geo. J. Bredemier, of the firm o Brocker & Bredemeir, of St. Paul was in the city last week looking up trade. He reports that business is picking up very materially and that the prospects are brighter than ever before. It was our pleasure to sample their "Vanity Fair," "Crookston T. V." and "Royal Stock" cigars, and found them excellent brands. If one enjoys a No. 1 smoke, he should sample B. and B's cigars.

Duluth Herald: The Fergus Falls Journal warns northern Minnesota not to lay claim to too much in the coming campaign. In other words the Journal advises the new and progressive portion of the state to be careful and take every precaution against an attack of the big head, in which she is even liable to demand the earth, instead of half of it to which she is entitled. What we must do is to unite. Decide amongst ourselves what we want, being careful to ask for no more than we actually deserve, then make our demands in a body and our rights will be acknowledged. Northern Minnesota is in a position to do part of the dictating this year, and she should not permit the opportunity to pass by.

Conductor Sands is uneasy. He wants to get back to Crookston to live and he assures us that it is among the probabilities of the future that he may do so about April first. Caspar has many friends here who would rejoice greatly to see him come back. All of the boys, whose business obliged them to leave are anxious to get back again.

Messrs. Fontaine & Anglim have papered their store and put it in fine shape for the spring trade of which they are getting a large share. Added to an attractive store they have a large and attractive stock and a well-trained corps of affable and handsome clerks of whom Gen. Dawley takes the bakery for beauty, and Carruth for agility. Call and see 'em.

Mr. Lee, of Lee & Herrick returned last Friday from a visit to his old home in Buffalo, N. Y. We wouldn't wonder if he had been talking with his old "feller-townsman" Grove, about a consular posish or something; however he don't give that away if he did. He says the Valley beats New York all holler for business anyhow and is perfectly satisfied with his western home.

J. E. Beim, of Sletten was in the city this week. He has finished a successful term of school near Fertile, and will rest up preparatory to entering upon a summer term on April 1st. Mr. B. has a fine claim in the town of Sletten and intends to improve it and make a fine farm as soon as he can earn the means. He is one of the kind of men who force success by industry and energy.

Pete Nowlan dropped in to see the boys on Friday of last week. He says when he went to Winona to live, he found snow there four feet deep when we had here but six or eight inches. He thinks the Northwest leads the world as a place of residence and hopes to be able to get back here soon. Pete is one of the finest of the railroad boys and that is saying a great deal as we have the finest lot in America—not a "chump" in the lot.

News reaches THE JOURNAL via grape-vine telegraph, that that little "regret" joke is only "Lent!" Watch out for trouble and more of it sometime when some "lodge" is in session and a ton of "regrets" comes up under the head of "unfinished business!" Don't let this fact escape your memory one moment, boys, the ladies are bound to get even in some way, and, "you bet" they'll do it for "when a woman will, she will, you may depend on't!"

Dr. A. Nelson was up from Aldal on Thursday and Friday of last week to see the boys and enjoy civilized life a bit. The doctor is a sample of the successful business men of this country as he has built up a fine trade and enjoys an enviable reputation as a good physician. We are told that he is something of an artist and his home is filled with samples of his handiwork in sketching and painting. He has a fine store and business a large practice, a comfortable home and is regarded as one of the most prominent politicians in the county. The doctor says there is no place like the Red River Valley for a man to build up in and if he can't grow up in this country, he couldn't in any country under the sun.

John Nelson was down from St. Hilaire last week and dropped in for a chat. He reports that his neighboring farmers are preparing for the coming season's work with renewed confidence. The lessons of the past have been well learned and will be profited by and hence he looks for a far better state of things in the future. Farmers will raise some stock and some grain, but will not make a speciality of neither. He says the one great need of that section of the country is a good grist mill and there is a fortune awaiting the man who will build one. He has a magnificent water-power on his farm that a live enterprising man, who will build the right kind of a mill may have as an inducement, and he thinks that other help might be had if desired. He is sanguine of the future of St. Hilaire and expects to see the day when it will be a nice large village.

The Lumbermen, upon their arrival from the woods, stay over night in the city and next morning light out for Grand Forks. We are told that this is in pursuance to an agreement entered into to boycott the city on account the way they claim they have been used in the past and still are. If there is anything in this matter it is certainly a very short sighted policy that prompts this action. No city in this country is in a position to drive trade away from its doors and we should offer every reasonable inducement to claim all the trade tributary to this point. We do not know how much of truth there is in these reports but we know that for some reason many of the men employed in the woods last winter are going through, whether more than belong in Dakota we are unable to say. It might be well to consider the subject to ascertain its true status and if there is anything the city could do in the matter.

They say Geo. Macdonell is selling out his present stock to go into other business, by the crowd of customers he has, we don't think it will take him long, he is selling goods awfully cheap.

Garden and Flower Seeds Free.

The March number of "The Housekeeper" is out and is as usual full of interest. Mrs. Roe's fascinating story, "How a Home was Made," reaches chapter third; Kit Clover contributes the pathetic "Story of Nebuchadnezzar," and Mrs. Ferrine gives the husbands side of the story of so many homes. An unusually full correspondence and receipt department makes up the more practical part of the paper, which is indispensible to every woman who prides herself on her home and housekeeping. The premium offer of $1.00 of garden and flower seeds, to every subscriber for one year at $1.00 is limited to April 15th. Send at once for specimen copy and terms to BUCKEYE PUBLISHING Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

Mrs. J. B. Copeland and Mrs. H. E. Cooke gave a pleasant euchre party to a number of their lady friends last Thursday afternoon, to the number of twenty-four. Twenty-four miserable old benedicts thereat went into convention and in solomn conclave resolved to "git even or dye in the attempt!" The following resolution was unanimously passed:

Resolved: That we view with alarm the prevailing prevalency of these "hen euchre parties" and view with alarm their inflooence upon the youth and risin generation. That we regard it as a insidoous species of gambling, (when we men folks ain't included) and that we will yoose ours inflooence with our several bet-ter halves to quell the risin insurrection; we regard it as a species wimmen's rites and as sich it must be squelched 2 wonst! The resoloosbun was adopted by a risin vote.

Also—Resolved! That as by absents of our better-ls the household dutys devolves from the clingin' vine to the sterner sects, we (the aforesaid sterner sects) are obliged to stay to hum and keep house all alone thus devolving upon us the ardoous task of sendin' in regrets, the secretary is hereby instructed to dish up the aforsaid regrets, and serve 'em up red-hot at about 4 p. m., this afternoon, with pepper-sauce cats-up on the side!

While the benedicts were thus solacing themselves, (mentally and spiritually) the ladies were having a jolly good time, knowing little and caring little for the approaching storm. The favors were little Japanese fans, little shoes and Chinese coins. Mrs. E. Pierce won the ladies head prize, a neat little milking stool fixed up too fine for any use. Mrs. John Cromb won the gentlemen's head prize, an elegant tidy. Mrs. Bert Bivins got the ladies' foot-prize, a miniature spinning wheel, and Mrs. Wm. Box the ladies foot-prize, a diminitive churn. At four, a knock was heard at the door and upon opening it, a solemn, mournful looking cus-tomer stood with a bushel basket full of "regrets" from the injured innocents, yclept the sterner sects. The regrets were accepted in due and ancient form and we understand that they will be framed and hung up in the corner stone of the new city hall or preserved in alcohol as relics of the dark cages. Upon the whole it was a jolly time all round but some how the boys don't eggsactly see it in that light.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, ss. In Probate Court.

On reading and filing the petition of Andreas E. Riseland, of Polk County, representing, among other things, that Erik E. Riseland late of Polk County, Minnesota, on the second day of March A. D. 1886, at Garfield town in said county, died intestate, and being a resident of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this county and that the said petitioner is a half brother of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Iver J. Ingebrigtson granted;

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before the Judge of this Court, on Monday, the 26th day of April A. D. 1886, at 2 o'clock p. m., at Crookston in said county.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, Minn., in said county.

Dated at Crookston the 18th day of March A. D. 1886.

By the Court,
ROBERT J. MONTAGUE,
[48-50] Judge of Probate.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication February 11th, 1886.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one thousand and forty-one and 66-100 dollars ($1041.66-100.) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Louise Zalser and John Zalser her husband, mortgagors, to William Massolt, mortgagee, bearing date the ele[illegible]nth day of September A. D. 1881, and du[illegible] recorded in the office of the Register [illegible] Deeds in and for the County of Pol[illegible] and State of Minnesota, on the 22d da[illegible] of September A. D. 1881, at 3:10 o'clock p. m., in book "R" of mortgages, on pages 440, 441 and 442, and conveying and mortgaging the following described premises, lying and being in said County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: Reserve "S" in the Townsite of Red Lake Falls, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County except the following described piece, to-wit: Beginning at the southeast corner of said Reserve "S," thence running two hundred feet west to the southwest corner of said Reserve "S," thence north on the west line of said Reserve "S" fifty feet, thence east two hundred feet, thence south fifty feet to the place of beginning, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises hereinbefore described and covered by said mortgage, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 2d day of April A. D. 1886, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

and at least a moderate competence, come to those who follow the teachings of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST. This world-renowned periodical, in addition to its other great features, has now employed the LEADING AMERICAN WRITERS to describe THE RURAL LIVES OF OUR AMERICAN PRESIDENTS, nearly all of whom were reared on farms, or retired to them from active life. DONALD G. MITCHELL, (IKE MARVEL) R. H. STODDARD, JAMES PARTON, JULIAN HAWTHORNE, DR. LYMAN ABBOTT, and others equally eminent, are now preparing these supplemental HISTORICAL PAPERS. They are to be accompanied with ENGRAVINGS, 12x18 inches in size, executed at large expense by our first artists, illustrating the Rural Homes and Surroundings of our Farmer Presidents, comprising a MAGNIFICENT PORTFOLIO collection for every house, rich and poor alike. These SPECIAL PAPERS and SPECIAL ENGRAVINGS, will be of absorbing interest to all interested in country life, and likewise constitute an important ACQUISITION to the historical knowledge of the country.

R. H. Stoddard writes: "I am sure they will be popular in a literary sense and equally sure they will be of great value to the boys of this country, who have a right to look forward to occoming our future rulers." Donald G. Mitchell: "I write about Washington's farming, in respect to which I have some copies of unpublished letters." Lyman Abbott: "It is an admirable design, showing the close connection of our Farmer Presidents with the soil." Julian Hawthorne: "An attractive scheme. I shall be glad to have a hand in it." James Parton: "One of my articles will be ready in three weeks."

Every subscriber to the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST for 1886 is entitled to these descriptions and engravings of the Rural Lives of our Presidents, forwarded without additional cost with the numbers of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST, as they appear; or specially executed on heavy, highly finished paper, and forwarded with the additional trifling cost for packing and postage. Single Subscription, $1.50; Ten Subscriptions, $1 each.

'Round Home.

Bert Em. Hall was up during the latter part of last week. He has finished his winter term of school at "Fair Fertile."

A slight sap snow fell on Thursday of last week; going almost as rapidly as it fell.

F. H. Kratka wife and child, of Minneapolis were guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Walsh last week.

J. C. Crenshaw, of Fargo was in the city last week in the interests of the Diebold Safe and Lock Co.

Nels O. Paulsrud was up from Neillsville last week and reports matters going along about as usual down there. A great deal of attention will be paid to stock in the future and the all wheat fallacy will be liable to go the board in in the near future.

Jack Bunnell shook hands with friends at the depot on his down run Thursday, and says that if Carruth gets to the front in the big race that he will at once move to Crookston, as he wants to live in the fastest city of the age. He will come back anyhow, if he can so arrange it.

Mr. Crenshaw, the Fargo man told us that he saw the president of the Dakota and Southwestern road not long since and was told that the road would be built to Crookston at an early day. Mr. C. is quite confident that the road will be built.

S. E. Chapin goes to Inkster to engage in the lumber business. We understand that he has purchased the lumber yard of Stuart & Lawrence there and will run the business hereafter. We wish him a full measure of success.

The New York Store is taking the lead for business this spring. They have the stock and are selling cheap, and they don't spare the printers ink.

That rainbow party will be given tomorrow night and will be a fine affair. The ladies have made arrangements to excel all former efforts and make their party the grand event of the season. From present indications their efforts will be fully sustained as everybody intends to go. The proceeds go to defray the necessary expenses of Decoration day, and the object deserves a liberal support from all.

We learn that a lot of old roosters got their heads together last week, conspired to break up a feminine euchre party by sending in regrets, which, (they thought) would so occupy the time and attention that the ladies would forget to play at all. Well, now, we wouldn't have thought that of the boys. We can't conceive how they could 'a done so! If the evidence was not so positive that they did we should be tempted to deny it on general principles.

If you need any thing in dress goods, carpets or shoes, pay the New York Store a visit and don't forget to bring your pocket-book along as our terms are strictly cash.

Horrie Jennings gave a euchre party to a number of his young friends Thurday, at the residence of W. H. Jennings. It was on the ocasion of his birthday and highly enjoyed. Ira De-Camp won the gentlemen's head prize; Miss Baldwin the ladies' prize; Miss Lola Jenks, the ladies' foot prize, while the village school-ma'am, Mr. Churchill, captured the gentlemen's booby. Horrie proved himself an excellent host, but it strikes us that on the occasion of a feller's birth-day, he should be more of a guest than host.

Mr. Geo. J. Bredemier, of the firm of Brocker & Bredemeir, of St. Paul was in the city last week looking up trade. He reports that business is picking up very materially and that the prospects are brighter than ever before. It was our pleasure to sample their "Vanity Fair," "Crookston T. V." and "Royal Stock" cigars, and found them excellent brands. If one enjoys a No. 1 smoke, he should sample B. and B's cigars.

Duluth Herald: The Fergus Falls Journal warns northern Minnesota not to lay claim to too much in the coming campaign. In other words the Journal advises the new and progressive portion of the state to be careful and take every precaution against an attack of the big head in which she is even liable to demand the earth, instead of half of it to which she is entitled. What we must do is to unite. Decide amongst ourselves what we want, being careful to ask for no more than we actually deserve, then make our demands in a body and our rights will be acknowledged. Northern Minnesota is in a position to do part of the dictating this year and she should not permit her opportunity to pass by.

Conductor Sands is uneasy. He wants to get back to Crookston to live and he assures us that it is among the probabilities of the future that he may do so about April first. Caspar has many friends here who would rejoice greatly to see him come back. All of the boys, whose business obliged them to leave are anxious to get back again.

Messrs. Fontaine & Anglim have papered their store and put it in fine shape for the spring trade of which they are getting a large share. Added to an attractive store they have a large and attractive stock and a well-trained corps of affable and handsome clerks of whom Gen. Dawley takes the bakery for beauty, and Carruth for agility. Call and see 'em.

Mr. Lee, of Lee & Herrick returned last Friday from a visit to his old home in Buffalo, N. Y. We wouldn't wonder if he had been talking with his old "feller-townsman" Grove, about a consular posish or something; however he don't give that away if he did. He says the Valley beats New York all holler for business anyhow and is perfectly satisfied with his western home.

J. E. Beim, of Sletten was in the city this week. He has finished a successful term of school near Fertile, and will rest up preparatory to entering upon a summer term on April 1st. Mr. B. has a fine claim in the town of Sletten and intends to improve it and make a fine farm as soon as he can earn the means. He is one of the kind of men who force success by industry and energy.

Pete Nowlan dropped in to see the boys on Friday of last week. He says when he went to Winona to live, he found snow there four feet deep when we had here but six or eight inches. He thinks the Northwest leads the world as a place of residence and hopes to be able to get back here soon. Pete is one of the finest of the railroad boys and that is saying a great deal as we have the finest lot in America—not a "chump" in the lot.

News reaches THE JOURNAL via grapevine telegraph, that that little "regret" joke is only "Lent!" Watch out for trouble and more of it sometime when some "lodge" is in session and a ton of "regrets" comes up under the head of "unfinished business!" Don't let this fact escape your memory one moment, boys, the ladies are bound to get even in some way, and, "you bet" they'll do it for "when a woman will, she will, you may depend on't!"

Dr. A. Nelson was up from Aldal on Thursday and Friday of last week to see the boys and enjoy civilized life a bit. The doctor is a sample of the successful business men of this country as he has built up a fine trade and enjoys an enviable reputation as a good physician. We are told that he is something of an artist and his home is filled with samples of his handiwork in sketching and painting. He has a fine store and business a large practice, a comfortable home and is regarded as one of the most prominent politicans in the county. The doctor says there is no place like the Red River Valley for a man to build up in and if he can't grow up in this country, he couldn't in any country under the sun.

John Nelson was down from St. Hilaire last week and dropped in for a chat. He reports that his neighboring farmers are preparing for the coming season's work with renewed confidence. The lessons of the past have been well learned and will be profited by, and hence he looks for a far better state of things in the future. Farmers will raise some stock and some grain, but will not make a speciality of neither. He says the one great need of that section of the country is a good grist mill and there is a fortune awaiting the man who will build one. He has a magnificent water-power on his farm that a live enterprising man who will build the right kind of a mill may have as an inducement, and he thinks that other help might be had if desired. He is sanguine of the future of St. Hilaire and expects to see the day when it will be a nice large village.

The Lumbermen, upon their arrival from the woods, stay over night in the city and next morning light out for Grand Forks. We are told that this is in pursuance to an agreement entered into to boycott the city on account the way they claim they have been used in the past and still are. If there is anything in this matter it is certainly a very short sighted policy that prompts this action. No city in this country is in a position to drive trade away from its doors and we should offer every reasonable inducement to retain all the trade tributary to this point. We do not know how much of truth there is in these reports but we know that for some reason many of the men employed in the woods last winter are going through, whether more than belong in Dakota we are unable to say. It might be well to consider the subject to ascertain its true status and if there is anything the city could do in the matter.

They say Geo. Macdonell is selling out his present stock to go into other business, by the crowd of customers he has, we don't think it will take him long, he is selling goods awfully cheap.

Garden and Flower Seeds Free.

The March number of "The Housekeeper" is out and is as usual full of interest. Mrs. Roe's fascinating story, "How a Home was Made," reaches chapter third; Kit Clover contributes the pathetic "Story of Nebuchadnezzar," and Mrs. Ferrine gives the husbands side of the story of so many homes. An unusually full correspondence and receipt department makes up the more practical part of the paper, which is indispensible to every woman who prides herself on her home and housekeeping. The premium offer of $1.00 of garden and flower seeds, to every subscriber for one year at $1.00 is limited to April 15th. Send at once for specimen copy and terms to BUCKEYE PUBLISHING Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

Mrs. J. B. Copeland and Mrs. H. E. Cooke gave a pleasant euchre party to a number of their lady friends last Thursday afternoon, to the number of twenty-four. Twenty-four miserable old benedicts thereat went into convention and in solomn conclave resolved to "git even or dye in the attempt!" The following resolution was unanimously passed:

Resolved: That we view with alarm the prevailing prevalency of these "hen euchre parties" and view with alarm their infloocence upon the youth and risin generation. That we regard it as a insidoous species of gambling, (when we men folks ain't included) and that we will yoose ours infloocence with our several bet-ter halves to quell the risin insurrection; we regard it as a species wimmen's-rites and as sich it must be squelched 2 wonst! The resolooshun was adopted by a risin vote.

Also—Resolved! That as by absents of our better-½ the household dutys devolves from the clingin' vine to the sterner seets, we (the aforesaid sterner seets) are obliged to stay to hum and keep house all alone thus devolving upon us the ardoous task of sendin' in regrets, the secretary is hereby instructed to dish up the aforsaid regrets, and serve 'em up red-hot at about 4 p. m., this afternoon, with pepper-sauce cats-up on the side!

While the benedicts were thus solacing themselves, (mentally and spiritually) the ladies were having a jolly good time, knowing little and caring little for the approaching storm. The favors were little Japanese fans, little shoes and Chinese coins. Mrs. E. Pierce won the ladies head prize, a neat little milking stool fixed up too fine for any use. Mrs. John Cromb won the gentlemen's head prize, an elegant tidy. Mrs. Bert Bivins got the ladies foot prize, a miniature spinning wheel, and Mrs. Wm. Box the ladies foot-prize, a diminitive churn. At four, a knock was heard at the door and upon opening it, a solomn, mournful looking cus-tomer stood with a bushel basket full of "regrets" from the injured innocents, yclept the sterner seets. The regrets were accepted in due and ancient form and we understand that they will be framed and hung up in the corner stone of the new city hall or preserved in alcohol, as relics of the dark cages. Upon the whole it was a jolly time all round but some how the boys don't eggsactly see it in that light.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, ss. In Probate Court.

On reading and filing the petition of Andreas E. Riseland, of Polk County, representing, among other things, that Erik E. Riseland late of Polk County, Minnesota, on the second day of March A. D. 1886, at Garfield, town in said county, died intestate, and being a resident of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is a half brother of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Iver J. Ingebrigtson granted.

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before the Judge of this Court on Monday, the 26th day of April A. D. 1886, at 2 o'clock p. m., at Crookston in said county.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, Minn., in said county.

Dated at Crookston the 18th day of March A. D. 1886.

CROOKSTON, MINN., MARCH 25.

The Busy City.

Don't forget to go and see what that rainbow party is like. More fun than you can think.

John Van Tuyl bought a valuable mare at the sale at Flanders last Saturday. Price $245.

Medical Hall has been painted up and slicked up in anticipation of a boom in trade this season.

Sheriff Zwickey went below last Friday with an insane person; he also had an oportunity to drop in and see a little of the big race at Minneapolis. He returned on Monday to business again.

Will Newlon came over from Mapleton, D. T., last Friday, with his little boy on a visit to Grandma and the folks. His bushy beard so changes Will that few of his friends could recognize him.

The sale at Flanders last Saturday was the largest that has been reported yet and the stuff all went at good prices. Dunc Terry handled the hammer and proved himself a veteran in the business. When Dunc hollers its lawl

Mr. Walker is getting his mill prepared ready for the season's work, which will commence just as soon as the first log reaches it and will be crowded night and day during the season. They expect to double last years work.

Charlie Chiniquy is away after a stock of goods for the new store and expects to be back in a week or ten days or such a matter, when he will be prepared to say something of importance and interest to his old patrons and friends.

M. VanDyke & Co. have been for some time digging out a cellar under their drug store, in order to get a place to store oils, paints and all sich, of which they expect to have enough to supply the county in the near future.

R. Houston & Co. sport a new awning with "R. HOUSTON & Co.," on it big enough to be seen in Carman. That's the kind of a trade they are getting—big enough to cover this city and reach over to Carman. They are jolly good fellows and everybody likes to visit 'em; they sell cheap so everybody likes to buy of 'em.

Frank S. Demers, was mustered in to Col. Cobham post last Friday evening, and is now a full-fledged comrade in good standing. Frank is one of the boys who wore the blue in times that tried men's souls, and is one of the best of Polk County's citizen's in times of peace. The post is growing in numbers and interest.

The Red Lake Falls Gazette does not seem to have found out that a Democrat warms John Cromb's seat in the Land Office, and that P. C. Schmidt resigned the office of County Commissioner a long time since. That is not quite as bad as one paper we know of wherein there has been no change in the Land Office in many years. Eh, Mac?

Wheat took another tumble to itself this week, reaching 65 cents. The outlook seems somewhat a matter of doubt as to what will be the final outcome but we anticipate better prices ere long. The big Lenham elevator Co., have got into hot water, have had to let about 200,000 bushels go for want of a margin to put up, but it is thought in Duluth that it will not swamp 'em.

The Red Lake Falls Gazette says that John Zaiser died at that place on the 18th inst., aged 61 years and 14 days. He was a native of Germany, coming to this country in 1851, landing in Philadelphia, from whence he went to St. Louis thence to Memphis, Tenn., thence to Faribault, thence to Fergus Falls and in 1879 to Red Lake Falls. He leaves a wife and six children.

Look out for fun and lots of it at the bean-bake to-morrow evening. The rainbow business will afford lots of sport for all and the occasion bids fair to lead all previous entertainments. Don't fail to be there at roll call so that you may be all present or accounted for. The orderly sargeant will rout out the company Cook(e) and see that he humps himself around in time to have the beans well baked for the men.

Phil Porger intends soon to leave for his mother country, he tells us, where he intends in the future to abide. Phil is one of the oldest inhabitants in this country, settling here as early as '72. He took one of the first claims on the river and as good luck would have it got within one mile of the city limits. Phil was never one of your rabid boomers, but he always had implicit confidence in Crookston and Polk County and in the [illegible] little farm, which by dint of hard labor he has transformed from the wilderness and made a pretty little comfortable home. No one is better known than "Old Phil" and [illegible] no one will be more sincerely missed than will he when the place that knows him now so well will know him no more for a while. Taking hope that it will be but for a short time [illegible] he has not sold out here yet and the probability is that he may [illegible] [illegible]. The kindly regards of [illegible] friends will follow him [illegible] [illegible] property.

Monday's train brought back Gardner Stevens and H. Steenerson from the great race.

The weather thus far this week has been very warm and spring-like. Everything now indicates an early spring.

New cash railroad at Hack & Gallasch'. The first and only one in the Northwest. Don't fail to see it.

Mrs. B. J. Welty is in the city visiting with Mrs. C. A. Chiniquy. She expects to return to her home during the latter part of this week.

Mr. J. B. Roome has returned from a visit to the old home in the east well pleased with his visit and happy to get home again. He is now ready to go to work in good earnest.

Kittson Co. Enterprise: Fred W. Foot, of the JOURNAL office, Crookston, visited Hallock friends Saturday and Sunday. Come again Fred, remember the Two River Valley and the girl that is waiting for you.

HACK & GALLASCH.

Meetings have been held evenings in the Congregational Church this week, conducted by W. J. Davis, an evangelist from Massachusetts. Mr. Davis is an easy, fluent talker and has a very convincing manner with him.

An interesting union temperance meeting was held in the congregational church on Sabbath evening. Several telling addresses were made. The house was filled to over-flowing many going away unable to find seats.

It is said that Snowden & Boyst could be induced to come up here and give an exhibition of skating. Jake says he don't want to catch on. If anybody wants them to come the way is open. He don't want any more in his'n.

Salt fish of all kinds at

HACK & GALLASCH'.

Geo. Macdonell has a dandy curtain on exhibition. Carpets? Well we should remark. He mentions a few of the articles he carries and the prices at which they can be bought, in THE JOURNAL this week. Drop in and see his magnificent stock and get prices.

Ham Thompson has returned from Minneapolis, covered all over with medals and glory. He got away with all the fancy skaters they could trot out down in Minneapolis, which is doing remarkably well for a boy and Ham naturally feels much elated at his success. He is a dandy on skates and no mistake.

J. W. Pitts has had bad luck with his Holstein heifer calf. In some manner the animal managed to dislocate a joint on Thursday. On Saturday Wm. L. Sargeant was called and did all that could be done, but thinks that it was then too late to save the animal. It was a fine calf and the loss will be a bad one for J. W.

The spring boom has commenced at Hack & Gallasch'. They are kept busy from morning till night serving their customers.

W. G. Cooke and Fred W. Foot, two JOURNAL typos, sampled mine host Topping's fare at the Richardson in Grand Forks last Sunday and report that "Top" has lost none of his good qualities as a hotel keeper since he left Crookston. They could not discover that the Forks was any ahead of this city in any particular.

Judge Stearns passed through the city on Monday on his way to Kittson County to hold the spring term of court. The Judge looks hale and hearty and fully able to run a good race as his own successor for Judge. He has made a good record during his past terms and will meet with no serious difficulty in re-election if he decides to run.

McKinnon Bros. have just got in a car-load of the famous Mitchell wagons. One of em was built on purpose for exhibition at the world's fair at New Orleans and is a marvel of workmanship and strength and the balance the same. They have also received seeders, plows, harrows and other machinery too numerous to mention and are now prepared to see their friends.

Hack & Gallasch have a larger stock of dry goods, shoes, slippers and groceries than ever, and invite all to visit their store and get prices.

Ole Bang tells THE JOURNAL that Arne Higdem has signed the pledge and is keeping it in good shape. Arne's friends will rejoice in this and hope that he will keep on in the good way. Mr. Higdem is naturally a very talented man, but has been his own worst enemy. With the one bad habit broken up he will be all right and he has not a friend but that will do all in their power to help him in his good resolutions.

The Duluth News will enter the daily field on May 1st, occupying the morning field. It has secured both the morning and evening franchise. Col. [illegible], the veteran newspaper man of Bismarck, will have editorial charge with W. H. Burke, formerly of the Jamestown Capitol, as publisher. [illegible] the News [illegible] will be one of the [illegible] in the Northwest. We wish [illegible] abundant success.

Mrs. Bivins is on the move to the farm for the summer.

It is said that Governor Hubbard says there is too many names of lawyers on that petition for commutation.

John N. Ives has gone down to Hallock to look after the interests of his clients during the session of court there.

Charlie Westler is off for more goods to supply the needs of all manhood of the masculine gender. Look out for his return.

Judge Stearn's court stenographer spent a few days in the city previous to the Kittson Co. term, leaving for Hallock on Wednesday.

Rev. Medlar invites all young men to attend the Congregational church next Sabbath evening. The sermon will be addressed to young men.

Mr. Brown reports the Stambaugh sale a success in every particular. A large number were in attendance and everything went for good figures.

G. H. Palmer is boasting of the arrival of a fine young grade Holstein-Friesian, of the male persuasion. G. H. says he is a dandy of large size and fine shape.

Wild geese were observed flying north on Tuesday. They had their snow-shoe suits and toboggans ready for any emergency. Overcoats and mittens went through in bond.

H. Steenerson packed his grip with three days rations for Hallock. He may extend his trip to Emerson to look after the fences, (stone-fences) ere his return. We have heard of such things before now.

Judge Stearns says his health is much improved of late—better than for years. When asked if the rise in Duluth real estate had anything to do with it, he smoled one of his quiet smiles and remarked: "Like enough!"

The festive immigrant begins to hoe for the great Northwest. Several carloads of him have gone to the Devil's Lake during the past week and still they come. Let 'em come. Uncle Sam is still rich enough to give 'em all a farm.

The brother of Lauchie McLain, the man killed at East Grand Forks, is said to be getting up a petition, remonstrating against the commutation of the sentence of John Hutchinson. It is said that he will endeavor to obtain 500 signatures before sending it to the Governor.

I do my trading at Hack & Gallasch', tra-la! It is the cheapest store in Crookston, tra-la-la!

Wheat took a tumble to itself on Tuesday going down to 63 cents for No. 1 hard in one bound. Whatever makes it act so puzzles the oldest inhabitant and it seems to be the universal opinion that it can't do that way all summer. It is a mitey uncertain factor to bet on anyhow. We hope to be able to give better news next week.

Hack & Gallasch have a funny business in their store. It is an aerial railroad track which caries money from the salesman up to the cashier and brings the right change back. It don't cost anything to go in and see it work, unless a fellow is too inquisitive. Then you buy your goods, pay your money and you can see just how the old thing works. Try it a whack. It is fun to see it work.

Several of the local papers, those that know nothing about the merits of the Hutchinson case, have recently been kicking up a terrible hullabaloo over what they claim is the "maudlin sympathy of Crookston" in the case. They claim that Hutchinson's past life has been one of crime, and even if he does not deserve death for this crime he should be hung on general principles. Where is the law and order of that idea? What would become of law and order if such a theory should become generally diffused? We have no sympathy with crimes of this kind nor with the criminals but we do think the law in just such cases defective. As the law defines murder in the first degree we do not see how John Hutchinson can be hung for murder. If you throw the law entirely out of the question and hang on general principles we can see how you can hang him. Under the law you can't hang a man until he is convicted of murder in the first degree. The law says that it must be premeditated to constitute murder in the first degree. If the defence had set up what are doubtless the true facts that those parties came there that night, that John Hutchinson, in attempting to protect the inmates struck the blow that killed a man, he could have not been convicted of more than man-slaughter, which would have shut him up 15 years or so. When he attempted to establish an alibi and failed he shut the door upon himself, the jury had either to find him guilty or to acquit him entirely. They could not acquit so had to take the other horn of the dilemma. If our memory serves us [illegible] there was no attempt made to show premeditation, no evidence shows that Hutchinson struck the blow for the purpose of killing the man. There was a row in a disreputable place and one man lost his life. We believe that [illegible] the size of it and we don't think any one would [illegible] Hutchinson should hang for it [illegible] how that can be done under a strict construction of the law [illegible]. He may deserve [illegible] and yet you may not [illegible] by the law. [illegible]

A. R. Wilkinson has gone to attend the Kittson County term of court.

John Knuppe has been mentioned as Mayor. He would be unobjectionable.

Sam Rosenthal has rented the Congregational parsonage for a term of two years.

F. T. Haseltine returned to business again on Wednesday after a pleasent visit at Madison, Wis.

D. H. Bates returned from a business visit to the three biggest cities in the State, Duluth, St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Mrs. C. J. Gooding returned to her home at St. Vincent accompanied by Mrs. E. P. Pierce who goes for a brief visit.

Gus. Wilder has received the appointment of mail agent for a month, running between Crookston and Devil's Lake.

High water boots, at Hack & Gallasch.

There is rejoicing in the house of Anderson; all owing to the arrival of a bouncing female Swan, on Sunday the 14th inst.

A. C. Cowing has made a good and efficient treasurer and we can see no valid reason for a change, should he desire to continue.

E. P. Stone rejoices in the arrival of a bran new daughter which event occurred on Saturday last. Mother and daughter doing well.

Joe Berthiaume reports the arrival of a party of land hunters from Lake Superior. They come to buy good farms and have the means to do it.

John Moser has been mentioned as his own successor for city clerk. He has filled the position with credit for the past year and deserves re-election if he desires it.

Go to the Bee Hive to trade. It is the cheapest place in the city.

Stone & Pinkerton desire to call attention to the Lewis cockle mill, said to be the best cleaner in the market. It has no superior for taking out foul seed of all kinds and the price makes it within the reach of all. Call 'round and see it.

The firm of Christianson & Melgaard is dissolved, Mr. Melgaard retiring. Mr. O. O. Christianson will take his place, and the new firm will be Christianson Brothers. Both are well known and reliable gentlemen, and need no introdution by us.

Herb's Branch is fully supplied with all of the novelties of the season. He will be prepared in due season to dish up all kinds of refreshing summer drinks in first-class style. Drop in and see whether that shot gun has gone off. If it has not, a nickel will make it,—i. e. the right nickel. Try your luck once.

John Wallace says that E. G. Forks is no place for a white man to live. They drove him out of a hotel and he took refuge in a restaurant where he found a man with his head all cut open—some fellow had been playing a little game of "poker" with him, they told him, and the fellow had got the worst of it. He says he breathed easier when he got back home with a whole hide.

E. C. Davis returned from the east on Thursday. He reports having had a successful trip and accomplished what he went to do. He came back via Washington, thence west via the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. Farmers were planting, and the grass was up, looking delightfully fresh and green until he began to get into New York State, where he found plenty of snow and slush. He says his trip was a very enjoyable one.

Country merchants and farmers all trade at Hack & Gallasch.

Judge O. S. Spendley has been suggested as assessor, and should he desire the position we know of no better man for the place. The Judge has seen the infant city in its swaddling clothes, has watched her growth into the lovely maiden that she is and no one could be better posted as to values, certainly no one could be fairer in his estimates, and none more capable to perform the exacting duties of the city assessor. Should he come up as a candidate we believe he would have the popular voice for his nomination. The office should have just such a man as the Judge, as it requires a good knowledge of the property and values to get an equitable assessment, all of which Judge Spendley possesses, [illegible]

Judge Ives has gone courting up to Hallock this week.

W. E. McKenzie is back from the big six day's race at Minneapolis.

C. O. Christenson went up to St. Hilaire on Tuesday returning in the evening.

Mrs. Walter Alexander has gone to the twin cities to visit friends and will return later in the week.

Mr. S. L. Dobson will take the road again soon. He will make headquarters at Minneapolis for a while.

Mrs. C. J. Gooding, of St. Vincent, was in the city this week, visiting with Mrs. T. E. Adams and Mrs. E. P. Pierce.

Felix Fournet is fixing up the balance of the second floor of his new block for offices. He is putting up a stair-case on the north side.

Earnest Moeckel has dropped on tobacco and consolation of all kinds on account of the rheumatism that doth trouble him muchly. He says it is a good thing to diet under the circumstances.

Charlie Chiniquy intends to be back from the east in time to open out about the fifth of April when he will be prepared to show an elegant line of ladies' dress goods and notions. Look out for a big talk when Charlie gets back home.

G. W. Tice and wife, of Mentor, left for a visit to their old home, at Norwich, Canada on Tuesday evening. Mr. T. has rented his place for the summer and intends to take a well deserved rest from his labors this summer. We wish him a prosperous journey, a happy time and safe return. He intends to be away about six months.

H. L. Melgaard left for the scene of his new field of labor, at Argyle, on Monday. He intends to engage in a banking business for which he is well fitted. While here he has won the good opinion of all with whom he has come in contact and while all regret to see him go they will unite with the JOURNAL in good wishes for his success.

Hon. B. Sampson is getting out timber for a large barn that he intends to erect as soon as the timber can be got ready and onto the ground. He says that he has got along quite long enough without a good barn and he don't intend to do so any more if he has good luck. More good barns in the country would be a great benefit to the people.

Judge and Mrs. C. S. Spendley gave a pleasant progressive euchre party on Tuesday evening, at which the regrets were less numerous than the guests. A very pleasant evening was passed. Wm Box was winner of the gentlemen's progressive prize, Henry Nolan gathered in the gentlemen's lone hand prize and went home blowing his horn; I. U. Jennings the gentlemen's head prize, while Tom Adams walked off like a little man with the booby prize. Mrs. E. P. Pierce won the ladies' progressive, Mrs. Adams the ladies' head prize, and Mrs. H. E. Cooke the ladies' foot prize.

Mr. Le Page has commenced work on his new store. It will be of brick, 25x50 two story and ready for occupancy by May 1st. The first floor will be occupied for groceries, he has a fine frost proof cellar in which to store vegetables; the upper story will be used as living rooms for awhile. He is getting up a neat building and will soon be in good shape for business. We wish him the success he amply deserves for his industry and faithful attention to his business.

School Superintendent Carruth has been beseiged during the past week by men anxious to secure school houses in their respective districts and he tells us that fifty or sixty new houses will be built during the coming summer. These will be well-built, substantial structures costing from $500 to $1500 and this in many cases after the timbers and foundations have been contributed by citizens in the various districts. This is a pleasing evidence of the fact that the county is growing and of how it is growing. The Superintendent is and has been ever indefatigable in his efforts to advance the educational interests of our young county and his efforts have been universally crowned with abundant success. No one could work harder than he has to forward our school interests.

Unlimited confidence in your city and county will do much to make good times and if this confidence is manifested in large investments in goods and small profits the times will generally take care of themselves all right enough. Acting upon this principle the Messrs. Bray & O'Brien have purchased an immense stock of hardware, while everything was low and they intend to give their patrons the whole benefit of their bargains. Already, since they purchased, there has been a big rise in barbed wire, that alone would have made a difference of a cent a pound in the purchase price if they had to buy now. Their patrons will get the benefit of that difference as well as the difference in freight between goods brought in in carload lots or a few hundred pounds at a time—which is no small matter. They open out in good shape in our columns this week and mean every word they say. They are not afraid to use printers ink liberally to tell their patrons and everybody what they can do for them and such men will always be as liberal in their deal with all. Their line of tinware is full and complete and their workmen unexcelled in the art. Their stock of stoves is immense and embraces everything needed in that line. In hardware they have a large stock of everything ever required to equip a mill or run a farm. As to their prices they mean just what they say, that they have bought at very close figures and mean to sell as they bought. They cordially invite every JOURNAL reader to call and look them over.

Mrs. Albert Muller gave a progressive euchre party in honor of Miss Lota Jenks, at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. D. Carruth on Friday evening of last week. Our reporter did not catch on to the lady winners but learned that the event was a very pleasant and enjoyable one.

It seems THE JOURNAL was in error, (slightly) in relation to Frank Bivins' Holstein calves. The calves are in the family sure enough, only Mr. B. don't own BOTH of 'em. We were tackled on that subject by the owner of the tother calf who called us a great big another and threatened dire vengeance if we did not correct the error, and said that we would get a thunderin' big-head put onto us if we did! Whatever WILL we do? Never mind. The calves are home all O. K. and they are little daises whether Mr. B. owns 'em both or whether some other member of the family is interested in the future of one of 'em. We'll bet a hat they are good animals and bound to be a valuable addition to the family.

The Great Race.

The last day of the great skating race at Minneapolis was the most exciting one of the six, more miles being made than on any other day. Snowden won the race and received the $40 roller skates offered the victor. Boyst was only two laps behind, Bromley five and Carruth seven. This race is said to be the most remarkable one ever run; all previous records being smashed to pieces. It is also remarkable in another feature, that of an inexperienced skater pitted against the champion skaters of the world and ending only seven laps behind the winner! and this, too, after he had lost over two miles by his skates breaking. If Carruth had not broken his skates many times Wednesday and Thursday, thus causing him to lose over two miles, it is the general belief that he would have won the race over the best skater in the world; as it was, he set the pace on the last day and made them work harder than on any previous day, making over 120 miles for a round up. The boys who were there from Crookston report that Patsy Cardiff deserves great credit for the care and attention he gave Jud all through the race. He stayed right by him, not even leaving long enough to get his meals while the race was in progress. In reply to a question asked by Prof. Thompson as to whether the 100 mile record made on Monday is equal to that recently made by Carruth at the Washington rink, the Tribune says: "It can safely be said that it is not. The reason is that Carruth skated on a ten-lap track while the latter was run on an eight-lap track, which is a considerable difference, while Carruth is entitled to more credit when his records are compared with Snowden's.'

The Land office is the last place wherein the perambulating reporter would expect to find a dry joke bottled up ready to go off at a moments notice but Register Smith showed us something unique in the way of a postal card the other day that we will do our best to give verbatim ad literatim. On the address side is:

An...

Crookston

County Polk, Minnesota

U. S. A.

Frogsback I. 17 Fbr. '86.

Sire: I beg courteous by return of post details information over the sixth district of Minnsota, by itself over the Counties Kittson, Marshall, Polk, Norman and Beltrami. I shall settle me there and I shall practise farming. I await your kind sending; I thank you beforehand, I have already a brother in Norman and indeed in Ada.

By greatest respect

Register Smith got the idea that information in relation to the counties mentioned was wanted and sent all he could catch onto in the way of immigration pamphlets, papers &c.

The following ticket was elected in the town of Crookston: Supervisors—Fred. Fox, chairman, John A. Wynd, Erik Benson. Town Clerk—E. O. Flanders. Treasurer—Joe Gauche. Assessor—Peter [illegible]. Justice of the Peace—H. O. Wynd. Constable—Phil Porger.

General Orders No. I.

Headquarters Col. Cobham Post,
Army of the Potomac,

ATTENTION BATTALION!

COMRADES: It is the orders of the Commanding General that you, and each of you, appear at these Headquarters on Friday evening, March 26th, in full uniform, armed and equipped as the law directs, ready to receive a delegation of ladies who have been sent down to visit this department from our homes in the north. Take due and timely natice and govern yourselves accordingly.

Signed, ADJUTANT GEN'L DEBILITY.

P. S. It is ordered that as many as can afford to do so procure a "biled rag" for the occasion.

P. P. S. It is further ordered that this army proceed to go upon the skirmish line, in squads, at least four hours before the arrival of the expected guests and use all due diligence with thumb and fore finger to crush out every grey back found straggling on Uncle Sam's domains, and every veteran, or son of a veteran, who shall fail to obey this order shall be put into the guard house for a term not to exceed 99 years and be strung up by the thumbs for the balance of his natural life.

By order of Commanding Gen'l.

HDQ. COL. COBHAM POST,
FERNINST RICHMOND,
March 18th. 1862.

(SPECIAL ORDERS NO. 18.)

Corporal A. Burnam will at once report to these hd'qr's to take command of skirmishers. Should the enemy appear in too great numbers to be subdued by the usual method, the commanding corporal of each squad will collect them in nose-bags, camp-kettles and coffee-pots and take 'em out to Burn 'em. Corporals commanding squads are instructed to see that the boys work lively so that the coffee-pots and camp-kettles can be returned in time to get supper.

Sargeant Hopkins will see that the company cook looks over the beans once before he biles 'em, and to see that they are biled in two waters, as the lady guests may be more particular on these points than army regulations provide for.

Commissary Sergt. McGrew, will see to it that every comrade has his bacon tied to the bed post in each company tent, so that the aforesaid bacon will not go on dress parade before the expected guests.

Corporal Jennings will attend to the work of policing the company streets.

Brig. Gen. Kistenmacher will superintend the movements of the skirmishers on blankets, as it is desirable that the blankets do not walk off the bunks and go on dress parade while the guests are present.

Corporal Tom Harris will command the finance squad and see that no counterfeit money is taken on change.

All duty Sergents are ordered to use all due diligence to prevent the men from running the guard and shall report all breeches of this order to the commander at once.

All courts martial now in force and pending are hereby suspended during this visitation.

Any feller caught writing to his best girl during these ceremonies will be courtmarshaled at once and drummed out of the camp.

All games of chance will be strictly prohibited under penalty of being court marshaled and drummed out of camp.

These orders are in force and will so continue until further orders.

By order of Commanding Gen'l.

GENERAL DEFEAT, A. A. A. G.

Sandy A Norsk.

One day last week a very clerical looking individual called postmaster McKinnon to one side and addressing him very politely, proceeded to tell him about what "we" will have to do on this and on that to add to the best interests of "our" fellow-countrymen in this new country. Mac took it all in very resignedly for half-hour or so, when the fine-looking individual began to cackle at him in left-handed North American. This was the feather that broke the Scotchman's back. "Hoot, mon," says Mac, "what are you giving us now? I don't find that laid down in the instructions given by Grover, it ain't according to Hoyle, and I know darned well it 'aint Scotch? Where did you get on to that dictionery any how?" Why, "said the now abashed individual, "AINT YOU NORSK?" "I thought you were a Norwegian!" Before Mac could recover his breath from his astonishment, two black coat-tails snapped around the corner and Mac has not seen his inquisitor since. Mind you, Mac don't give this away on himself, but a little bird gives it to us in confidence and in the same way we give it to our readers. If you want to see Mac hot ask him "Snock Norsk?"

They all do it.

Peter Lorge couldn't keep away. He left for Wisconsin early last winter, determined to live there forever hereafter, and he did—until a few days ago when back he came, bag and baggage, and he is now making preparations to go to Edna to farm it this summer. That is usually the case. They can't stay away long at a time.

STORY OF A CLOCK.

BY SEPPERLEE.

I was once an object of pride.

Unlike my metallic rivals of this stupendous nineteenth century, I am organized of wood. I must tell you how the completeness of finish, visible in my wheels and general structure, came about. A poor boy wandered through the streets of Germany, saying over and over again: "If I find a good job, I promise to wall it with honesty, mortar it with prayer, and roof it with perseverance."

At last he got to the ears of Clockmaker Politesse, who said: "Serve your time, Max, and we'll see what can be turned out of you."

So Max served his time.

Day after day I watched him delve at his art, and saw his lips move and his eyes fix steadily as if for some unseen Presence. That was prayer.

I know (no matter how) that often he felt himself to be in a sort of enigmatical vortex, so complicated and exquisite were all the little mysteries of his art; despair seemed to seize him and he would throw down his tools and weep. After a while he would set to work again with a determined execution that made the bits of wood fit into place like a revealed puzzle. That was Perseverance.

Weariness would seize him; he would grow disconsolate over the poor pittance earned; promise and hope would absorb him at the prospect of doubling his income by slighting his work. But he towered in manly scorn of the temptation, and became more than ever docile to his art. That was Honesty.

Sometimes a workmate would stop at his bench with a filthy novel. This one he would invariably shake off, and work with the vim of a blacksmith.

I saw two merry fellows drag him each by an arm to drink with them.

That roused the lion in him. He knocked them down.

He became such an adept that I was put in his hands to be finished, and I was an intricate job, so Politesse averred; and I felt sometimes like saying to Max: "Don't despair; there's a hard place to everything worth having."

I saw him one day try so hard to make the work move in order that he flung his face down on his hands and remained so till the veins swelled out on his forehead. When he looked up a bright beam was in his eyes; it was a cloudy day, too, and all the sunshine that could be found seemed to be there on his face.

"Why," he was saying in a stolen whisper, and like one who had found a pearl at the depths, "If God blesses the work it must be good. Oh, do, do! Oh, do bless it!" he reiterated, and looked up and up as if his spirit from height to height ascended still, until the tears came, shy and covert, like a girl's, and that hour was the dawn of his triumph.

"God surely blessed the work," ruminated he, as at last I stood in monument-like completion on his bench, "and because of that it must ever have a friend."

But wait; let me give you my likeness.

I was at this time, and am still, three foot tall. I have a large, clean, square face and strong hands. I have two iron weights and a loud, sweet bell. My pendulum wags across the face of a little German picture published by "Verlag u Druck v Seitz Wansdeck." It is called "Sunday Afternoon," and represents two little girls with their books and best dresses going to church. The church is in sight, and its gate, at the end of the wild-flowered path, stands open. My frame is of good old flat-topped mahogany, and I have a blooming Easter cross on my door.

Do you like me?

After this, my first launch into society, I changed owners several times. I stood on fine curtained pedestals, with handsome statues on my head, and my bell sounded in "marble halls." But, alas! for the nineteenth century, always humoring that "something new," which is called "progress," fancy clocks of Romeo's poised on one foot and holding aloft the time were given my place. I, with my honest old face, was moved back farther and farther, and so far forgotten at last as to be thought scarce worth the trouble of winding. Remarks of the following nature became familiar:

"Well, where did you get old Noah?"

"Somewhere in the chaotic past."

"What an old wheezer it must be by this time. Does it go?"

"Yes, when 'tis wound."

"And do you not wind it?"

"Oh, bless you, we keep it for mere associations; it will make capital firewood some day."

At the mention of "firewood" my recollections returned to poor Max and all his hard work on me, and his faith that, because God blessed the work, I would ever have a friend.

At last I was passed by my would-be incendiary into the hands of Fritz, one of the family servants about to be married. I lived newly polished and highly appreciated with Fritz and his worthy wife for many a day, and woke him up to work and daily duty by my loud, faithful bell.

It was ever a mystery to me, although it might not have been to Fritz, how one terrible cold day, my hands entangled and my weights refused to lower, my pendulum wagged in vain, my bell, instead of its loud, silvery swing, gave out a limping wheeze, audible only to myself.

Fritz's wife had so relied on me that she sat complacently gossiping with the coachman's widow across the way until dinner time.

"Dinner not ready yet?" cried Fritz, striding in amazed, his mittens stiff, his ears twice their size with the frost, and [illegible] twisting his whiskers.

"Dinner at eleven!" exclaimed his wife, [illegible] "our clock never lies!"

"Eleven!" said Fritz, scornfully, as hunger and a bad temper could make him; "'tis 'one' instead," and his great wolf eyes fixed on me for one moment, first in incredulity, then in frenzy.

He swung open my beautiful door.

"'Tis stopped!" he said, and sank upon a seat.

I was in consequence hustled off next day to a buyer up of "unconsidered trifles." I was set on a shelf and marked:

FOR SALE.

My companions were sofas, chairs, wheelbarrows, banjos, pictures and my rival in antiquity, the proprietor himself, an honest old German, who sat opposite frequently, his long pipe in his mouth, and his eyes almost thanking me for the music of my bell.

One day a lady came in and priced me.

"I had a homelike air," she said, and made her think of her childhood.

"She has a bell," said he, winding me up in greedy haste, until I rang out my music to his satisfaction. "She," he added, meaning my humble self, "she can tell many a tale; she iss an antique."

Before night I was set up in my new home.

"What do you suppose that picture means, mamma?" said the little boy opening my door and peering in.

"It looks," said his mother, "as if the older girl were hurrying her companion and saying—

We must not waste our time,
For church begins at nine."

In the grim dark of night a man opened my door, peered into my face, flared a candle on my works and strode away muttering something about "old trumpery."

Appreciation and encouragement work wonders. I got neither one nor the other here, except from the lady who bought me. A kind word or a helping hand would have lengthened my days of usefulness. Instead, I became a general laughing stock. My bell in consequence refused to sound, my pendulum to wag, my hands to turn. The master lost his train, the boy was late for school, breakfast was an hour behind the prescribed time and household temper was at white heat.

The noon mail bore the following note to my late owner from my present master:

SIR—Come and take your merchandise. If you think you can defraud people thus boldly in this nineteenth century, you are as far behind time as your clock.

That night the good German, note in hand, presented an excited appearance.

"Yes!" he averred. "I am exzited! I have reason to be exzited. Do you think," he said, "I would sell bad merchandise for good? No! I would chop it up for firewood before I would do dot. I am an honest man, and never had anything hurt me like dot" (meaning the letter).

He took me back, and manfully refused the money. Toward night the rain beat in torrents, and splashed furiously against the windows of the old curiosity shop, and there being no depot in the neighborhood a man stepped in to wait for the next car.

He was furred to the neck like a prince and wore a broad brigand-like hat that made him look bushy and fierce.

My master, after exchanging the compliments of the weather, immediately set about relating his grievances. The newcomer listened indifferently at first, and watched for the car. He turned swiftly at the sound of my bell.

"Is that the clock?" he asked, pointing to me and listening to my steady ding dong, which had resumed all its silvery cadence.

My master nodded complacently.

"God blessed the work," muttered the stranger, peering with caressing eyes at my face, "and it shall never want a friend."

It was Max.

He doubled the price asked for me, and carried me in his great arms to the car.

The next day I was burnished up and placed in the grand show window of his wondrous business mart. I stood there from day to day, an old rheumatic antique, surrounded by watches, and rings and marvels of clockwork. My master had me twined with ivy, and wreathed with laurel. I was decorated with gems and people gazed in admiringly at me, but my usefulness was ignored.

I gazed contemplatively at the prosperous man and compared him with the little starved outcast that worked so hard to make me a clock. "The world could have done without me," I murmured. "Why was I ever brought into existence?"

Just then Max came in his grand symmetrical beauty, and stood before me.

"Poor old clock," he said, "everything has its beginning. You were the corner stone of my career; you were my school of practice; in you were concentrated the hard ruts that were destined to cultivate in me perseverance. Poor old clock, you and I shall never part. I have but to look at you, to remember the goodness of God."

"Halloa," said somebody, pausing at the window, "there's old Noah, dressed out like a king. Heigho! I owe the best half of my lifetime to that machine. It woke me up regularly before sunrise for twenty years."

The speaker passed on and the world, dear reader, went turning on its axis just the same as ever.

A Boston writer declares it to be a matter of fact rather than of fancy that there is more nutriment in a dark than a white shelled egg. The white of a white-shelled egg is like milk of limewater, while that of dark eggs has substance [illegible] gelatinous in appearance, and will hold together if lifted a few inches, and it is claimed to be one-third more valuable for any culinary purpose.

[illegible] like a wild plant put in a hot-house, is the latest French criticism of the American girl.

Fancy Shooting on the Stage.

A noted professional shot, who, with his wife, traveled with a wild west show, thus explained to a party of acquaintances how the fancy rifle-shooting is done on the stage: One of the oldest is the bell trick. This is done by having a target placed on the stage with a very small quarter-inch hole as a center, through which the marksman is supposed to put his bullet. Surrounding this is a piece of black cloth, and back of the cloth a saw-plate. If the marksman hits within eight or twelve inches of the center the bell, or rather the plate, which is set loosely, will ring, and the audience will naturally suppose the bullet or bullets penetrated the bull's-eye. This explains how stage shots placed from twenty to twenty-five shots in the bull's-eye in so many seconds.

The next trick is the match trick. This is done by placing a large number of parlor matches in a circle, with the heads of the same pointing inwardly. If the marksman hits, or rather puts his bullet, which is not difficult to do, any place in the circle, he must light one of the matches, and thus lighting the circle. This trick is always done at the back of the stage, and the audience can not see any of the matches, and suppose, naturally, it is but a single match on an iron plate, and if the marksman shoots any reasonable distance near it, it will light from the splash of lead on the solid plate.

In the cigar trick the marksman is supposed to shoot the ashes off a cigar held in the mouth of an assistant. The trick is generally a bona fide one, but can be done by having a wire run through the cigar to the ashes, and at the report of the gun have the assistant touch the wire with his tongue and knock the ashes off. Shooting a silver dime from the mouth, and between the teeth, of an assistant is done by having one marked with a bullet, and showing one not marked to the audience; the assistant changes at the report of the gun and spits out the marked one and shows it to the audience.

The thimble trick is done by placing a thimble on the assistant's head with a thin string attached, and at the report of the gun it is pulled off by another assistant behind the scenes. Shooting through the ring of a watch is done by shooting over the ring, and then, before showing it to the audience, placing the ring of the watch over the hole made, and on a nail placed their beforehand.

Snuffing the candle, which looks so difficult, is done by having the candle close to a solid block of wood. The concussion of the bullet puts out the light, although the bullet hits within three inches of the candle proper. The professor gave an exhibition at one time in a Pennsylvania town where the authorities strictly forbade the firing of solid bullets, and gave as good satisfaction as though he were firing and doing the trick bona fide. So much for stage rifle shooting.—New York News.

Losing Their Food Supplies.

"The most northern inhabitants of any territory belonging to the United States are rapidly dying of privations," said a signal service observer Monday who spent twenty-seven months with Lieut. Ray at Point Barrow. "Their sufferings deserve all the more sympathy because the whites are responsible for the great diminution in their food supply.

"These natives around Point Barrow now number about four hundred souls. Whales and seals are their staple articles of food. The supply used to be abundant, and the natives hardly knew what hunger was. For twenty years past, however, the coast off Point Barrow has been a favorite resort of American whalers. They have caught great numbers of whales there, and have almost exterminated them in these waters. All whalemen have known for several years that it was getting unprofitable to seek for whales around Point Barrow.

"While we were there the one hundred natives in the village at Point Barrow caught only two whales. They eked out a living on eider ducks and other game obtained in the summer months. The failure of their food supply is a possibility that constantly confronts them. Every now and then they are pinched for food, and this new hardship, added to the others they already endured, is killing them fast. The population of the four villages around Point Barrow has decreased about one-third in the past fifteen years. For a little while during our stay there the natives in the village near our station were sorely pressed for food, and we helped them out as much as we could from our stores.

"These natives are a branch of the Esquimaux, and they give the ethnologists who assert that the Esquimaux all came from Asia across Behring straits a rather hard nut to crack. If their ancestors came from Asia it seems strange that the natives of to-day appear to bear no relation to the Chouckchees, who live just across Behring straits in Asia. Their languages are dissimilar, and while the Point Barrow natives hunt the reindeer, they have never domesticated them, while the wealth of the Chouckchees consists in their herds of reindeer."—New York Sun.

Didn't Wait to Wrestle.

Reuben Doolittle was well known as the strongest man in Connecticut and a remarkable wrestler. Men came from distances to throw him, but all failed. Once a stranger arrived at Reuben's on this errand. Reuben asked him to stay all night, promising to wrestle in the morning. Both were up betimes, and the stranger was invited to go out to the barn and have a drink of cider. At the barn Reuben seized a large barrel of cider and with apparent ease lifted it and drank from the bung-hole. "Now," said he, as he put the barrel down and wiped his mouth, "we'll have some breakfast, and then we'll wrestle." The stranger decided he had other business that would prevent the [illegible]

The Dream of Philosophy.

From Admiral Porter's History.

"Perhaps the best thing that ever happened to this great country was the firing on Fort Sumter with the guns of Moultrie and other forts. Who can say that we are not a greater nation to-day, with fredom throughout the land, than we were in the days of the errors and follies of the South, and the anger and prejudices of the North, which embittered one against the other and made the great Council Hall of the nation a place of violence and discord? All that has been swept away with the fall of slavery, and instead of it has come a union of all the States, more earnest and fraternal than before, with the Southern section of the country growing more prosperous and more happy under free labor and equal rights for all those who live in the South. In another generation people will likely bless the day when James Island and Moultrie opened the guns on Sumpter, and caused to be wiped out that dark blot on our escutcheon, which the whole world was pointing at, and asking us how we could call ourselves a free country while four millions of people were held in bondage. Who knows what we might have been but for that long war, which brought so much sorrow and desolation to so many homes? Slavery, with its seductive influences, might have led us away, and in the course of a century our country might have become a land of slaves."

The Will on the Hearthstone.

When I was a boy I heard of a lawyer who was called up in the middle of a cold Winter's night to draw out the will of an old farmer who lived some three miles away and was dying. The messsenger had brought a cart to convey the lawyer to the farm, and the latter in due time arrived at his destination. When he entered the house he was immediately ushered into the sick room, and he then requested to be supplied with pen, ink, and paper. There were none in the house! The lawyer had not brought any himself, and what was he to do? Any lead pencil? he inquired. No; they had none. The farmer was sinking fast, though quite conscious. At last the legal gentleman saw chalked up on the back of the bedroom door column upon column of figures in chalk. These were milk "scores" or "shots." He immediately asked for a piece of chalk, and then kneeling on the floor, he wrote out concisely upon the smooth hearthstone the last will and testament of the dying man. The farmer subsequently died. The hearthstone will was sent to the principal registry in London with special affidavits, and was duly proved, the will being deposited in the archives of the registry. I may mention that the law does not state upon what substance or with what instrument a will must be written.—Chambers's Journal.

From the New York Tribune.

The visitor which was discovered by a Parisian astronomer last December seems destined to cut quite a figure in terrestrial circles. Professor Boss, of the Dudley Observatory, reports that it is increasing in brightness and "promises to be a grand spectacle." By the middle of April it will be visible to the naked eye. We take it that Professor Boss regards this particular celestial as inclined to be sociable with our own planet, for he remarks that when nearest the earth "the comet will be only 12,000,000 miles distant." Distance, like everything else, "depends." If one was in a hurry for an answer and had to send the average district messenger boy 12,000,000 miles with a note to her, with the chance of his loitering on the way to discuss baseball and roller-skating news with one of his brethren—why, then, 12,000,000 miles would seem considerable of a yawning gulf. But let a heavenly body be 12,000,000 miles from the earth and astronomers remark that it is "only" that far off, with an air people alluding to a stranger who, while not exactly living in town can be found in the suburbs.

The committee appointed by the cattle breeders to secure additional legislation to eradicate the lung plague, have returned and agreed upon a bill with the committee on agriculture, that provides for the killing of diseased and exposed cattle, the federal government to pay for them; also, authorizing the officials to enter premises, and fixing penalties for obstructing officers in the discharge of their duty. The committee say they find improved feeling in favor of legislation among southern congressmen, and the most hostility comes from Senator Ingalls. They have arranged to keep one of their number in Washington until legislation is secured.

Near London, 30 miles below Knoxville, Tenn., the wife of Thomas Gray was murdered by a young mulatto, named John Gillespie. Capt. Gray, who is a wealthy farmer, went to a funeral, leaving the negro at work on the premises. Returning two hours later, he found his wife dead on the floor, and their infant child playing in her blood. Gillespie mounted Gray's horse and fled. It is supposed he attempted to outrage the woman. He fired two loads of shot into the back of her head. He was caught and disposed of in the usual way.

"HOW ARE THE FOLKS?"

Said a friend to another as they were passing each other on the street.

"They are all well," was the reply.

"Why, I thought your father had the rheumatism."

"Oh, yes, so he has; he always has that. I forgot all about it."

And so it is with many people who suffer with the most aggravating pains. They hobble round as best they can and get very little or no sympathy on account of their healthful look, and from the fact that it is only rheumatism and they always have it. What pains are more severe than those of rheumatism? Said W. S. Hopkins, living at No. 179 C Avenue, Cedar Rapids, Iowa:

"My wife and daughter were both stricken with inflammatory rheumatism at the same time. The lower limbs were much swollen. The pain seemed almost beyond endurance. Sleep was out of the question. They suffered so much that to move or even touch the sheet on the bed would cause the most violent pain. They were confined to bed four weeks. During that time and previously, I bought many kinds of medicines. Then I employed a physician, but nothing gave relief until I bought some Athlophoros, which I had heard of, and I am glad to say in a very short time the swelling was reduced, the pain gone and they were entirely well."

"How much did they take, Mr. Hopkins?"

"I think it was three bottles in all."

"Have either of them had any return of the rheumatism?"

"Not in the least."

"It was rather a strange coincidence both having an attack at the same time?"

"Yes, it was, but such was the case, strange as it may seem. They were both helpless, but are now well, and all from the use of Athlophoros. It is an excellent medicine, and well worth the trial by any sufferer from rheumatism."

Mrs. C. J. Albeck, living at No. 1067 Clay street, Dubuque, has used Athlophoros, and gives this as her experience with it:

"Yes, I have used it and it cured me. Up to the time I used it, which was in February, 1884, I was subject to frequent attacks of inflammatory rheumatism and have been nearly all my life. At times I would be almost helpless. As sure as I would take a little cold I would have an attack of rheumatism, sometimes in my lower limbs and at others in my arms. When I commenced with the Athlophoros I was carrying my right arm in a sling. It was very much swollen and I could not move my fingers without causing me considerable pain. One evening, while I was suffering in this way, I heard of Athlophoros, and the wonderful cure it had made in Mrs. McCue's case. The next day I sent for a bottle and commenced using it at once. I was a little afraid of it at first, on account of the buzzing sensation it caused in my head, but I reduced the dose and kept taking it regularly. It worked like a charm. The swelling and pain were gone, my rheumatism was well, and I had free use of my arm."

"Has it ever returned, Mrs. Albeck?"

"No, it is now a year and a half and I have not suffered any since."

"Then it has proven a valuable medicine in curing you of chronic rheumatism?"

"Yes, it certainly has, and I could not say too much in favor of Athlophoros."

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed. ATHLOPHOROS Co., 112 Wall Street, New York.

Scrofula of Lungs.

I am now 49 years old, and have suffered for the last fifteen years with a lung trouble. I have spent thousands of dollars to arrest the march of this disease; but temporary relief was all that I obtained. I was unfit for any manual labor for several years. A friend strongly recommended the use of Swift's Specific (S. S. S.), claiming that he himself had been greatly benefitted by its use in some lung troubles. I resolved to try it. The results are remarkable. My cough has left me, my strength has returned, and I weigh sixty pounds more than I ever did in my life. It has been three years since I stopped the use of the medicine, but I have had no return of the disease, and there are no pains or weakness felt in my lungs. I do the hardest kind of mechanical work, and feel as well as I ever felt since I was a boy. These I know, are wonderful statements to make, but I am honest when I say that I owe my existence and health to-day to S. S. S. I would be recreant to the duty I owe to humanity if I failed to bear this cheerful testimony to the merits of this wonderful medicine.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, on the 24th day of June 1885, at the City of Crookston, of Polk County, Minnesota, one P. J. Lachapelle and one Andrew Absalomson the said P. J. Lachapelle being then and there the owner, as mortgagee, by virtue of a chattel mortgage, and the said Andrew Absalomson being in legal possession of a certain hack, did request Euclid and Angus Munn, co-partners under the firm name of Munn Bro's, to make and perform certain repairs on said hack. And whereas, the said Munn Bro's pursuant to said request did do, make and perform repairs on said hack of the just and reasonable worth and value of fifty dollars, and the said Munn Bro's claim a lien on said hack to the amount of said repairs and still hold, and retain possession of said hack since the making of said repairs. And whereas, more than three months have elapsed since the making of said repairs upon said hack and the said $50 has not been paid or any part thereof, although the sum has been heretofore duly demanded of the said P. J. Lachapelle and the said Andrew Absalomson. Now therefore, notice is hereby given that pursuant to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided; the said Munn Bro's, will, on the 5th day of April, 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the front door of Munn Bro's Carriage Works, on the corner of Third Street and Broadway, in said City of Crookston, expose said hack for sale, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy the said lien, and the costs of such sale.

Mortgage Sale.

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Wenzel E. Newes, and Augusta M. Newes, his wife, mortgagors, to the Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, a corporation duly organized and acting under the laws of the State of Minnesota, mortgagee, which mortgage bears date the 9th day of November A. D. 1883, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 8th day of January A. D. 1884, at 11:20 o'clock a. m., in book "P" of mortgage deeds on pages 192, 193 and 194, and whereas said mortgage was executed to secure the payment of the sum of one thousand dollars with interest, from date on the sum of four hundred and fifty dollars, at the rate of ten per cent per annum, and also to secure the sum of five dollars per month as and for the monthly contribution on five shares of the capital stock of said Association then owned by the said Wenzel E. Newes, said interest and said dues being payable on the first Saturday of each and every month after the date of said mortgage according to the conditions of a certain bond for the sum of two thousand dollars executed and delivered by the said Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, and bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain other and second mortgage executed and delivered by the aforesaid Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes, his wife, to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, which mortgage bears date the 17th day of November A. D. 1884, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota on the 17th day of November A. D. 1884, at 3:45 o'clock p. m. in book "S" of mortgage deeds, on pages 468, 469 and 470, and whereas said second mortgage was executed to secure the payment of the sum of one thousand dollars with interest from date on the sum of three hundred and fifty dollars at the rate of ten per cent per annum and also to secure the sum of five dollars per month as and for the monthly contribution on five shares of the capital stock of said Association then owned by the said Wenzel E. Newes, said interest and said dues being payable on the first Saturday of each and every month after the date of said second mortgage according to the conditions of a certain bond for the sum of two thousand dollars executed and delivered by the said Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes, to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston and bearing even date of November 10th A. D. 1884, and said second mortgage being upon the same real estate as the mortgage first above mentioned.

And whereas it is provided in each of said mortgages herein described, that in case any default should be made in the payment of the said principal sums when due or interest, or any part thereof for the space of six months after the same shall have become due, or in case said shares should be sold for the non payment of dues, then and in such case the whole principal debt should immediately thereupon become due, and whereas default has been made in the payment of said interest and of said monthly dues secured by both of said mortgages for more than six months whereby according to the terms of said mortgages the whole principal debt has become due, and said ten shares of stock have been duly forfeited and sold for non payment of dues, and whereas no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise for the recovery of said debt or any part thereof.

And whereas, there is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice, the sum of nine hundred forty-eight and 05-100 dollars on said first mortgage and the sum of eleven hundred twenty-three and 45-100 dollars on said second mortgage, making in the aggregate the sum of two thousand seventy-one and 50-100 dollars now due.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that under and by virtue of the powers of sale in said mortgages contained, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the real estate and premises mentioned in each of said mortgages which are situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and described as follows to-wit: Lot number thirteen (13,) in block number two (2,) of L. Fletcher's Addition to Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County, State of Minnesota, will be sold by the Sheriff of said County of Polk, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, on Saturday the first day of May A. D. 1886, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on the debt secured by both of said mortgages, together with the sum of fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Mortgage Sale.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Thillesphone Joly and Harriet, his wife, mortgagors, to Colonial and United States Mortgage Company, (Limited) mortgagee, dated the 17th day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 17th day of November, A. D. 1882, at one o'clock p. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 501, 502 and 503, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of six hundred and eighty-three dollars and twenty-five cents, ($683.25) besides the further sum of $27.81 paid for taxes upon the mortgaged premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy, on Friday, the 16th day of April, A. D. 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and provided by law.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section number thirty-three, (33) in township number one hundred and fifty, (150) in Range number forty-three (43) west of the 5th principal meridian, containing 160 acres.

BE IT KNOWN, THAT ON THE thirteenth day of January one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, Joseph Boiselle, and Cile Boiselle, his wife, made, executed and delivered unto The Farmers' and Mechanics' Savings Bank of Minneapolis, their certain mortgage; That said mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, State of Minnesota, on the thirteenth day of January A. D. 1881, at three o'clock in the afternoon, in book "D" of mortgages, on pages forty-two, forty-three and forty-four, that said mortgage conveyed the hereinafter described premises to secure the payment of three hundred ($300.00-100) dollars, in five years from its date, and the interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum, per annum, payable semi-annually. That default has been made in the payment of said principal sum, and of interest thereon. That there is hereby claimed to be due on said mortgage debt the sum of three hundred and thirty-six ($336,) dollars, that no action or proceeding, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, that said mortgaged premises are situate in Polk County, Minnesota, and are described as follows, viz: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section thirty-four (34,) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152,) Range forty-six (46,) containing one hundred and sixty acres, more or less, according to United States Government survey.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given; that by reason of said default in the conditions of said mortgage, and by virtue of the power of sale therein contained, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of said described mortgaged premises, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the eighth day of May A. D. 1886, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and twenty-five dollars, attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage, in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption as provided by law.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by William Wylie and Mary Jane Wylie, mortgagors, to Edwin H. Pease, mortgagee, dated the 25th day of February A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-one and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of March A. D. 1881, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "D" of mortgages, on pages 201, 202 and 203, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of three hundred and ten dollars and seventy-three cents ($310.73,) and the sum of eighteen dollars and fifty-five cents ($18.55,) necessarily paid for taxes on said land and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and by and under the authority in said mortgage contained, the said assignee elects to and does declare and claim that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid, is due and payable.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Friday the 9th day of April A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, by the Sheriff of said county or his deputy duly appointed, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars ($25.00) attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-five, (25,) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres according to the United States Government survey thereof.

England established her system of post office savings banks in 1861. Postmaster-General Fawcett, writing in 1883, declared that by that time one in ten of the entire population of England and Wales had become a depositor in the Post Office Savings Bank.

In a public address in Boston, Hon. Adin Thayer predicted that Irish legislative independence would be an accomplished fact within three years. This is said to be Parnell's own limit of time, despite the more sanguine predictions of some of his followers, and hence A. D. 1889 has now been set as the Irish year of jubilee.

The enforced reduction of the hours of work on street car lines in New York seems to have had a pronounced effect all around. Street railway employes in other cities are encouraged to bring a pressure for a readjustment of hours and wages; and, as a rule, the companies are disposed to concede reasonable demands.

Germany is so very conservative that if by chance a step is taken in advance it is followed by a retrogressive move still more decided. The government has just discharged all the female clerks employed in the postoffice, the telegraph bureau and the railway service of the empire. The government organs, referring to this wholesale change, simply announce that after a trial women have proved unfit for the public service.

Postmasters appointed by the President are forbidden to hold any other office, whether salaried or not, under State Territorial or municipal government "except the offices of Justice of the Peace, of notary public and of commissioners to take the acknowledgment of deeds, or bail, or administer oaths." Postmasters of the fourth-class are permitted to hold any office to which they may be appointed or elected, "provided the same be found not to interfere with the discharge of their duties as Postmasters."

Florida tourists would deserve commiseration, if they were compelled to "live on the country." Almost everything in the food line, outside of fruit, must be sent from the North. The hotels at Jacksonville, St. Augustine, Magnolia and Fernandina vie with any in New York in their appointments. The shipments of meat amount to 100 tons per week and comprise short ribs of beef, choicest parts of prime mutton and veal. The poultry and game shipments average about eighty tons per week, while several ton of butter, cheese, eggs, &c., are also sent. Fifty cans of milk of forty quarts each go weekly, besides sweet cream.

Mr. Ferdinand Gagnon, the editor of the Travailleur, a French paper of Worcester, Mass., has sent to his readers from his deathbed an affecting farewell, which was published in his paper. He speaks of the certainty of his death within a few days, recounts his labors in their behalf, and concludes: "Thanks to all our readers, and to the friends of the journal, for what they have done for us. May they be happy! May they enjoy good health! May their fortunes be favorable! May they have the blessing of God! We ask forgiveness of those to whom we may have given offense, as we forgive our enemies the ill they may have done us. May they all live in peace happiness and content! Adieu! Adieu! Adieu!"

Dr. Frank H. Hamilton, of New York, who was one of Garfields consulting surgeons, read a paper the other day entitled "Cremation." Dr. Hamilton said that the danger to life and health from burial four or six feet under the soil, as practiced in this country, had been greatly exagerated, if indeed it could be said to exist at all. He cited the testimony of the eminent French scientists Duchatelet, Dubois, Dupuyten, and Boyer, who all concurred in the opinion that it was an error to suppose that the air in the neighborhood of graveyards or dissecting rooms was contaminated by emanations from dead bodies. There was no more danger arising from the presence of human remains than from those of other animals, and if incineration was needed by the human race for protection against decaying animal matter and the germs of disease nothing short of the cremation of the whole world would avail. Dr. Hamilton concluded: "In this country there is a strong public feeling opposed to even voluntary cremation. The same is true of civilized nations in all parts of the world, and especially among those calling themselves Christains. This may be only due to sentiment, but no true friend of the human race, Christian or infidel, would wantonly destroy that sentiment. If anyone desires to be cremated there exists no valid reason why he should not be, but I argue that it is totally unnecessary for any sanitary reasons and therefore there is no [illegible] should be enforced [illegible] it should [illegible] reluctant public."

General News Condensed.

A Heavy Damage Suit Decided.

The remarkable case of Charles L. Dunn against the Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern Railroad company was decided in the Minnesota supreme court, the order of the lower court in favor of the plaintiff being affirmed, and a new trial refused. Judges Berry and Vanderburgh filed a dissenting opinion. Dunn is a minor, who was terribly injured and most horribly mutilated in a railroad accident in the spring of 1884, for which the above company was held responsible. His most serious injury was the loss of his eyesight. Dunn sued the company for $50,000 damages. The case was tried before Judge Simons, and the jury gave the plaintiff the full amount asked for. This was the largest amount ever given in the United States in a case of the kind. Judge Simons held that the damages were excessive, and reduced them to $25,000. The case was carried to the supreme court on two points. First, it was claimed that the case should be tried in the United States circuit court, as the defendant was not a citizen of the state, and also that a new trial should be granted on the grounds of excessive damages. The court decided against the company on both appeals. Judge Berry and Vanderburgh, in their dissent, held that the case should be tried in the United States circuit court.

Death of Another Congressman.

Hon. Michael Hahn, representative in Congress from the Second District of Louisiana, died in Washington from the rupture of a blood-vessel near the heart. Mr. Hahn was a native of Bavaria, where he was born in 1830. While an infant he was brought to this country by his widowed mother, who took up her residence in New Orleans. He received a public school education, and adopted the law as a profession, early showing a fondness for political life. During the war he was a Union Democrat, active in the work of reconstruction, and was elected to congress in 1862. In March 1864, he was elected the first governor of the free state of Louisiana, and in January, 1865, being elected United States senator, he resigned, but did not press his claim for the senate. He was at various times connected with the press, and held a number of important offices, being superintendent of the mint in 1878, and afterward on the bench. He was elected to the Forty-ninth congress as a republican over Houston, Democrat.

Washington Gossip.

Second Controller Maynard makes an important ruling as to bounty for volunteers enlisting prior to July 22, 1861.

The house committee on education has decided to report the Blair educational bill, recently passed by the senate, adversely.

Gen. McClernand will probably be asked to accept the chairmanship of the Utah commission, which ex-Gov. Ramsey has just resigned.

It is understood that Maj. Lewis Merrill, Seventh cavalry, whose nomination for promotion to be lieutenant colonel was withdrawn because he had previously been recommended for retirement, will be again nominated by the president.

The senate committee on the District of Columbia has decided to report adversely the nomination of Matthews, the colored man from Albany, as register of deeds in Washington, on the ground that a resident of the district should have been appointed.

Senator Morrill has introduced a bill to appropriate $300,000 for the erection of an extension of the executive mansion south of the present structure, of equal and similar exterior character, and to be connected with the executive mansion by a corridor.

Mr. Browne of Indiana will introduce a resolution in the house to investigate charges against Deputy Doorkeeper Luther F. Warden of New Albany, Ind., of having secured $1,250 from citizens of that place to get through an appropriation of $50,000 to improve the Ohio river.

The president has set aside the court martial sentence of dismissal of Capt. Jacob H. Smith, Nineteenth infantry, and he will be restored to duty. The president also mitigated the sentence of dismissal of Lieut. E. S. Avis, Fifth infantry, to suspension from duty for one year on half-pay.

The retiring board which examined Lieut. James F. Simpson found that he was mentally and physically competent to perform active service, but was morally disqualified. As the question of Lieut. Simpson's morals was not one with which the board was concerned, the president very properly disapproved their findings.

The senate passed the Wilson bill, forfeiting to the state of Iowa the land granted to the Sioux City & St. Paul, recently, instead of the McMillan bill as reported. Wilson's bill gives five full sections of land, or the lands which the company has already in its possession, and is considered by the settlers to be more just to them and a much more equitable plan of settlement than the McMillan measure.

The following letter, written by a bright and witty Florida girl, sent here to one of the representatives from that state, and by him forwarded to the love-sick Florida senator, may have had something to do with his reported intention to leave the western city: Why should the senator seek the cold, sterile and forbidding wilds of Michigan in the dreary winter months, and amid the blizzards of the north waste his virgin affections upon the heart of a scornful and unresponsive woman? Let him return to his own sunny land, where the mocking bird ever sings in the magnolias, and the lemon tree loads the soft air with odors, and the orange flowers scent the passing gale. Why does he turn away from us, his sisters of the balmy and languid south, who long for his kisses? Come back, oh, Jonesey, you all fool! come back.

The testimony in the Cincinnati police court case of Henry and Rudolph Bleisten, charged by Fred Kohl with shooting with intent to kill, developed the fact that a communists organization of riflemen exists in the city of which the two defendants are members.

Detectives arrested James Beshears, at Shelbyville, Ill., charging him with being one of the express robbers. Beshears had just returned to Shelbyville after several days' absence. He could not satisfy or explain why he received an ugly-looking wound on his head.

Mrs. Kate Harden, a well-dressed woman with a profusion of jewelry, skipped into the Chicago police office, and notified Capt. Buckley that she had been robbed of $2,000 worth of jewelry and clothing by Harry Oaland, a piano player. The robbery was committed in Eau Claire, Wis., where Mrs. Harden was living with Oaland as his wife. Oaland could not be found.

Record of Casualties.

The Toledo House of Refuge, in the outskirts of the city, caught fire in the roof and was totally destroyed. It belonged to the city. The fire was undoubtedly incendiary.

In his story, "Nicholas Minturn," published in Scribner's Monthly some years ago the late Dr. Holland described the loss of a steamer just outside of New York under circumstances almost identical with those that attended the wreck of the Oregon. At the time the story was published Dr. Holland was criticised, and his story was ridiculed as improbable, it not being considered within the bounds of possibility that a great ocean vessel could be wrecked in calm weather in a collision so near New York.

Sympathy with the strikers is manifested among the laboring classes, although the revolutionary spirit is manifested only where the socialists have left the print of their theories.

Michael Davitt, in a speech at Oxford, announces that his idea of home rule government was that it would always be the representative of the crown, and have command of the imperial forces in Ireland. The power of vote should be allowed the assembly, which would consist of three hundred members, seventy or eighty of whom perhaps, might not be Home Rulers. The government should consist of the ministers of finance, land, agriculture, local government, public works and education, and should have control of the police, customs and excise departments, without which it would be a farce. He believed that Ireland would not impose import duties.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

SENATE.—The senate agreed to a resolution to appoint Rev. J. G. Butler, D. D., of Washington chaplain. Among petitions presented and referred to committees were a number from local assemblies of Knights of Labor throughout the country favoring the building of the Hennepin canal.

Mr. Ingalls submitted a joint resolution proposing a constitutional amendment providing that April 30 shall be the day for the beginning of the successive administrations of the government, instead of March 4.

A message from the house notified the senate of the death of Representative Hahn of Louisiana. On motion of Mr. Eustis, out of respect to the memory of the deceased, the senate adjourned. Immediately after reading the journal the house adjourned out of respect to the memory of Mr. Hahn.

SENATE.—On motion of Mr. Van Wyck, the house bill increasing the pensions of soldiers' widows, etc., was taken up. After considerable debate and the rejection of several amendments, the bill passed as it came from the house. It now needs only the president's signature to become a law. It increases the pensions of widows and dependent relatives from $8 to $12 a month.

Mr. Cockrell, from the committee on military affairs, reported favorably the bill to amend article 103 of the rules and articles of war, so as to provide:

No person shall be tried or punished by a court martial for desertion in time of peace committed more than two years before his arraignment, unless he may meanwhile have absented himself from the United States, in which case the time of his absence shall be excluded in computing the period of limitation.

The pension bill reported to the senate by Mr. Blair provides:

Every person specified under the several clauses enumerated under section 4,693 of the Revised Statutes who served six months in the military or naval service during the war of the rebellion, and who was honorably discharged, who is or shall become disabled from any cause not the result of his own gross carelessness, shall, upon making known the facts, be placed upon the pension roll, and receive a pension during the continuance of such disability at a rate proportional to the degree of disability, such pension to commence at the date of filing of the application. The highest rate of pension granted under this section is fixed at $24 for total incapacity to perform manual labor.

Mr. Cullom spoke in support of the senate's claim to official papers on file in the departments, and Mr. Maxey addressed the senate on the other side. Mr. Dolph criticised the president for the removal of ex-Union soldiers from office.

Mr. Browne of Indiana, rising to a privileged question in the house, offered a resolution proposing an investigation of charges against Luther F. Warder, assistant doorkeeper of the house of representatives, and O. O. Steeley, clerk to Speaker Carlisle, both of Indiana, to the effect that the former secured from citizens of Jeffersonville, during the last congress, sums of money aggregating $1,250 for alleged services in securing an appropriation of $50,000 during the last congress for improving the levee of Jeffersonville. The resolution was adopted without debate and referred to the committee on reform in the civil service.

SENATE.—Mr. Van Wyck offered the following resolution which was adopted:

Resolved, That the committee on public lands be directed to examine the nature and extent of the alleged use and destruction of timber on the public lands adjoining the line of the Northern Pacific railroad, particularly by the Montana Improvement company, and what, if any additional legislation is necessary to protect timber on the public domain, and that the committee have power to send for persons and papers.

The chair laid before the senate the new electoral count bill, and Mr. Hoar addressed the senate on the bill. At the conclusion of Mr. Hoar's remarks the bill was passed without a division.

The unfinished business being the Edmunds resolution, reported from the judiciary committee, was then laid before the senate, and Mr. Dolph resumed the floor and continued his remarks in favor of the majority report of the committee.

Just before the senate went into executive session there was a lively tilt between Senators Beck and Edmunds, which was very much enjoyed by the spectators in the galleries. Mr. Edmunds having objected to Mr. Beck's referring to what had been done in executive session in the Duskin case, some sharp passages occurred between them, during which the acts of the senate in executive session were so strongly hinted at by Beck as to alarm the other senators and to prevent further exposure, the senate ordered the galleries cleared and the doors closed, and went into executive session. The controversy was not resumed. In the executive session Mr. Conger moved to reconsider the vote by which R. F. Dement was recently confirmed to be surveyor general of Utah. The motion to reconsider suspends the action of the senate in the case, and Dement's nomination will be hung up until the motion to reconsider is disposed of.

HOUSE.—After numerous reports on various bills, the Indian appropriation bill was discussed, and Mr. Wellborn of Texas made a strong speech in favor of the civilization of the Indians.

SENATE.—The following bills passed: A bill providing for a commission of five persons to investigate the alcoholic liquor traffic, its relation to revenue and taxation, and its general, economic, criminal, moral, and scientific aspects; providing for the study in the schools of the territories and the District of Columbia of the nature of alcoholic stimulants and narcotics; to remove the charge of desertion from the records of the adjutant general of the army against soldiers who re-enlisted in the late war without having received a discharge from their first regiment, providing the secretary of war shall be satisfied that the re-enlistment was not to secure a bounty.

The debate on the resolutions censuring the attorney general was resumed, and Mr. Spooner spoke in support of them. At the close of the speech Messrs. Edmunds, Evarts, Hoar and others gathered around the young Wisconsin senator, and paid the highest sort of compliments. Mr. Evarts said afterward that Mr. Spooner's argument on the distinction between the power to suspend and the power to remove officials, and his exposition of the constitutionality of the tenure of office act exhausted the whole subject of debate, and he should not speak.

In executive session the Senate confirmed John Woessner, Texas, consul at Saltillo; V. O. King, Texas, secretary of the legation and consul general at Bogota; Brig. Gen. Alfred H. Terry, major general; Elid R. Bannister, Indiana, Indian Inspector.

HOUSE.—After various bills had been reported from committees, the bill authorizing the court of claims to investigate other than war claims was discussed, as was also the Indian appropriation bill. The banking and currency committee of the house had a conference with Treasurer Jordan at his residence. The principal subject of discussion was as to the best means of keeping silver in circulation as long as possible. Treasurer Jordan favored making the banks the circulating agency, instead of the treasury. He thought this would secure the longest and cheapest circulation.

SENATE.—The national live stock highway bill passed, as did all the private pension bills on the calendar. Excitement was caused by the clerk reading a portion of a communication from the secretary of the treasury which was an executive document, but not being so marked had been handed to the clerk by the president pro tempore. The reading stopped short when the clerk realized the nature of the document. Mr. Spooner concluded his speech in support of the resolutions censuring the attorney general. Mr. Saulsbury spoke in defense of the administration. Bills were introduced for the removal of the Southern Ute Indians from Colorado to Utah and to increase the Minneapolis public building appropriation to $350,000. Adjourned till Monday.

HOUSE.—It being private bill day, nothing of public interest was done, although a warm debate took place on a bill to place Col. H. J. Hunt on the retired list with the rank of major general.

The President Reprimanding Army Officers.

Washington Special: The president has made an indorsement upon the proceedings of a recent court martial that will attract attention in the army. Capt. Smith of the Nineteenth infantry, forwarded a complaint of unjust treatment to the secretary of war direct, without sending it through the headquarters of his commanding officer, against whom he entered the complaint. For this he was tried and sentenced to be dismissed by a court of which Col. A. C. Brockett, of the Third cavalry, was president. After examining the record, President Cleveland indorsed it as follows:

Executive Mansion, March 9, 1886.—The sentence awarded Capt. Smith in the foregoing case is remitted. But the president deems it to be his duty to notice the breach of propriety and military discipline on the part of Capt. Smith, and to reprimand him for his misconduct in forwarding directly to the war department the papers of remonstrance. His reasons for so doing are insufficient, and the suspicions upon which he acted had no foundation in fact. On a careful examination of the proceedings the president is forced to the conclusion that the most prominent fact in this case is a sad exhibition of official impropriety on the part of the judge advocate of the court, whose disregard of the duties of his important office led him to appear in the several characters of complainant, prosecutor, witness and adviser of the court. It appears in the evidence that from the beginning of the former trial to the conclusion of the present trial a feeling of bitter hostility existed between the judge advocate and the accused, which fact is made the more prominent by the voluntary admission of the judge advocate that he himself preferred the gravest charge in the specifications, the only one imputing direct falsehood against the accused. The judge advocate was manifestly disqualified and incapable of properly discharging his duties of judge advocate because of the interest which he took in the conviction of the accused. For this reason he should have requested relief from a duty which he could not perform in justice to himself, the accused and the service.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

Wholesale Negro Killing.

A dispatch from Carrolton, Miss., says: Some weeks ago two negroes attempted to assassinate J. M. Liddell, Jr., a prominent citizen, inflicting several wounds. The negroes engaged in this attempt are known to be the most defiant and lawless in the county, and since the attempt on Mr. Liddell's life have been more openly defiant than ever. For some reason not known they swore out a warrant a few days ago for Mr. Liddell's arrest. It was at this trial that the killing occurred. The negroes present were mostly armed. About 1 o'clock a party of armed men, some forty or fifty, rode up to the court house. They dismounted, and entering the building, at once commenced firing on the negroes, with the above result. They then returned by the same route they came. They do not live near Carrolton. At the trial about twenty colored men were present. The fifty white men, well mounted and each carrying a Winchester rifle, came galloping up and surrounded the court house. They then fired into the building, instantly killing ten negroes and wounding three others, so that they died soon after, and with the exception of a few who escaped through a window, all the other negroes in the building were wounded, some of them seriously. The trouble between Liddell and the negroes occurred three weeks ago. Liddell had interfered in a row between two negroes and afterward heard the crowd cursing him. He walked up to them and inquired why they were abusing him. An altercation ensued and a number of shots were fired, Liddell being severely wounded.

Career of a Robber and Murderer.

In an interview at Chicago, Detective Matt Pinkerton details the career of young Henry Estee, now under arrest for the murder of two policemen at Geneva. The young man was well connected, but had the strange ambition to become a highwayman and general desperado. He began his life of crime when but eighteen, since which time he has served four and a half years in Iowa and Missouri penitentiaries and others for burglary and other crimes. Nevertheless he preserved a good reputation at home. His lawless acts have been performed under the Alias of Harry Emerson. At Geneva, Estee's residence, he, in company with two crooks named Larkin and Mohahan, was caught by a couple of policemen robbing a dwelling. The officers were shot dead in their tracks, and the crime would probably have forever remained a mystery but for Estee's desire to attain notoriety. In order to join a supposed gang of cut-throats he attempted to prove himself entitled to fellowship by narrating his connection with the tragedy in Geneva. The members of the gang were simply detectives shadowing him, and the sequel was Estee's arrest for murder.

After Apollinaris, What?

Senator Thurman and his amiable wife, says a Washington correspondent, are receiving marked attention from members of both parties. Mrs. Thurman goes everywhere that he goes. "Allen" and "Mary" are inseparable friends, and Mary takes pretty good care of Allen, too, in a quiet way. "Some time ago," said a close, personal friend of the ex-senator, "Mr. Thurman was visiting here, when some friends came in for an hour's chat. In the course of the seance it was suggested that something of a liquid nature might prove appropriate to the occasion. 'Well,' said old Allen G., with a sly look at Mary, 'I might take a little Apollinaris. Mary has shut down on me lately, and says I can't have anything else.' 'No, indeed,' said Mary, 'nothing stronger for you just now, Allen.' So the Apollinaris came up and was disposed of with rather wry faces, for it was not a beverage to which the gentlemen were much devoted. When the chat was ended, old Allen walked down stairs with his guests and, glancing nervously about to see that Mary was not in hearing, said: 'Well gentlemen, let's go down to the bar and get something to hold that Apollinaris down.'"

When the present administration went into force, Gov. Murray signified through Judge Harland that his resignation was at the disposal of the president whenever desired. A few days ago he received a telegram from Secretary Lamar stating that his resignation was desired. Gov. Murray replied, saying the same would be handed the president by R. N. Baskin, a delegate chosen by the Mormons to proceed to Washington to represent their interest.

EXPRESS TRAGEDY.

Robbers Enter an Express Car on the Rock Island Railway and Brutally Slay the Messenger, After a Fierce Struggle.

One of the most daring and bloody express robberies ever perpetrated in Illinois occurred on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific west-bound express on the 12 inst., between Joliet and Morris. The facts, as learned from the baggageman, are that shortly after the train, which leaves Joliet at 12:45 a. m., had left the city, he heard a rap at the baggage car door. Thinking it was the express messenger, he opened the door, and was met by masked robbers, who covered him with revolvers and demanded his key to the express car. The key was given up and one robber, who was on top of the express car, held a revolver on the baggageman through a transom in the roof of the car, while his confederates turned their attention to the express car. It is thought they rapped on the express car door and informed the messenger, H. S. Nichols, that the baggageman wanted to get in. At any rate, the express car door was opened and the desperadoes entered. Then occurred one of the most bloody and desperate struggles on record. Being confronted by the murderous villains, the messenger fought for his life, and the property in his trust. The interior of the express car shows that he fought the robbers from one end of the car to the other, but at last the murderous blows they rained on his head with an iron poker forced him to succumb, and he was left dead in the car. The robbers rifled his pockets of the keys to the safe, which they robbed of all its contents, variously estimated at from $25,000 to $100,000. Checks and valuable packages not containing money they left scattered about the floor. Nothing was known of the occurrence until the train reached Morris, the first stop west of here except the coal chute where the train stopped to take on coal.

Nichols was a brave and trusted employe of the company. He was about forty years of age and had spent twenty years with the company, being one of the oldest employes running on any road out of the city. Mr. Nichols was a married man, but had no children.

The dead messenger was a married man and lived at Chicago. He has been in the service of the United States Express company about ten years, and was one of their most trusted employes. Where the robbers boarded the train is as yet mere speculation. Conductor Wagner does not remember having seen any suspicious characters aboard last night. The general opinion is that the gang got on the train at the coal chute, two miles west of Joliet, and jumped off just before the train reached Morris.

Important Offices Filled.

The president has sent the following nominations to the senate:

William M. Trenholm, South Carolina, now civil service commissioner, controller of the currency in the place of Henry W. Cannon, resigned; John H. Oberly, Illinois, civil service commissioner, in the place of William N. Trenholm; Charles Lyman, Connecticut, now chief examiner of the civil service commission, civil service commissioner in the place of Dorman B. Eaton, resigned.

The president said that the three men named were selected without recommendations, and solely on his own personal knowledge of their character and capacity.

Mr. Trenholm is fifty years of age and while in private life was a commission merchant in Charleston, S. C. He is a son of the treasurer of the Confederate states and was first brought into prominence by his addresses on silver before national bankers' conventions and his writings on the same question. He was appointed civil service commissioner on Nov. 4, 1885.

Mr. Lyman was born in Connecticut and served in the Federal army during the late rebellion, being a captain. In May, 1884, he was appointed to a clerkship in the treasury department and held that position until made chief examiner of the civil service commission upon the organization of that body.

John H. Oberly is one of the best-known politicians of Illinois. He is in the prime of life, and has served as chairman of the democratic committee of his state. Last year President Cleveland appointed him superintendent of Indian schools, in which office he has made a good record.

Queer Practices in England.

London Special: Quite a deal of excitement in religious circles has been caused by the columns of correspondence which have appeared in the Daily Telegraph, drawn out by the assertion of an anonymous correspondent in a religious paper that the so-called Sunday school soirees, which are a regular feature of the many churches, are immoral in their effects. The unknown critic alleges that at all the soiree's kissing games are indulged in for hours among the youths of both sexes. A number of Sunday school teachers have written to the Telegraph confirming this statement. Some defend the practices referred to and claim that they furnish an attraction not only harmless, but without which the Sunday school would be deserted. This statement has aroused the wrath and denial of other church people, and so the controversy goes on. Many of those who admit the existence of this feature of the soirees, deplore it, and declare that dire moral results have sometimes been discovered to result from it. One of the effects of the discussion has been to bring out the fact that similar practices to the one in question are carried on at a majority of the meetings of the temperance organizations, known as the Band of Hope, and also at Good Templar meetings.

Devil's Lake Case Finally Decided.

The secretary of the interior has rendered a decision in the ex-parte case of James Brittin of Devil's Lake, Dak., reversing the decision of the commissioner of the general land office of Nov. 12, 1885, which held that as under section 2261, Revised Statutes, a person was entitled to but one pre-emption right, he could not after perfecting one pre-emption right be permitted to commute a homestead entry to a cash entry under section 2301, Revised Statutes, as this would be equivalent to a second exercise of the same right. The secretary says that he concurs in the construction of the statute as construed by his predecessors, to the effect that the law was intended to secure to those who had heretofore availed themselves of the pre-emption right, the benefit of the homestead law in addition thereto. In respect to the interests involved this decision is regarded by land office officials as extremely important.

A Tragedy at Arkansas Hot Springs.

George D. Williams, clerk at the Sumpter house, Hot Springs, Ark., shot and killed Mrs. Norris, a guest of the house, and attempted to kill himself. It is said that an undue intimacy has for some time existed between Williams and Mrs. Norris, who was quite young and a very fascinating woman. Her alleged husband, a sporting man, claims, to have discovered Williams in his wife's apartment, and the matter became public through a disturbance which ensued. Williams is a young man, very popular in society, and no stain on his character had ever before existed. He fired only two shots, one of which penetrated the heart of his victim and the other his own head, just above the right temple. It only fractured the skull, and the wound is not fatal. He is now in prison. The woman was the mistress of M. H. Norris. The couple had boarded at the Sumpter house since November. A few nights ago Norris was dissuaded from shooting Williams and the woman. The latter several weeks since stole $600 from Norris and gave the money to Williams for safe-keeping, and they intended using it to take them to Mexico, but were prevented by Col. Sumpter.

A PRECEDENT ESTABLISHED.

The Governor Removes D. C. Cameron, the County Superintendent of Schools of Houston County, for Alleged Drunkenness.

Gov. Hubbard has issued an order for the removal of D. C. Cameron, county superintendent of schools of Houston county. The case has attracted much attention throughout the state, and a very strong fight was made by both sides. Cameron was serving out his second term in the office. He was recognized as a most excellent official, but it is alleged had one failing which has caused his downfall. He was addicted to liquor, and was, it is charged, an habitual drunkard.

The case was brought before the governor several weeks ago. Cameron employed eminent counsel, and the case was argued at great length. In addition to this, some 300 pages of testimony and evidence was submitted to the governor. Cameron's counsel held that the law passed by the legislature, to the effect that habitual drunkenness was a cause for removal, was unconstitutional. The constitution provided that only malfeasance and non-feasance in office were causes for removal. The point as to whether habitual drunkenness was malfeasance was one which only a court could decide, and the governor therefore did not have jurisdiction. This Gov. Hubbard overruled. The defense also claimed that the removal for such cause was contrary to all precedent. Gov. Hubbard came out very strongly on this point, and he says plainly that if there is no precedent one should be established at once, and he would do it. The Governor says: I appreciate all the reasons which have combined to make Mr. Cameron's neighbors look with indulgence upon his faults and cherish hope of his amendment, and so long defer action for his removal. I share their regret that he has not made the present action unnecessary. It is argued that the language of the statute that the governor "may remove from office" for given causes implies that he may remove or refuse to remove at his pleasure. Doubtless there is latitude, in proper cases, for forbearance. But Mr. Cameron has not been taken by surprise; he has stood in this peril for years; forbearance has already been extended in great measure. I feel that justice to the teachers, the parents and the children of the state requires me to establish, as far as I may, the rule that county superintendents of schools, at least, must not yield to habits of intoxication. I think it my duty, on the law and evidence in the case, to remove D. C. Cameron from the office of county superintendent of schools of Houston county for non-feasance in the discharge of the duties of his said office.

[Signed] L. F. HUBBARD, Governor.

Reconciliation Between Gov. Hubbard and Col. Bend.

The long struggle on the part of Col. Bend to regain his position as colonel of the First regiment has at last come to an end, and the doughty colonel will undoubtedly succeed. The trouble, it will be remembered, grew out of the Decoration day parade. On the date in question—May 30 last—Gov. Hubbard was out of the state, and Col. Bend, on his own authority, ordered the companies of the First regiment to participate in the parade. The St. Paul companies were assigned an inferior position by those having charge of the parade. Concerning this point there is a general misunderstanding. Col. Bend did not ask, so his friends say, to head the parade and march in advance of the G. A. R. men, but only the military portion of it. In the division the infantry companies were assigned to a position behind the cavalry company which had been recently organized, and which was not then one of the state national guard. This was the grievance. Col. Bend refused to parade unless this was changed, and he was upheld by the St. Paul captains. In the absence of Gov. Hubbard Adjt. Gen. MacCarthy addressed a letter to Col. Bend, threatening him with dire results if he persisted in his refusal. Col. Bend replied, and a racy correspondence resulted, which was published in the newspapers. When Gov. Hubbard returned, Adjt. Gen. MacCarthy preferred charges against Col. Bend, and a court martial was ordered, but dissolved by an order from the supreme court. Col. Bend's commission was then revoked by the governor. Litigation was commenced by Col. Bend, but he was unsuccessful. In the meantime mutual friends of himself and the governor's brought about an interview, on the colonel's statement that Gov. Hubbard misunderstood his position on several important points. This interview brought about a correspondence in which Col. Bend admitted certain errors he had fallen into, to which Gov. Hubbard replied as follows:

Your letter of the 16th inst., is so far satisfactory that, believing you would accept the teachings of the past for your future conduct if again a member of the Minnesota national guard, I will say that if, after publication of your letter with that to which it responds to the officers of the First regiment, you shall be by them elected to the yet vacant coloneley, I shall willingly sign and issue your commission. Yours respectfully, L. F. HUBBARD, Governor.

Woodside Warbles.

WOODSIDE, March 20, 1886.

There was a quiet wedding at the residence of Mr. Mitchell last Sunday evening, the [illegible] inst., the contracting parties being Mr. Fred Denison and Miss Lillie Mitchell. On Monday evening, at the house of Sible, there was merry-making in honor of said wedding. We wish the couple many happy days and a life of prosperity.

These spring-like days make an old cripple feel like jumping, but we cannot say with David, "Our feet are like hinds feet," but are more like the feet of a wounded bear.

We were informed last week that Thomas Lawrence had gone to Carman to sell a carload of Montana horses, and to open a horse training school. But it turns out that the carload of horses was in his mind, and the school was all in a book on horse training, which can be bought for one dollar.

Robt. Knowles has moved from his homestead in Woodside to Mentor; but we are not losing anything in the way of settlement, as Miss Sarah Pollard, of Mentor, has filed a homestead on the defunct L. H. Bursche's claim and will soon be a resident among us, and we think the trade is a good one.

Mr. Chas. Crossman, while chopping cord wood last week, was so unfortunate as to cut his foot, which will lay him up for a short time.

Mr. Chas. Churchill is still able to be up and around the house, but is far from being well.

Mrs. Julia Churchill made us a very pleasant call last week, looking as young and fresh as a girl of sixteen.

Mrs. Green is quite feeble, being confined to her room.

We again, for the one hundreth and some times, hear of railroad surveys, ocations, &c., but that is getting too old and thin! Why don't you give us some new dodge? for you see, Mr. Editor, that is the same old lie that we have believed so long that it makes us sick to hear it again, especially so near spring, when the stomach is weak and the nervous system out of order.

We stop the press to announce that at the merry-making at the house of Sible, last Monday evening, that Master George Barnby fiddled all the fiddling that was fiddled at that fiddling—or words to that effect. At last accounts he bids fair to recover with good treatment.

EDITOR JOURNAL:

Dear Sir:—A short time ago I noticed a short non-committal article in the Times censuring City taxation. If the writer did not know anything about it he should have said so, or said nothing. The city records are open to his inspection and would show him, if he examined them that the expenditures of the city during the past year have been much less than for any of the three preceding years. That the expenditures were less than the income. That estimates were made last April, and the expenditures have been strictly kept within those estimates. That for the present year it has cost the city $7000 less to accomplish the same work and to carry on the city government, than it did last year. That former extravagance and mismanagement had made it necessary to issue bonds in 1884 to fund the floating debt and the floating debt again increased to $19,000, before April 1st, 1885. That former mismanagement made a heavy tax a necessity this year. That their economy made it necessary to levy a sufficient tax this year to take up some of the old orders that have been standing out for years, which are about to outlaw. That the honor and credit of the city require a change in the financial policy of the city. That a system of strict economy has been inaugurated this year. That monies due the city have been collected. That more fines have been paid into the city treasury this year than any two former years. The city now pays cash, it contracts no debts.

A CITIZEN.

Mr. A. Gilmour was up from Garfield last week, of whom we get the following report of the recent town election there;

Supervisors—N. R. Englestad, chairman; H. C. Burdick, E. K. Overland.
Town Clerk—A. Gilman.
Assessor—Chr. Englestad.
Treasurer—Knute Opheim.
Justices of the Peace—Dr. A. Nelson, J. T. Brown.

Mr. Gilmour says the ticket was elected by a handsome majority, not much opposition appearing. Much attention is being paid to stock-raising and farmers are preparing to diversify as fast as possible. They will let up on the all-wheat business, and it will not be long before Garfield will be as noted as a dairy region as it now is for its fine wheat.

The Fisher Bulletin says: Thos. Erwin has a large force of men repairing the bridge;—Jim Bain's team ran away while Jim was attending church;—Joe Robert's brother John is here on a visit.—Mr. and Mrs. L. C. McKnight have returned from their southern trip.—Jas. W. Coates, of Vermont, will make Fisher his residence.—Mr. Robert Grange owns one of the finest colts in the county. He is but three years old and weighs about 1300 hundred pounds. His name is Romulus II. His pedigree runs, Romulus, Jean Bart out of Mignon—one of the prize mares of France. Romulus was imported into Canada in 1881 at a cost of $20,000 and was awarded highest prize and gold medal of the Dominion of Canada. He is admitted to be the finest horse in that country. The breed is Percheron-Norman.

The Moorhead News, of the 13th, gives a write up of the leading business interests of Clay County, among which we see many prominent stock-raisers. We should judge that Clay was rapidly coming to the front as a stock county and it is largely thoroughbred. Many prominent men are also included in the general write up, while cuts of prominent buildings are judiciously scattered about here and there. Editor Lamphire has done much to make Clay County what it is getting to be, and deserves a liberal patronage, and it looks like he was getting some of his deserts. He gets up a $2 paper and puts his price at $1. At that figure he ought to have every man in the county on his list. We wish him abundant success in his field, knowing that he well deserves it.

H. C. Clark, representing the North Dakota Farmer, of Jamestown, was in the city last week looking over the field in the interest of his paper. He is well pleased with what he has seen of our city and county and predicts a bright future for us. The Farmer is a new production of this Northwest, to the interests of which it is devoted, and so far it has well fulfilled its mission. It is one of the handsomest papers in this or any country, and the wonder is how it can be afforded for the price—only one dollar per annum. We have made arrangements by which we can send it and THE JOURNAL for only TWO DOLLARS. Sample copies may be had at this office, where subscriptions will be received, or any person can procure a sample copy by sending a postal to The Farmer, Jamestown, D. T.

A Plea for Life.

Pioneer Press: Gov. Hubbard has received a petition asking him to commute the sentence of John Hutchinson, the East Grand Forks murderer, to imprisonment for life. Accompanying the petition is a letter from Judge O. P. Stearns, who sentenced Hutchinson, recommending the exercise of executive clemency. The petition is signed by eighteen men, who are said to be prominent in Polk County, and familiar with the facts of the case. Among the signers are John Leo, the county attorney of Polk County, William Anglim, the foreman of the grand jury which indicted Hutchenson, and four of the jury which convicted him. The remainder of the men are mostly attorneys. Gov. Hubbard would give no indication yesterday as to what action he would take upon the petition.

Mortgage Sale.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Noah Millette and Florence, his wife, mortgagors, to the Colonial and United States Mortgage Company (Limited,) mortgagee, dated the 20th day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 28th day of December, A. D. 1882, at 11 o'clock a. m., in book "L" of mortgages, on pages 114, 115 and 116, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of two hundred and eighty-one dollars, ($281), and the further sum of $29.93 paid for taxes upon the mortgaged premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof:

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy, on Friday, the 16th day of April, A. D. 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure and provided by law.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section number twenty, (20) in township number one hundred and forty-nine, (149) in Range number forty-five (45) west of the 5th principal meridian, containing 160 acres.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS—$1.50 Per Annum.

The Busy City.

Wm. Campian was in from Angus on Saturday last, making arrangements for spring's work, which will soon be ready.

Will Carlton came all the way from Angus to hem an apron and see the rainbow in the winter.

L. C. Carpenter was registered at the Richardson, in Grand Forks, last week. Our boys all appreciate a good hotel when away from home.

Hon. H. Steenerson came down from Hallock and went on to St. Paul, last week, to finish up the Bull Dog Kelley business.

The Lucas cockle mill is the cheapest and best in the market. It will take out all kinds of foul seed perfectly. Stone & Pinkerton have it on exhibition.

Charlie Westler has returned to civilization and in a few days will have an immense stock of clothing in the latest spring styles, ready to show his patrons and friends.

Our fine spring weather took a severe cold on Thursday last, which froze up the roads solid, thus drying 'em up very rapidly. If we do not get too much rain or snow, the ground will be in excellent condition for seeding soon.

"A rainbow at night is the sailor's delight," so it was for the G. A. R. boys on Friday night. A more delightful rainbow was never seen in our city. A big crowd attested this fact, and it was very early in the morning ere many retired to catch a little sleep before the duties of Saturday demanded attention.

Efforts have been made for some time by the dwellers on Sampson's Addition for a side walk to the bridge, failing to get it the two roller mills chipped in and got lumber for a two plank walk, the citizens on the Addition furnished the muscle and now one can go over dry shod to the Addition and to both mills. That is a bit of enterprise that will be appreciated by all who have to go down that way in muddy times.

At the rate that the personal property taxes have been settled up this month the Sheriff will be lonely when April 1st comes. A large proportion was paid before the 1st of March, but there was still a considerable that caught the penalty. The Treasurer thinks there will be less than a hundred cases for the Sheriff, the large majority of which are dead or out of the country.

Knute Nelson was up from Aldal last week. He reports a busy season in the woods, and anticipates a big spring's trade, for which he has made ample provision. He says the fields are all bare and there is far less water this spring than usual, which will permit of seeding being commenced as soon as the frost goes out a little. He thinks the average will be about the same as usual in his locality this year.

Peter Carroll was in on Friday and took in the rainbow party in the evening. He anticipates a big trade in Duluth the coming season. Says real estate is up sky high and still a risin'. He reports our Crookston boys all in good health and making fortunes; after having amassed wealth in that foreign country they will return home to enjoy life. He says that what we need more than anything else is direct railroad connection with Duluth, and he gives it as a pointer that we will soon have it. There is a movement on foot that is bound to accomplish that desirable result at an early day, he thinks. Duluth is making preparations for improvements, prominent among which is noted flouring mills and dockage. Mr. Carroll has great faith in the Red River Valley.

The Kittson Co. term of court was finished and Judge Stearns came down on Friday. He stopped off to attend the rainbow party given by the ladies for the benefit of the G. A. R. boys. If the Judge was no better at patching up the breeches of Justice than he is at hemming a fair lady's apron he would be left and "Justice" would be sadly out o' luck, for the truth compels us to say that the Judge EARNED the prize awarded to the poorest, most indifferent, and wretchedest looking work done in the hall, as judged by the most competent female experts in the art of sewing. The Judge's feelings were greatly mollified, however when he saw the prize he had so justly earned—a willow (tit-willow) waste-basket, hand painted and just more than streaming with gay ribbons which made it look like a whole Fourth o' July celebration. The Judge declared it was just what he had been wanting for these many years, and when last seen he was hoofing it in the direction of Duluth, on the Duluth & Winnipeg road, carrying that basket filled with hard tack and salt junk for lunch en route. As it is against the laws for baskets and parcels to ride in the coach with folks he could not go via Glyndon on the N. P. He is bound to take that basket home all the same. [illegible]

Farmers are making active preparations for the coming seeding campaign, getting their machinery ready, hiring help and attending to preliminaries. The tendency is towards lower wages than last season. Wages range from $15 to $20, the very best men commanding in some cases as high as $20. With the prospects as they are at present farmers feel that they have got to come right down to hard-pan in order to live.

The Farmers' Alliance.

Throughout the whole State, (with the exception of a few counties in the extreme north) the farmers are organizing for self-protection. This is right and in order to derive the fullest benefits therefrom should be more general; it should comprise every county in the State. We live in an advanced state of civilization and if we intend to keep up with the age we must adopt the methods in vogue. The benefits of a thorough organization are too obvious to need discussion and it remains to be seen whether the farmers in this county are sufficiently alive to their own interests to employ the means at hand to better their condition. They have the power in their own hands if they will use it. They can rule or be ruled as they choose.

Singular, 'aint it?

When wheat took that drop to 63 cents in the market last week it was selling in Minneapolis for 84 cents, a difference of 21 cents! Under such circumstances is it a wonder that farmers feel like kicking? When they know that their wheat by rights OUGHT to be laid down in Minneapolis, all charges paid, for ten cents and see it cost more than double that. It is barely possible that the grain law of last winter brought the millinum but in view of such things is it a wonder that the average mind can't see it? The farmers' work was only begun when that law was made, it was only a beginning and if allowed to rest as it is will amount to nothing. With the right kind of a Senate and the same kind of a House as before laws can be made that will be effective. There can be no danger of passing laws that will be too severe upon the monopolists as some apologists for the infernal system insinuate. Turn about is fair play. For a number of years the monopolists have received all the profits of the wheat-raiser and now if a law can be made that will place the boot on the other foot for a few years it will but even matters up and make them balance more evenly. To pay only 63 cents in this market when wheat is 84 in Minneapolis is an outrage that calls for the rebuke of every farmer and business man in the Northwest. The only way to accomplish any lasting results is at the polls. Elect no one unpledged to work for the correction of this system and elect no one except those perfectly reliable and trust-worthy.

The American Agriculturist for April, 1886, the editors claim presents a greater variety of matter than has ever before appeared in a single issue of this periodical. The list of contributors embrace many of the recognized and leading writers of the country. The articles long and short number over two hundred. There are eighty-eight full-page and smaller engravings, presenting farm scenes, cattle, horses, and farm conveniences, house and barn plans, new fruits, new flowers, numerous designs for the household department, etc. The first full-page illustration, entitled the "home guard colonel," will attract universal attention. Price $1.50 per year. Single numbers, 15 cents. 751 Broadway, New York.

Notes and Sketches From Washington.

EDITOR JOURNAL:

Both parties in the house are very busy in casting up the chances for the next congress. It is generally conceded that thus far this session neither party has made any serious blunder, or achieved any marked victory. It is safe to say that every member is plotting for his return this fall, and in his opinion the country will go to the dogs unless that important event is achieved. In several of the States a new departure has been inaugurated by calling the caucusses and conventions at an unusually early date, thus betokening a long and fierce campaign. There are some fifty congressional districts in the country where the vote is very close—the change of even a hundred or two—would put the other fellow in, and it only wants a change of about twenty-three of such cases to give the Republicans the next congress. That is the way they talk. The Democrats say, that while they may lose some of the close districts, they stand just as good a chance as the other to gain some of the close districts, and that they will enter the fiftieth congress as strong as they leave the forty-ninth. This is a case where a man's opinion is shaped very much by his personal interests or party proclivities. I think the best way is to wait awhile before staking too much of even prediction, on the complexion of the next house.

The contest between the senate and the president touching papers on file in regard to removals, &c., which was pushed to the front last week somewhat prominently, seems to be dying away as quietly as an evening zephyr. The fact is, the people don't enthuse worth a cent on such abstruse and theoretical problems. It may be interesting to a few old political seeds to sit down, twirl their thumbs, look exceedingly wise, and talk about the constitution of the fathers, but nine out of ten of the American people who are crowded against the rough corners of an active, busy, pushing life, care more for the duties, responsibilities and victories of to-day than for all the theories, however good, of a century ago.

You know that during Arthur's administration the gossipmongers had a day set half a dozen times when he was to be married, and the whole thing was detailed with as much minuteness as an absolute fact. But Arthur disappointed them all. Now the horde are after Cleveland, and are going to have him married right away to some former blaze way up in New-York. That after years of sobbing and sniffling, they have discovered the true cause of misunderstanding produced by meddlesome busy-bodies, and now that the old love has burst forth anew with all the vigor and impetuosity of a pent-up volcano. This may all be true—it may be a myth. I hope it is true, and that Cleveland is going to have a good-looking wife in the White House instead of that terribly homely old-maid sister.

There are always some unfortunate beings who get good positions under every administration, only to prove an incubus and dead weight. Grant had several, so did Hayes, Garfield and Arthur had their share, and now they begin to develop under Cleveland. Incompetency seems to be the worst element thus far developed, and in the persons of Sparks, commissioner of the General Land Office, and Black, commissioner of Pensions. I say nothing of the telephone scandal, for I don't take much stock in that, but that a great mistake has been made in the selection of Sparks and Black, nearly everybody, friend and foe, concedes and predict that both of them will be called upon to resign. Sparks has made a terrible botch of the administration of the land office, and nearly everyone of his decisions is being revised or revoked by Secretary Lamar, and it is said that any quantity of cuss words are lying around the Interior Department in a very loose condition. Black is chock full of self-conceit. He has the big head bad, sits in his office like a royal tycoon, and keeps members waiting for an hour in the ante-room and then admits them to his presence with great show of condescension. They don't like this. He is openly charged with removing Union soldiers and filling their places with rebel soldiers. This is bringing the G. A. R. down on him like an avalanche. He knows so little about the administration of his office that he gives outlandish statements of figures that turn his predictions and estimates into uproars of laughter and ridicule in congress. Two unfortunate appointments, and both from Illinois, where the democratic party has very good material to select from.

John E. Kenna, of West Virginia, is the youngest senator, being only thirty-eight. Morgan of Alabama, is the finest looking senator, and Brown of Georgia, the homliest.

R. M. LaFollette, of Wisconsin, is the youngest member of the house, being only thirty-one; Reed, of Maine, is regarded as the readiest debater; Rowell, of Illinois, and Ranney of Massachusetts, as the best lawyers; Randall and Carlisle as the best parliamentarians; Townsend, of Illinois, as the trick mule and Morrill of Kansas, as old honesty himself. Governor Long of Massachusetts, parts his hair in the middle, and William Walter Phelps, of New Jersey, is a regular dude and wears bangs.

WARD.

An April Shower.

The first of the plate engravings illustrating the homes of our farmer presidents, which the American Agriculturist is preparing at great expense, will appear as a supplement to the May number. It represents the home, farm, and rural surroundings of Jefferson. The accompanying description is by James Parton. The others will follow in succession. These special engravings by the first American artists, and special descriptions by the most eminent of living American authors, are furnished free to all subscribers. The price of the American Agricultrist is $1.50 a year. We will club it with THE JOURNAL at $2.50. Inasmuch as every number is complete, subscriptions can begin at any time. Send to 751 Broadway, New York, for any further particulars required regarding paper and engravings, direct to David W. Judd, Publisher.

Twenty-seven Hundred Bear Stories.

In February, The Housekeeper, offered a prize of the handsome story book "The Childrens Hour," to the boy or girl under twelve years who would write the best bear story before March 1st. The editor has been snowed under with bear stories, over 2700 boys and girls having competed for the prize. In the April number the prize will be awarded and several of the best stories published. Specimen copies of The Housekeeper sent free to any address, or a specimen copy and a packet of seeds of the new Giant Pansy (flower 1½ to 3 inches across) will be sent for three two cent stamps. Address the Buckeye Publishing Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

A New Departere in the Library Magazine.

The April issue of The Library Magazine, containing its usual variety of current literature of the highest order, announces that with its next issue radical changes will take place. It will thereafter be published weekly instead of monthly. Without increase in price it will give an increased amount of valuable literature; and great gain in freshness and timeliness will be possible. The form of the page will be made somewhat smaller so that the numbers and the bound volumes, particularly, will be more convenient. A fact that is probably without precedent in the history of periodical literature is stated by the publisher, viz: that it is necessary frequently to reprint large editions of the back volumes, running as far back as 1879. This is certainly a very extraordinary certificate of the high character of the Magazine. A most important addition to the attractions of the Magazine in its new form will be a literary review and news department, which will supply information concerning all that is new and of interest in the world of literature, freed from the vast amount of trivial matter and mere publishers' notices which commonly make up a large portion of the contents of literary journals,—in a word, this department is meant to be conducted distinctly in the interest of the READERS of books, instead of in the interests of the PUBLISHERS of books—which will certainly be a new departure in literary journalism. A specimen copy of the Magazine in its new form, will be sent free to any applicant. John B. Alden, Publisher, 393 Pearl St., New York City. P. O. Box 1227.

A Unique Cyclopedia.

An extremely valuable Cyclopedia, and of very great popular interest is Alden's Cyclopedia of Universal Literature, Volume II. of which is just published. Novel in plan, and novel in form, at once beautiful and convenient, and at a price low even compared with Mr. Alden's always low prices, this volume gives in its nearly 500 pages biographical sketches of one hundred and eleven prominent authors, with characteristic selections from their writings. The following authors, among others, appear in this volume: Audubon, St. Augustine, D'Auvergne, Bacon, Balzac, Bancroft, Banim, Barbould, Beaumont, Beecher (several of the name,) Bentham, Bion, Bjornson, Black (William,) Blackstone, Blessington (Countess of,) and Boccaccio, thus representing nearly all ages and all nations even in this volume—American, English, French, German, Italian, Greek, Latin, Swedish, Portugese, Irish, Scotch, Dutch, Norwegian and Danish authors—from the period 280 B. C. to A. D. 1886. The literary and mechanical workmanship are both of a high order. The work is really one that ought to find a place in every home library. It offers a fund of entertainment and instruction that will prove well-nigh inexhaustible. The price, only 60 cents a volume, makes its possession possible even to nearly every school-boy. The work is published also in parts of 160 pages each (exchangeable at any time for bound volumes), which are sent post-paid for 15 cents each. Every reader of this notice ought to get at least a specimen part for examination. John B. Alden, Publisher, New York.

and at least a moderate competence, come to those who follow the teachings of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST. This world-renowned periodical, in addition to its other great features, has now employed the LEADING AMERICAN WRITERS to describe THE RURAL LIVES OF OUR AMERICAN PRESIDENTS, nearly all of whom were reared on farms, or retired to them from active life. DONALD G. MITCHELL, (IKE MARVEL) R. H. STODDARD, JAMES PARTON, JULIAN HAWTHORNE, DR. LYMAN ABBOTT, and others equally eminent, are now prparing these supplemental HISTORICAL PAPERS. They are to be accompanied with ENGRAVINGS, 12x18 inches in size, executed at large expense by our first artists, illustrating the Rural Homes and Surroundings of our Farmer Presidents, comprising a MAGNIFICENT PORTFOLIO collection for every house, rich and poor alike. These SPECIAL PAPERS and SPECIAL ENGRAVINGS, will be of absorbing interest to all interested in country life, and likewise constitute an important ACQUISITION to the historical knowledge of the country.

R. H. Stoddard writes: "I am sure they will be popular in a literary sense and equally sure they will be of great value to the boys of this country, who have a right to look forward to becoming our future rulers." Donald G. Mitchell: "I write about Washington's farming, in respect to which I have some copies of unpublished letters." Lyman Abbott: "It is an admirable design, showing the close connection of our Farmer Presidents with the soil." Julian Hawthorne: "An attractive scheme. I shall be glad to have a hand in it." James Parton: "One of my articles will be ready in three weeks."

Every subscriber to the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST for 1886 is entitled to these descriptions and engravings of the Rural Lives of our Presidents, forwarded without additional cost with the numbers of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST, as they appear; or specially executed on heavy, highly finished paper, and forwarded with the additional trifling cost for packing and postage. Single Subscription, $1.50; Ten Subscriptions, $1 each.

The Busy City.

Cast your vote.

Business of all kins is picking up.

The weather is all right this week.

Runaways are of frequent occurence nowadays.

Election is at hand as also the various candidates.

Charley Seely intends to move up on Broadway about May 1st.

Conductor Alexander took a bit of a lay off last week resuming his regular run this week.

Hay is being brought into this market in considerable quantities and sold from $8 to $10 per ton.

Ole Bang rejoices in the arrival of a fine colt on Sunday evening last. He says it is a thoroughbred.

Wm. Box Jr., was down from Warren this week in attendance at the sales at Terry & Collins' sale stables.

Wanted—A place as housekeeper to work on a farm.

MRS. DOUGLAS, Cleveland House.

Farmers are making hasty preparations for the spring work, which will commence very soon, if the present indications hold out.

The indications are that there will be a break up in the rivers soon, without any very high waters, as the snow has almost entirely disappeared.

The sale at Terry & Collins' sale stables on Tuesday was well attended and the price obtained fair. Cows, horses, pigs and farm machinery sold at reasonable figures.

NEW YORK STORE.

Charlie Seely has a new summer drink called "Buffalo mead." It is on the pop order and is a very mild and pleasant beverage to have in the family these hot days.

It is rumored that a new machinery firm will soon take the field, in which our old friend Dave Huggard will take a prominent part. Dave will make a rustler if he gets at it once.

Charlie Bryant, who for a long time was in Magee's place in St. Paul, has accepted a situation with Charlie Seely and may hereafter be found ready to dish up anything desired in that line.

Prof. Thompson has been making improvements in his tonsorial parlor on Robert St., by the placing of an extra door and window, giving more light and adding much to its pleasantness.

Wild geese still continue emigration northward. A large flock passed over the city Monday evening, within easy gun range. They passed over safely, without even a salute from any of our nimrods. But let the next geese beware.

Jim Creighton is said to be setting up the cigars in these days, all owing to a new deputy oil inspector of very small size, who applied at Jim's home for a job last Monday. Jim says he won't run for constable or any other man now.

A timely hit is found in an exchange, which declares that this is the time of year when many young ladies, during these pleasant days, leave their rubbers and cloaks at home. The only one pleased with their action beside themselves are the doctors, druggists and undertakers.

For the finest line of all wool carpets, pay the New York Store a visit. They are away down in prices.

Phil Porger and family took their departure, for Lamberton, Redwood Co., on Monday evening at which place they will temporarily reside. Phil has not fully decided what he will do in the future but expects to be back here about June as he has some business matters to settle. Wherever he goes or whatever he does his friends will all unite in hearty wishes for his welfare and that of his family.

If you have not bought a silk dress yet you had better hurry up. After the stock at the New York Store is closed out they will advance to the old price.

A workingman who cares for his family states that "two drinks of whiskey cost a pound and a half of beef steak, two beers a dinner of mutton chops, one cocktail an egg plant or a head of cauliflower. 'What will you take Charlie?' stands for a nice oyster supper for a whole family on Sunday. 'Set em up again,' means sugar in the house for a month." This is a bit of practical domestic economy.

A. N. Hopkins was on Monday morning appointed on the police force. Mr. Hopkins is one of our oldest inhabitants; he has heretofore followed the granger business and has been unfortunate enough to lose nearly all of his means by hail and otherwise. He makes a good, efficient officer, and should he be retained upon the force, would be a credit to our city. We believe no better officer could be appointed.

Gus. Ackerlund is building an addition to his house for a summer kitchen.

Country merchants and farmers all trade at Hack & Gallasch'.

LePage's building is rapidly approaching completion. Looks like it would be done on time.

The apathy, which has seemed to exist in relation to city affairs seems to have abated somewhat as election draws on.

The spring boom has commenced at Hack & Gallasch'. They are kept busy from morning till night serving their customers.

Fourniet is having the second floor rooms of his new block plastered and the wood-work painted. They will be nobby offices.

E. D. Childs & Co. had the misfortune to lose a thoroughbred Holstein calf on Monday night. It was a splendid animal, weighing 100 pounds at birth.

New cash railroad at Hack & Gallasch'. The first and only one in the Northwest. Don't fail to see it.

If you do not find prices to suit elsewhere call at the New York Store.

There is war in the first ward. That usually quiet precinct is all tore up and there will be another candidate put up for the council.

Mr. Fontaine of the New York Store says the prospect for a big spring trade was never better if present business is any indication, we think he is right.

Go to the Bee Hive to trade. It is the cheapest place in the city.

The Crookston Minstrel troupe will make its first appearance on Monday evening, April 5th, just in order to get voters into good humor for the duties of the 6th.

Give us the benefit of your trade and we will give you the benefit of low prices. NEW YORK STORE.

Don't forget the home talent minstrels on Monday night. Most of them have been before the public before and won laurels. They are all good in their several parts.

They say that the New York Store shows the largest line of dress goods and silks in the city. Just think, dress goods from 8 cents up.

High water boots, at Hack & Gallasch.

Main Street boasts of a number of unsightly piles of ashes that should be removed at once as every wind that blows will soon begin to scatter them around the city.

Mrs. I. U. Jennings' stock of spring and summer millinery has just arrived replete with everything in that line and is determined to maintain her reputation for low prices. [49-50]

An old toper made the following remark as he raised the brimming glass to his lips: "Here's the stuff that leaves me without money or clothes, but tip her up and down she goes." The saloon keeper replied: "That's the stuff that gives me money and fine clothes, tip her up and down she goes."

The Northwestern Farmer establishment was destroyed by the Argus fire, and we have not learned whether Mr. Webb intends to resurrect it or not. The loss is said to have been entire. We trust that he will be able to resume for the farmer was too good a paper to lose.

I do my trading at Hack & Gallasch', tra-la! It is the cheapest store in Crookston, tra-la-la!

Three or four Montana cowboys have been hovering about the city for a few days. They are said to be cattlemen from Winnipeg, who, having disposed of a few carloads of cattle below are now on their way back, but we have our doubts about that, in view of the near approach of election day.

Hack & Gallasch have a larger stock of dry goods, shoes, slippers, and groceries than ever, and invite all to visit their store and get prices.

The caucus in the Third ward was about as lively an affair as one often sees. It lasted several hours. A funny incident occurred that should have been heard to be fully appreciated. Hank Lewis had made arrangements with Rudy Burkhardt to second every motion Hank should make as quick as it was made. After a while, during the heat of the fray, Hank got into a bit of a misunderstanding with a prominent citizen and remarked something to the effect that the citizen aforesaid was a long, slab-sided libel on humanity. Rudy, misunderstanding the drift of the speech, shouted: "Second the motion!" It is needless to say that the "motion" prevailed uproariously, and Rudy has not heard the last of it.

As is usual the ticket nominated did not meet with the approval of everybody and at this writing it looks probable that another ticket will be put up.

Wheat went up to 65 during the latter part of last week and seems trying to get above that notch. It is thought that the big strike has a tendency to keep it down.

Assistant Manager Geo. G. Copeland, of the St. P. & D. Railroad, spent the Sabbath with his brother, J. B., who took a lay off to entertain him. Mr. C. is pleased with the progress Crookston is making while he has been away. We regret to note that the health of his wife is very poor this spring.

The Fargo Argus establishment was destroyed by fire last week, but the Argus appears again as usual, as though nothing had happened. Such pluck deserves success, and we have no doubt the Major will pluck it from the ashes. The loss was a severe one, amounting to $40,000 with only $8,000 insurance.

Berthiaume Bros. had a curiosity left them last week by a man named Durand, who made it out of 1996 pieces of wood. It is a very neat, pretty workbox, and must have required a vast amount of work to make. Call and see it while it remains on exhibition at the Palace Jewelry store of Berthiaume Bros., Robert street.

A team attached to a lumber wagon took a spin up Main to Fletcher, thence to Broadway and along that busy thoroughfare north to the place of beginning—or, rather, the place of ending, for they were stopped without any serious damage being done to any one, though several vehicles had a very close shave.

Charlie Bailey was walking about the streets on Monday, all the same like he had not broken his leg all to pieces in the woods last winter. Dr. Van Dyke has done a very skilful job of patchwork on that leg which will be as good as the other one. Charley only has to use one crutch and thinks he can dispense with that one in a short time.

Receiver L. K. Aaker went up to the Red Lake Reservation to view the pine to be sold by the government. He says that there was some green pine in the lot, but it had been so badly burned in the tree that it would soon have died if it had not been cut. He reports the Indians all prosperous and happy and likely to remain so as long as they can get enough to eat.

Up to the time of going to press no ticket has been placed in the field against the regular city ticket, nominated on Monday evening, but it would be a cold day for the City of Crookston when an election was held with only one ticket in the field. A number of hoodoos have been held in various quarters and a great deal of buncombe indulged in, as yet without any definite result reached. At a certain conclave on Monday night a ticket was talked of that for level-headed, straight, common sense could not be beat, and the only one, in our estimation, that would cut any figure at all. There seems to be a quiet determination to elect the regular city ticket and it will take a very strong ticket, and a great deal of hard work and some money to elect an opposition ticket. The only real issue at stake is "high license" or "low license." It is the general impression that the backers of Mr. E. C. Davis are animated by the idea that his election means low license or no license and a general high-handed or open policy. It is possible that there may be a mistake in this impression for Mr. Davis ALWAYS HAS BEEN a law abiding citizen and we cannot see any evidence that would lead us to take a different view in this emergency. Whatever else may be said he is an outspoken man, very pronounced in his views, and one who never says behind a man's back what he would not say to his face. It has been said that his patent business will require his absence from the city for a large portion of the time which would be a serious objection as the executive head of the city should be at its head all or most of the time.

The Crookston Ideals will present an entertainment at the opera house on Monday evening next, consisting of songs, dances, negro sketches and the usual amount of negro funny business. Don't miss it. Tickets on sale at Berthiaume Bro's., where seats may be reserved. Admission 35 and 50 cents.

Peter Haugen, a prominent farmer of Decorah, Iowa, came up this week with stock and feed to sell. He is well pleased with the country and intends to invest some means in land and open up a large farm. He brought along a high-grade Holstein bull which he sold to Hon. B. Sampson.

The rainbow party was well attended and a pronounced success. Mr. Ferson, of the Crookston Roller Mills, secured the first prize on sewing, which was a sur-prise to the tailor. After the refreshments the crowd thinned out somewhat and a pleasant dance followed, lasting until the wee sma' hours. Then all went home to rest up for the busy concerns of the following evening.

Miss Veronneau, Mrs. E. E. Bangs' milliner, has been for a few weeks in one of the largest and most fashionable establishments in Chicago, learning all about the requirements, exactions and mysteries of the millinery art, and will return next week fully prepared to supply the ladies with the very latest styles in the art. She will also lay in a full supply of everything needed to conduct a first-class establishment.

It is now extensively claimed that celery is a cure for rheumatism. Indeed it has been asserted that the disease is impossible if the vegetable is cooked and freely eaten. The fact that it is always put on the table raw prevents its therapeutic powers from being known. The celery should be cut into bits, boiled in water until soft, and the water drank by the patient. Serve the celery warm with pieces of toasted bread and the painful ailment will soon cease. Such is the declaration of a physician who has again and again tried the experiment and with uniform success. The above notice is going the rounds of the press, and it is presumed that many persons who are troubled with rheumatism will raise a large supply of celery this season.

Builders Notice!

We are carrying the largest stock of builders material to be found in the Northwest. Builders will do well to call and look us over.

BRAY & O'BRIEN,

A letter from a JOURNAL reader, at Appleton, Wis., says that notwithstanding the strikes all over the country, every wheel in Appleton is running to its utmost capacity. Appleton is a city of 10,000 inhabitants, is made by its manufacturing industries, and is destined to be the Holyoke of the Northwest; she already leads in the manufacture of paper. Among other things, our correspondent says:

"And, now, Mr. Editor, I have been thinking why it would not be a good scheme to utilize some capital in the paper making industry in the city of Crookston. You have every facility there, I believe, for making straw board and wrapping paper, if not the finest grades, and would not an industry of this kind help quite materially to build up the city? How much water-power is available for such an enterprise? Plenty of money here that could be used if the right inducements were offered."

From the above it will be seen that our city is not wholly unknown and her advantages are appreciated by all who have ever seen or heard of them. This subject is one that the chamber of commerce could take up to advantage. There is no doubt in the world as to the benefits that would be derived from the establishing of a first-class paper mill in our city, and this would seem like an opportunity to do it.

Headquarters for Hardware.

By looking at the show windows at Bray & O'Brien's one would get the idea that their store is headquarters for hardware. That is what they claim for it.

Notice!

Notice is hereby given that all Orders and Warrants drawn on the Revenue Fund of this county, and registered by the County Treasurer, BEFORE August 1st, 1885, will be paid on presentation at my office.

A Fine Stock Farm.

E. D. Childs & Co., of Carman have been turning their attention to diversified husbandry and have no reason to change their opinions that it is the proper course to pursue. They intend to make stock-raising the leading feature on their home farm, and are growing into it. They reason that as they already have machinery for seeding, harvesting &c., it will not pay to let it lie idle or dispose of it for what it would bring and go into stock at once, but by starting with a few animals, and cultivating enough grain to keep their machinery employed they will gradually grow into the contemplated change and by the time the machinery is worn out the change will have been made without any perceptible outlay and with the care observed they will have a valuable herd. A visit to the farm last Saturday showed their stock coming out in excellent condition. They will have, the coming summer only 14 milch cows but they are all of such merit that it would take an extraordinary herd of 28 native cows to compete with them at the pail. Their specialty is the Jersey and they have one of the best stock bulls in the country. They have a number of thoroughbred and grade Jerseys that would be a credit to any stock farm in the country; some high grade short-horn cows that are hard to beat, a thoroughbred Holstein cow, in calf to Everett, one of the best sires in this noted breed and will have a few grade Holstein calves also from the same sire. This will be a combination Holstein-Jersey, and will test the value of that cross. The Jim Hill Short-horn bull, for some time after they got him, did not do very well, but is now doing splendidly and is coming out all right. He will make a fine animal. The "defenseless bull" (as Donnelly calls the Polled-Angus) is getting to be a mountain of beef and his calves look more like Angora goats than cattle, the hair being long and heavy. For beef these cattle occupy a leading position but we do not think much of them for the dairy. Their cow barn is a model of neatness and convenience and was built at a surprisingly low figure, the floor alone costing more than the balance of the barn. Each cow occupies a stall by herself, stands upon a floor which slopes gently to a gutter in the rear of the stall, back of this gutter is a plank walk three or four feet wide which is kept as clean as a kitchen floor. Every cow is as neat and clean as though she had just come off a clover pasture, instead of having stood in the stable all winter. The cow yard is not completed as yet. When done it will have a shed along the northern front, the balance surrounded by a high board fence, divided into several parts for cows, heifers, calves and steers. Each part will have an oat or barley straw stack for the occupants to work at during such days as they will be allowed to run at large. The breeding of horses will be made a leading feature, and for this purpose a fine young Norman-Percheron horse has been secured. He is four years old, weighs 1,500 lbs. and is not fat. He is an extra animal, and as he will be allowed a limited service outside of the farm use, will leave his impress upon the stock of this county. A number of fine colts, one and two years old, attest the fact that our horses can be reared here as successfully as in any country. They have 75 or 80 hogs, for which a large hog house will be built in early spring. Many of them have had no shelter except the straw piles in the barn-yard during the winter, and are looking none the worse for wear. They believe in using mature sows for breeders and have 16 for this purpose, none of which are under two years old. The hogs are thoroughbred and grade Poland China, and thoroughbred and grade Berkshire. They have one Poland China boar that cost $40 when he was a pig, and a pair of thoroughbred Berkshires, procured of J. J. Hill, that cost $85. They were cleaning up seed wheat with a new mill, procured last fall at the State fair, which Mr. Childs says is the best mill for the purpose he ever saw. It will take out every oat that may be in the wheat, and after the wheat passes through the cockle mill, it comes out almost perfect for seed. Mr. Childs says that they will sow as much wheat as ever this spring, believing that the general average of the years as they come and go will compensate for the few lean ones of the past. One could spend a day very profitably looking over this farm, as many valuable ideas may be gained. The farm is run in a practical way with a view to making it pay expenses and a handsome return, and if it will not do it there is no use trying farming in this country. There are no extravagant outlays, no money thrown away for style, but everything is done in a practical, common-sense way for a purpose, and that purpose to secure an adequate return on the investment.

ALEX MCKINNON, P. M.

[illegible] WILL HAVE ITS WAY.

[illegible] to rule,
And keep an honest [illegible],
Yet men will sometimes play the fool,
And give their wits the slip.
Let Judgment caution or condemn,
And Conscience still cry "Nay,"
Sweet Fancy sings her song to them,
And gives the heart its way—
Its own delightful way—
In spite of all that Thought can do;
In spite of Judgment, tried and true;
And all Experience ever knew—
The heart will have its way.

So Nature wills it—old and young,
The wisest and the best,
Have caught the strains from Passion's tongue,
And felt her sweet unrest.
'Tis well to be of human kind—
To own dear Nature's sway;
For, midst the dim, cold realms of mind,
The heart would lose its way—
Its own delightful way—
In spite of Wisdom's happiest rules;
In spite of sages and of schools;
In spite of reason, we're but fools—
The heart will have its way.

See yonder child, by Nature led,
No rule of life to guide;
See Prudence with her thoughtful head,
And manhood in its pride—
All run in pleasure's heedless race,
And after folly stray—
At every age, in every place,
The heart will have its way—
Its own delicious way—
In spite of all the head can do;
In spite of judgment, tried and true;
In spite of sad experience, too,
The heart will have its way.

Alas! for him whose heart is dead
To every generous beat;
No love light on his life is shed,
No sympathy he'll meet.
'Tis better far to give the price
That fools to folly pay—
Be men in everything but vice,
And give the heart its way—
Its own delightful way—
In spite of Wisdom's golden rules;
In spite of sages and of schools,
We're all but erring, love-sick fools—
We give the heart its way.

THE SISTER'S STRATAGEM.

BY ELISSA M. MOORE.

I am getting to be an old woman, and yesterday for the first time I revisited the home of my childhood after an absence of thirty-five years, during which my second sister and I have not dared to review those scenes which, full as they are of tender recollections, could not fail to bring back all too vividly a dark tragedy which at one time threatened to o'ershadow both our lives. Now that the past is forever buried, with my sister's full consent I tell of that experience which we can hardly realize after the lapse of years was once our own.

The village of Westfieldene, where we were all born, was settled by my grandfather on the rockbound coast of Maine, and named after the Norfolk village where he was himself born, which called his father lord of the manor. Dignified in his manners and decorous in his life, he was the great man of the village, and my father was his worthy descendant. My brothers seemed indifferent to the advantages of an English collegiate education, but when our Norfolk cousins offered to extend their hospitality to me for three years, that I might finish my education and be presented at the English court, I gladly accepted. I returned improved, though I would never be handsome, and better able to cope with the world, at the end of the three years. If my father and mother deemed that the sacrifice they had made in parting from me had been too great they disguised their opinion remarkably well, and when I kissed mamma good-night once more in my own little white bed at home she murmured her gratitude to God for the safe return of her dear daughter, whom she found all that she could desire. I decided that I was the happiest girl in America, while the future lay bright before me. The following morning I had a long talk with my mother. The boys, she was glad to tell me, were both doing well, one in her brother's law office in Philadelphia, and the other in Annapolis, awaiting sailing orders. I congratulated her on their being out in the world, being of Shakespeare's opinion that

Home-keeping youths have ever homely wits.

"As to the girls," I said, "there was not a girl presented during my time who approached Bertha. I could almost wish that she had had my chances, mamma—she might marry anyone; and Edith seems a sweet little soul."

"They are both that," said my mother, "and your experience will be of great service to Bertha, who knows nothing of the world, so you must not regret your foreign education."

"I'm so relieved not to find her engaged," I exclaimed. "All American girls after 18 appear to be affianced to some boy more or less unmarried."

"Small chance of that in Westfieldene," said mamma. "The only engagement I can announce is that of your old friend Helen Freemour. She is to be married shortly to a Mr. Hardcastle, whom she met in Boston."

"Is he one of the Hardcastles?" I asked, anxiously.

"Oh! dear, no!" said mamma; "they are western people; but he's a college man and a lawyer—poor, but Helen is used to that; and, for that matter, she is not one of the Freemours."

"That's true enough; but all the royal princesses rolled into one could not produce a more refined type of womanhood than lily-faced Helen. I hope he is half worthy of her," said I.

"I expect you'll have an opportunity of judging of that this evening," said mamma. "They are sure to come to welcome you."

My mother's prophetic soul had not deceived her. Shortly after tea I saw Helen, accompanied by a tall, dark man, coming slowly up the garden path. She looked very queenly in her white robes, her heavy, dark hair dressed in a coronet above her broad, fair brow, and covered by a white lace scarf. I hastened to meet her, and there were tears in my eyes as I clasped her to my heart and kissed her lips with what was almost a premonition of coming calamity. Of Mr. Hardcastle I formed no flattering opinion. He was dark, quiet, and very old-looking for 24, which was the age he acknowledged to—just a year Helen's senior, therefore. We saw them constantly. Helen in her unselfishness enjoyed any boating or driving party twice as much when either or both of us joined them. I had undertaken the education of my little sister, Edith, so it fell out that Bertha was their usual companion. One of the maxims which my English cousin had most impressed upon me was the duty of being watchful not of but for my younger sisters, and when a week's holiday was accorded Edith and I was at liberty to join the young people I became aware, to my sorrow and alarm, that, while Horace Hardcastle was by his gentle, betrothed's side, his eyes were on my sister's lovely face; and, what was more dangerous still, that while all the tender nothings of young love which she whispered softly were met with absent-minded indifference, the lightest word from Bertha's lips caused his dark face to flush. He was off his guard a thousand times, until I wondered at Helen's blindness. I watched and made no sign, supposing Bertha to be as utterly in the dark as my friend. We had arranged an excursion to one of the nearlying islands and I determined that as the party was to be quite a large one I would so manage it that I could have a few words in private with this man, who I felt sure had it in his mind to make two women, both justly dear to me, suffer deeply. The weather, however, proved threatening, and our picnic was postponed. Late in the afternoon, as the storm still held off, I wandered toward a wood which lay inland about half a mile to the back of our house in search of botanical specimens. I was not very successful, and was turning homeward, when I was startled by hearing my sister's voice raised in passionate entreaty. "Oh!" she cried, "how can you ask it of me? Only remember poor Helen; what would she say? what could she think?"

"What does that matter when our life's happiness is at stake?" said the voice I had expected to hear—that of Mr. Hardcastle.

"Go, go," said Bertha; "the rain is coming on, and I must get home."

I heard the crushing of the underwood as he left her side, and only waited until my sister was well on her way home before I followed her, warned by the low growl of near thunder to seek speedy shelter. An hour later I sought Bertha's room. I found her lying on her bed, looking so unlike her usual fairy self that all the anger died within me. I told her what I had overheard, and then said: "You must see for yourself, dear, that it is impossible for our father's and mother's daughter to play so contemptible a part. You must not see Mr. Hardcastle again, and then it will all be as though it had never been."

Sobbing, she yielded. The thunderstorm was an excellent excuse for Bertha's headache, and a short note from myself to Mr. Hardcastle, indited in no gentle frame of mind, caused that gentleman's speedy departure for Boston. Helen's "gentle northern eyes" filled with tears when she told me she would not see him until the following month, when it was agreed that they should be married in Boston from the house of her friend, where they had first met. She had wished us to be her bridemaids but her affiance had begged for a perfectly quiet wedding. I was thankful when it was over, and charmed to find my sister dazzlingly beautiful and bright the following winter, which was passed with our aunt in Philadelphia, and where she became celebrated as la belle des belles. Lent fell late, and by the time we returned to Westfieldene we were surfeited with balls and parties. The first thing which broke the quiet monotony of home life was the news that the Hardcastles had bought a house about a mile from ours, near the Western slope, as that part of the coast was called, where a deep ravine made a break in the long line of cliffs. Dearly as I loved Helen the news could hardly be called welcome; but I trusted Bertha with all my heart, and was satisfied that her girlish fancy had died a natural death when she greeted Mr. Hardcastle with quiet dignity. Helen, I thought very pale and pensive. I attributed this to the fact that she was too much alone; her husband having purchased a wild young mustang, on which he scoured the country. He was a man who as a husband was certain to be given to moods, and for some time I was in doubt as to the reason of his taciturnity, when, however, several young men, whom we had met in Philadelphia, came together with my brother, to pass the first bright, May days in my father's house. His constant presence in or about the place, the wild fury which blazed from his dark eyes, when Bertha was the recipient of their marked attention, proved to me only too plainly that his old madness had but slumbered. In my anxiety I went to my mother, who was unreasonably annoyed. Such things, she said, might be in other countries, but the sanctity of the marriage tie was respected in America by all save the lowest of the low. Poor mother! She knew nothing of any world save her own. One cold evening in the latter part of May the Hardcastles, who had spent the afternoon with us, prepared to return home. Helen was dressed in her favorite white, and I, fearing the chill evening air for her, went to fetch her a soft, white, knitted shawl, which would protect her. When I returned she stood in the porch all alone.

"Horace has gone to the village for the letters," she said; "I will walk on and he will overtake me." She allowed me to fold the wrap around her, and I stood watching her tall, graceful figure until it was lost to view by the turn of the cliff. I returned to the drawing-room, where I was wanted to play glee accompaniments. Presently some one suggested a dance, but my father requested one song from me. I could never refuse him; but I felt strange out of tune, and chose, naturally, a sad song, Pascal's, then very fashionable. "Rest, thou troubled heart," I began, when the door was flung open and Horace Hardcastle stood before us. Something dreadful in his face caused me to rise quickly while the words died on my lips.

"Where is Helen?" he asked horsely.

"She has gone home," I replied, "She left almost immediately after you went down to the village."

"She is not there," he said, turning from me to my father, who had come forward.

"She followed you down to the village, no doubt," suggested papa, "and thus you missed."

"No," cried I, "for I watched her to the turn of the cliff."

A silence fell upon us, while I, trembling with undefined fear, clung to my father's arm, who said presently:

"Did you go through the house, Horace?"

"Yes, and called," he answered.

"Come, come," said papa, putting me gently from him, "she has no doubt continued her walk beyond the ravine; we'll go with you, Horace. Your wife's all right, boy; she knows the very stones of the coast."

Followed by the male portion of the company he left the room. Mother went to procure lanterns, while Bertha and I, avoiding each other's eyes lest we should meet a confirmation of our worst fears, sat with suspended breath and blanched cheeks. I said to myself that our fears were unnatural and exaggerated, but there are moments when instinct is stronger than all reason, and this was such an one. An hour passed ere we heard the sound of returning footsteps. I had not the strength to run to the door. Bertha reached it, but papa's arm pressed her back, entering he closed the door and I saw his face colorless and terror-stricken in the lamplight.

"A dreadful accident has happened," he said, in a low tone, "you must remain here, my girls; there is nothing to be done." I tried to speak in vain; but Bertha went to him and clasped her trembling hands over his arms. "Papa," she cried, "is she dead?"

He bent his head. "We found her under the cliff. Poor child, poor child!"

I sprang from the piano, against which I had been leaning. "It was he!" I cried; "he did it, I know; I feel——"

"Good God!" said my father, turning upon me a face in which terror and amazement were curiously blended, "what do you mean?"

A rushing as of many waters was in my ears. I stretched out my arms wildly and, falling, knew no more. When I recovered from the state of prostration into which the awful shock of Helen's death had thrown me, I learned from my mother such meager details as were to be told concerning the tragedy. The beautiful body, she said, had been less disfigured than might have been expected from the dreadful fall of over a hundred feet.

"Of course there was an inquest," she went on, "and," looking gravely at me, "there could be no doubt that it was purely accidental. There were no signs of a struggle—only your white knitted shawl had caught on the tree which overhung the bluff—one of those young larches which manage to live there for a year or two. All those who knew her deny the possibility of its being a suicide; but dear Helen has often said that when on a great height she always felt a nervous inclination to throw herself off. Many persons experience the same."

Poor Mr. Hardcastle was broken-hearted; but, as was not unnatural, in one of his disposition, he refused all comfort, and had left for the west as soon as possible, leaving the house to the care of the women who had served them as cook. The white shawl I put away among my treasures, keeping it as a thing sacred, never to be worn, or touched by other hands than my own. I never again breathed the awful suspicion which had possessed my mind concerning Horace Hardcastle, but inwardly prayed that he might never cross my path. Imagine, then my grief and pain when a few months after my own marriage, which occurred about a year subsequent to Helen's death, I received a letter announcing Bertha's engagement to Mr. Hardcastle, who was, my mother informed me, staying at Westfieldene in his old house, though it was his intention after the marriage to reside in New York. In my despair I told my husband all my fears and suspicions, which I could plainly see he regarded as preposterous. Nevertheless, he allowed me to return home with the intention of dissuading my sister, if possible, from carrying out what I honestly believed to be a suicidal intention. I came unannounced, and the night of my arrival I sought my sister's bedroom, and there begged and prayed of her to abandon this man, whose power over her I had never been able to understand. All the promise I could obtain from her was that she would delay the marriage for three months and give me full consent to prosecute all inquiry concerning her fiance's antecedents which I might deem proper. She also agreed to write a note asking him to meet her the following evening at our own house in order that they might walk to his residence and choose what things should be sent to New York and what sold. The following evening, still acting under my orders, she left the house in the pony carriage, about a quarter of an hour before the time appointed for his coming, leaving me, as she supposed, to await him. No sooner was she out of sight than I slipped up stairs and drew from its wrapper my white knitted shawl, and gave the man servant a message for Mr. Hardcastle to the effect that Miss Bertha had driven round by the road to his house and he was to come to her as quickly as possible. Full well I knew that he could not but take the cliff path, which was not half the distance of the high-road. Along this fatal path I flew in the semi-darkness until I reached the spot where Helen had fallen. There, crouched behind the bushes and the branches of the larch tree, I let my long, black hair free from the comb, unfastened the black cloak which hid my white dress, and, keeping the snowy shall well out of sight, I waited, panting and shivering for the approach of the man I feared and hated. It was not for long. Soon his tall, spare figure appeared advancing through the darkness. I was motionless until he was some fifteen feet from me. Then dropping my cloak, I flung the shawl about my head and shoulders, while I advanced toward him from under my shelter. I had well calculated on my resemblance, as to height and figure, to Helen. He gave a cry, which was horrible in its wild terror, and stood rooted to the spot. I dared not advance but, raising one hand and stretching it out toward him, I uttered the one word—"Murderer!"

With a groan he shrank from me, hoarsely whispering: "Helen, have mercy; I was mad; I loved her so."

I made a motion as though I would advance. Again the place echoed with that wild cry as, turning, he fled. His terror as much as his words had betrayed him. Hastily resuming my cloak, I made my way to his house, where I found my sister. For an hour we awaited him; finding that he did not come, we returned home. As we drove along Bertha somewhat haughtily demanded an explanation, which I promised should be given in her lover's presence. The hours of the next morning dragged wearily. A sleepless night had left me nervously wretched. I dared not think, for I feared that my my poor sister would overcome my firm determination to accuse her intended husband in her presence.

I was pacing the veranda in a miserable state of anxiety, when I saw my father coming slowly up the path. He held in his hand a letter. "This is for Bertha," he said, holding it up and looking hard at me the while. "Hardcastle has left Westfieldene, as he informs me in a note which accompanies this. I don't understand it." "Let me give her the letter," I cried, with a quick premonition of its contents. As well as lay in my feeble power I prepared my unhappy sister in a measure for the shock I felt sure she was about to receive. The letter contained, as I supposed, a full confession. Its effect was for a time prostrating, but an opportune legacy from an English cousin enabled my father to remove his family to New York, and in the happy marriage which she made in after years my dear sister forgot the tragical experience of her early youth. The homestead retained much of the gloom which these events cast over it for all of us, but the present generation knows not of them. The house on the cliff was pulled down by order of its owner, who never revisited the scene of his love and his crime.

Sayings of Little Ones.

"The Children's Chitchat" in the New Moon contains some amusing sayings by the little ones. A few examples are given:

"Well, my young gentleman, and how would you like your hair cut?" "Oh, like papa's, please—with a little round hole at the top."

Grandpa: "Tell me, Ethel, why do you have six buttons on your gloves?" Ethel: "Yes, grandpa, dear, I will tell you. The reason is, if I had seven buttons, or five, they would not match the six buttonholes."

He was a persistent little boy who told his mother, who thought he was too young to wear trousers, that "he would be willing to go without pockets if he only could wear something that had legs."

A small boy, the son of a gifted clergyman in this state, was heard one night addressing the following petition to his Maker: "O God, please bless mamma and, please bless papa; but the less you have to do with Aunt Maria the better. Amen."

"Mamma what does it mean when it says, 'The shades of night were falling fast'?" You should try and figure out those things for yourself, Johnny." "I know now." It means when sister Jane pulls down the parlor blinds, then Gus Smith comes in to spend the evening, eh?"

Mrs. Jones—"Did you take Johnny to school, Jeremiah?" Mr. Jones—"I did. An excellent school it is, Matilda. The scholars are models of deportment; the curriculum is first-class, and the professor a man of ability. At least, that is the way he struck me." Johnny (with a groan)—"You ought to have stayed about an hour, and seen how he struck me."

Interesting War Incident Recalled.

An interesting incident occurred at the meeting of the Dakota Encampment G. A. R., at Watertown, Dak., a short time ago. Frank West of Arlington, Dak., related how at Altoona pass he received the famous message sent by Gen. Sherman, "hold the fort, for I am coming." It was stated by several present that it had been frequensly denied in newspapers that any such message was ever sent. Mr. West emphatically stated that he received the message and showed to the audience how it was flagged. During the evening Commander Lucas stated that Mr. West had a boy that had never been named, and that Mrs. West had given permission to name him. He held up the little fellow, a handsome boy, and proposed that he be named Altoona Pass West. By a hearty vote he was declared to be so named, and by an enthusiastic vote was adopted as the son of the department of the G. A. R. and Woman's Relief corps of Dakota. Frank West was a member of Gen. Bishop's company A, Second Minnesota infantry, and at that time he was detailed to the signal corps.

The following are the provisions of the immigration bill drafted by the assistant secretary of the treasury: It exempts from the per capita tax of 50 cents transient alien tourists, and provides a penalty of $500 for the permanent landing of alien paupers, idiots, lunatics and convicts. The secretary of the treasury is given power to appoint commissioners of immigration, not to exceed three in number, at Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Key West, New Orleans, Galveston and San Francisco, who shall take exclusive charge and provide for the support and return of such alien immigrants as may fall into distress.

The following nominations were confirmed by the Senate: Registers of land offices—George W. Warter, Tracy, Minn.; William Smith, Crookston, Minn.; Ralph N. Marble, Duluth, Minn. Receivers of Public Moneys—August Peterson, Worthington, Minn.; Philip K. Wiser, Tracy, Minn. Surveyor general of Nebraska and Iowa, Jonathan F. Gardner. Agent for the Indians of the Omaha and Winnebago agencies, Charles H. Potter. Postmasters—R. C. West, Perry, Iowa; William T. Smith, Oscaloosa, Iowa; James F. Vogt, Lemars, Iowa; S. W. Hobbs, Storm Lake, Iowa; David W. Bossert, Jefferson, Iowa; A. K. Webber, Albia, Iowa.

A duel was fought on the field of Waterloo on the 25th, the contestants being Mme. Valsayre, a native of France, and Miss Shelby, an American. The duel was the result of a dispute on the relative merits of French and American female doctors. After a stormy altercation between the disputants, Mme. Valsayre threw her glove in Miss Shelby's face and a duel was forthwith arranged. The weapons were swords. Miss Shelby was slightly wounded on one arm. The four seconds were Americans. The latter expressed themselves as satisfied that the duel had been conducted fairly and that France's honor had been upheld.

A TRIP TO COLFAX SPRINGS.

Colfax Springs, on the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad, is a popular health resort to which many Western people go to try the waters, which are noted for their healing properties. They are claimed to be beneficial for rheumatism and kindred troubles. Mr. Charles P. Griffin, a butcher of Stuart, Ia., recently made a trial of them and, while they appear to have done him some good, he afterwards discovered a cure which proved infinitely more efficacious. He gives this account:

"My attack was a very severe one, and for three months I was compelled to close my store, as I was not able to attend to business at all. My joints were swollen and there did not seem to be any part of my body that did not ache. After suffering in this way until the pain was almost beyond endurance I went to Colfax Springs to try the effects of the waters. The day I left home I had to be carried down stairs. After remaining at the Springs a month I came home feeling somewhat better. A few weeks later, however, I had a relapse which prostrated me the same as before. It was at that time that I learned of Athlophoros. I sent for a bottle of it, and in fifteen minutes after I had taken the first dose I felt the effects of it, and when I had finished my third bottle I was well. I have not had any rheumatism since and have attended to my business every day, which is a thorough test, as I am obliged to be out all kinds of weather and at all seasons of the year. If I had known of Athlophoros in the first place it would have saved me hundreds of dollars and the detriment to my business in closing my store. I take pleasure in recommending it to others."

Dr. L. D. Rounds, a dentist, for sixteen years a resident of Oskaloosa, but for the past three years of Albia, Ia., relates an equally pleasant experience with Athlophoros:

"Rheumatism," he says, "has been my most serious trouble until about a year ago, when I used a bottle of Athlophoros. Since that time I have not had a twinge of it. Previously I had been subject to sciatic rheumatism for several years, many times so badly that I could scarcely drag myself around. When I commenced with Athlophoros my legs were so stiff that I could scarcely get up the steps to my office. But I am not troubled that way now, and the joints of my legs are as free as they ever were. I had tried so many remedies before that I had no faith in Athlophoros when I began with it, but I changed my mind after I had taken a few doses and found relief. All I used was one bottle. It is the grandest medicine ever heard of for rheumatism. My wife has also used Athlophoros with success equal to mine."

"During the years I have been in business," says O. E. Givins, a druggist at Stuart, Mr. Griffin's home, "I have sold many different kinds of proprietary medicines but none that has given such universal satisfaction as Athlophoros has for rheumatism. I always feel when I hand out a bottle of that medicine to a customer that I am giving him the full value of his money. Since I have seen its wonderful effects among my customers I gladly recommend it in every instance for rheumatism."

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as directed. ATHLOPHOROS Co., 112 Wall Street, New York.

[First publication March 11th, 1885.]

WHEREAS, on the 24th day of June 1885, at the City of Crookston, of Polk County, Minnesota, one P. J. Lachapelle and one Andrew Absalomson, the said P. J. Lachapelle being then and there the owner, as mortgagee, by virtue of a chattel mortgage, and the said Andrew Absalomson being in legal possession of a certain hack, did request Euclid and Angus Munn, co-partners under the firm name of Munn Bro's, to make and perform certain repairs on said hack. And whereas, the said Munn Bro's pursuant to said request did do, make and perform repairs on said hack of the just and reasonable worth and value of fifty dollars, and the said Munn Bro's claim a lien on said hack to the amount of said repairs and still hold and retain possession of said hack since the making of said repairs. And whereas, more than three months have elapsed since the making of said repairs upon said hack and the said $50 has not been paid or any part thereof, although the sum has been heretofore duly demanded of the said P. J. Lachapelle and the said Andrew Absalomson. Now therefore, notice is hereby given that pursuant to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, the said Munn Bro's, will, on the 5th day of April, 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the front door of Munn Bro's Carriage Works, on the corner of Third Street and Broadway, in said City of Crookston, expose said hack for sale, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy the said lien, and the costs of such sale.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk.—ss. In Probate Court.

On reading and filing the petition of Andreas E. Riseland, of Polk County, representing, among other things, that Erik E. Riseland late of Polk County, Minnesota, on the second day of March A. D. 1886, at Garfield town in said county, died intestate, and being a resident of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is a half brother of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Iver J. Ingebrigtson, granted.

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before the Judge of this Court, on Monday the 26th day of April A. D. 1886, at 2 o'clock p. m., at Crookston in said county.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, Minn., in said county.

By the Court,
ROBERT J. MONTAGUE,
Judge of Probate.

Mortgage Sale.

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Wenzel E. Newes, and Augusta M. Newes, his wife, mortgagors, to the Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, a corporation duly organized and acting under the laws of the State of Minnesota, mortgagee, which mortgage bears date the 9th day of November A. D. 1883, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 5th day of January A. D. 1884, at 11:20 o'clock a. m., in book "P" of mortgage deeds on pages 192, 193 and 194, and whereas said mortgage was executed to secure the payment of the sum of one thousand dollars with interest from date on the sum of four hundred and fifty dollars, at the rate of ten per cent per annum, and also to secure the sum of five dollars per month as and for the monthly contribution on five shares of the capital stock of said Association then owned by the said Wenzel E. Newes, said interest and said dues being payable on the first Saturday of each and every month after the date of said mortgage according to the conditions of a certain bond for the sum of two thousand dollars executed and delivered by the said Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, and bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain other and second mortgage executed and delivered by the aforesaid Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes, his wife, to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, which mortgage bears date the 17th day of November A. D. 1884, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota on the 17th day of November A. D. 1884, at 3:45 o'clock p. m. in book "S" of mortgage deeds, on pages 468, 469 and 470, and whereas said second mortgage was executed to secure the payment of the sum of one thousand dollars with interest from date on the sum of three hundred and fifty dollars at the rate of ten per cent per annum and also to secure the sum of five dollars per month as and for the monthly contribution on five shares of the capital stock of said Association then owned by the said Wenzel E. Newes, said interest and said dues being payable on the first Saturday of each and every month after the date of said second mortgage according to the conditions of a certain bond for the sum of two thousand dollars executed and delivered by the said Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes, to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston and bearing even date of November 10th A. D. 1884, and said second mortgage being upon the same real estate as the mortgage first above mentioned.

And whereas it is provided in each of said mortgages herein described, that in case any default should be made in the payment of the said principal sums when due or interest, or any part thereof for the space of six months after the same shall have become due, or in case said shares should be sold for the non payment of dues, then and in such case the whole principal debt should immediately thereupon become due, and whereas default has been made in the payment of said interest and of said monthly dues secured by both of said mortgages for more than six months whereby according to the terms of said mortgages the whole principal debt has become due, and said ten shares of stock have been duly forfeited and sold for non payment of dues, and whereas no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise for the recovery of said debt or any part thereof.

And whereas, there is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice, the sum of nine hundred forty-eight and 65-100 dollars on said first mortgage and the sum of eleven hundred twenty-three and 55-100 dollars on said second mortgage, making in the aggregate the sum of two thousand seventy-one and 52-100 dollars now due.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that under and by virtue of the powers of sale in said mortgages contained, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the real estate and premises mentioned in each of said mortgages which are situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and described as follows to-wit: Lot number thirteen (13,) in block number two (2,) of L. Fletcher's Addition to Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County, State of Minnesota, will be sold by the Sheriff of said County of Polk, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, on Saturday the first day of May A. D. 1886, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on the debt secured by both of said mortgages, together with the sum of fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated March 8th A. D. 1886.

Mortgage Sale.

(First publication March 4, 1886.)

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Thilesphone Joly and Harriet, his wife, mortgagors, to Colonial and United States Mortgage Company, (Limited) mortgagee, dated the 17th day of November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 17th day of November, A. D. 1882, at one o'clock p. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 501, 502 and 503, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of six hundred and eighty-three dollars and twenty-five cents, ($683.25) besides the further sum of $27.51 paid for taxes upon the mortgaged premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy, on Friday, the 16th day of April, A. D. 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and provided by law.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section number thirty-three, (33) in township number one hundred and fifty, (150) in Range number forty-three (43) west of the 5th principal meridian, containing 160 acres.

MORTGAGE SALE.

BE IT KNOWN, THAT ON THE thirteenth day of January one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, Joseph Boiselle, and Cile Boiselle, his wife, made, executed and delivered unto The Farmers' and Mechanics' Savings Bank of Minneapolis, their certain mortgage; That said mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, State of Minnesota, on the thirteenth day of January A. D. 1881, at three o'clock in the afternoon, in book "D" of mortgages, on pages forty-two, forty-three and forty-four, that said mortgage conveyed the hereinafter described premises to secure the payment of three hundred ($300.00-100) dollars, in five years from its date, and the interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum, per annum, payable semi-annually. That default has been made in the payment of said principal sum, and of interest thereon; That there is hereby claimed to be due on said mortgage debt the sum of three hundred and thirty-six, ($336,) dollars, that no action, or proceeding, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, that said mortgaged premises are situate in Polk County, Minnesota, and are described as follows, viz: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section thirty-four (34.) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152.) Range forty-six (46,) containing one hundred and sixty acres; more or less, according to United States Government survey.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by reason of said default in the conditions of said mortgage, and by virtue of the power of sale therein contained, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of said described mortgaged premises, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the eighth day of May A. D. 1886, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and twenty-five dollars, attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption as provided by law.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by William Wylie and Mary Jane Wylie, mortgagors, to Edwin H. Pease, mortgagee, dated the 25th day of February A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-one and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of March A. D. 1881, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "D" of mortgages, on pages 201, 202 and 203, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of three hundred and ten dollars and seventy-three cents ($310.73,) and the sum of eighteen dollars and fifty-five cents ($18.55,) necessarily paid for taxes on said land and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and by and under the authority in said mortgage contained, the said assignee elects to and does declare and claim that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid, is due and payable.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on Friday the 9th day of April A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, by the Sheriff of said county or his deputy duly appointed, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars ($25.00) attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-five (25,) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres according to the United States Government survey thereof.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of two hundred seven and 85-100 dollars, ($207.85-100,) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ole Helgason, of Polk County, Minnesota, to Loren Fletcher and Charles M. Loring, partners as L. Fletcher & Co., of Minneapolis, County of Hennepin and State of Minnesota, bearing date the twentieth day of June A. D. 1878, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 22d day of July A. D. 1878, at 11 o'clock a. m., in book "B" of mortgages, on page 63, and in addition thereto the further sum of eighteen and 66-100 dollars taxes, duly assessed and levied against the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, for the years 1883, 1884 and 1885, paid by said mortgagees, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lot four (4,) in Section twenty (20,) in township one hundred and fifty (150,) of Range forty-nine (49,) containing thirty and 75-100 ($30.75-100) acres according to the Government survey, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 16th day of April, A. D. 1886, at two o'clock p. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, on said premises and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Henry Tiedemann and Mina Tiedemann, mortgagors, to The Beloit Savings Bank, mortgagee, dated the 8th day of April A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 1st day of May A. D. 1882, at 10 o'clock a. m., in book "F" of mortgages, on pages 322 and 323, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the sum of seven hundred and sixty-four and 36-100 dollars, ($764.36-100,) and twenty-six and 82-100 dollars, ($26.82-100) paid for taxes by said mortgagee, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and under the power of sale in said mortgage contained, the said mortgagee elects to declare and claims that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid is due and payable.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy duly appointed on Saturday the first day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section two (2,) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-eight (48) west, containing one hundred and forty-six and 44-100 acres (146 44-100.)

The public debt of Great Britain at present is $3,782,110,820. It is alleged that Premier Gladstone's proposed land measure for Ireland will add £150,000,000, or $750,000,000, to this debt, increasing the amount to $4,500,000,000.

Massachusetts has again debated the bill for submitting a biennial session amendment to the people. It required two-thirds of each house, which was not obtained, though the majority vote was given in favor of the measure. It will come up again next year.

Judge Noah Davis, of New York, who is considered a wise man, was asked to write an opinion in favor of a proposed marriage license law. His answer was: "I believe true public policy requires that marriage should be made easy and divorce next to impossible."

President Cleveland says he has no thought of appointing a new public printer until April 11, when Mr. Rounds will have been four years in office. He was not appointed for any fixed term, but the president thinks that four years is about enough. Who will succeed Mr. Rounds nobody is authorized to say. There are many candidates.

The Mikado of Japan has contributed five hundred American dollars to the Grant monument fund of New York. The Mikado showed great attention to Gen. Grant in Japan, and the relations between these dignitaries were friendly and even intimate. The general was chosen to arbitrate certain difficulties between Japan and China and performed the duty to the satisfaction of both nations.

The question of killing murderers by an electric shock is again under discussion. If the only object is killing, electricity will do it as well as anything else; but if one and the main object, is to deter others from the commission of murder, the terrors of the gallows should not be mitigated. These are the two sides of the question, and a good deal can be said upon both.

Dozens of statesmen and thousands of social philosophers are speculating about the solution of the labor question. It is generally assumed that some sort of legislation can be devised which will restore order and establish harmony all around, and various schemes, embodying arbitration, are proposed. But there is a prevailing impression that in due time the problem will solve itself.

The returns of the British board of trade for last month show that during January and February the importations of India wheat into the English market for the first time exceeded those from the United States. The exact figures are: From India, 2,249,867 cwts.; from the United States, 1,312,154 cwts.; Russia and Germany it would also appear, are increasing their shipments of the same commodity.

Bradstreet's journal decribes a new phase in the industrial situation in New England. It is shown that the principle of union among capitalists is obtaining at various manufacturing centers. It is clear that such federations of capital will be likely to still further complicate the relations of employer with employed. The outlook is that the monopoly of organized strikes will no longer rest with labor, but become a part of the power of capital.

In Connecticut, a bill has been reported making it a misdemeanor for any member of the legislature to accept a railroad pass, and the hearts of the Connecticut legislators are flustered thereby. They have not that confidence in the moral obtuseness of their constituency which enables them to flock up and get their passes with the open alacrity of their New York and Pennsylvania brethren, but they cannot give up the sweets of free riding. It is safe to predict that all the legislative devices for shelving a bill will be exhausted before the roosters are brought to a vote on that measure.

A reading contest at Philadelphia between Episcopal theological students, attracted considerable attention. The tourney was open to one student of any theological school of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States. The programme consisted of reading the first three sentences of the prayer book, the Ten Commandments, Matthew vi, First Corinthians, thirteenth verse, Second Samuel, eighteenth verse, and the 471st hymn, "Am I a Soldier of the Cross?" The winner of the $800 prize, given by a gentleman of Philadelphia, was Edmund S. Rausmaniere, of Conn. The Board of Examiners consisted of the Bishop of Philadelphia, the vice chancellor of the University of the South, the donor of the prize and nine others, three of whom were appointed by each of the gentlemen.

Condensed General News.

What the Strikers Say.

A committee of the district assemblies 78 and 107, Knights of Labor, covering all territory from Hannibal, Mo., to Laredo, Tex., furnishes a long statement of the causes which led to the strike on the Missouri Pacific road in answer to the statements by Mr. Hoxie and the governors of Missouri and Kansas that there were no grievances. The essential points made are: The chief provisions of the contract of March, 1885, between the roads and Knights of Labor were that the wages of Sept. 1, 1884, were to be the basis, with one and one-half time for Sunday work and over time; no man's wages were to be reduced without thirty days' notice. Numerous instances of violations of every part of this contract by Missouri Pacific are given in this statement. The Knights assert that they stand ready to prove all their assertions; that they bore with their wrongs as long as they could; that they repeatedly sought redress in vain, being put about from officer to officer to no purpose; and that, finally, in sheer desperation, they struck.

Monday the 22d, was the 89th anniversary of Emperor William's birthday. The newspapers take occasion to pay him the most fervid tributes. On Saturday evening the emperor witnessed the tableaux vivants representing Liszt's oratorio "St. Elizabeth" at the Royal opera house. The theater was crowded by an enthusiastic audience. The performance was repeated at a matinee. Tickets sold at a high figure. The proceeds of both entertainments were handed over to the Roman Catholic order of Gray Sisters. A telegram was received by the emperor from the pope, congratulating him on the anniversary and expressing his cordial wishes for the continuation of prosperity to the empire and emperor, and family. The city was decorated with flags and illuminated. In the evening the emperor appeared at the windows of the palace, and was received with vociferous greeting by enormous crowds. All the foreign sovereigns telegraphed congratulations.

Mr. Irons, who ordered the present strike in Missouri, says: If the grievances of the Knights of Labor are not adjusted within the next three days we will call out the Knights on every railroad in the country and stop every wheel from running.

The body of Florence Ruger, the daughter of state Senator Ruger of Chicago, was found in the river. The girl had been missing since last October, and her mysterious and sudden disappearance caused a great sensation.

It is understood that Maj. Gen. Schofield will be transferred to the division of the Atlantic, with headquarters at New York; that Maj. Gen. Terry will be assigned to the command of the division of the Missouri, with headquarters at Chicago, and that Gen. Howard will be given command of the division of the Pacific, with headquarters at San Francisco. The proposed transfer of Gen. Schofield is said to be in strict accord with his expressed desire.

The pork-packing interests in Chicago is shown to have enlarged considerably during the year, the number of hogs packed during the summer of 1885 having been 2,535,678, an increase of 675,690 over the number packed during the previous season. The total number of hogs slaughtered during the twelve months ending March 1, 1886, is found to be 4,928,730, an increase of 700,525 over the preceding year. An increase in the volume of the dressed beef trade is also noted.

One of the senators, says a Washington correspondent, prehaps the most popular in society, is Wade Hampton of South Carolina. He is the typical Southern gentleman—handsome, deferential and chivalrous. His manner toward women is the quintessence of chivalry. He bows to any of them, no matter what her rank, with all the profound deference with which a monarchical subject lowers the head before the throne. In fact, Senator Hampton is one of those men who honor women simply because they are women, and would fight and die for them for the same reason. This, at least, is his reputation among those who know him well.

The citizens of Helena, Mon., were startled one morning recently by the swinging form on a telegraph pole opposite the court house in course of erection of what appeared to be a man. It was an effigy of J. J. Palmer of St. Paul, the new contractor on the court house there, and bore on the breast "Palmer, 3-7-77," the cabalistic figures of the Montana vigilantes. Another effigy on a telegraph pole on Main street bore the legend: "Palmer, a second Beecher, $1.75 good enough for a workingman. What next?" A few days ago Palmer reduced the wages of laborers from $2.50 to $1.75.

The report of the commissioner of the Northwest mounted police shows: During last year there were seven cases of high treason and ninety-two of treason, and felony. The first report on the Riel outbreak was received by the government on July 13, 1884, from Maj. Crozier, who at the time referred to the grievances of the half-breeds and Indians. The government always received, from time to time, reports of the progress of the rebellion, but took no steps to put down same. Respecting the unaccountable stay of Irvine at Prince Albert, he (Irvine) says that he got no orders to join Middleton, and was very much surprised at the fact, as from the knowledge possessed he would be of very much service to the major general.

Dr. Hamilton has made a statement to Assistant Secretary Fairchild in regard to the condition of Secretary Manning, from which it appears that he has symptoms of apoplexy, and is not regarded as out of danger. Dr. Hamilton says he is very weak, and will be confined to his bed for some time. His mind is clear, and he is in good spirits. The secretary was first taken ill in his office, and in falling to the floor from exhaustion wrenched his ancle. Subsequently he grew worse, and there were symptoms of apoplexy, which alarmed his friends and resulted in summoning a physician. The attack of vertigo was subsequent to the fall. His sprained ancle caused him considerable pain.

Maj. Asa Bird Gardner, the leading lawyer of the legal corps of the army, will probably retire in July, to engage in private law practice.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

SENATE.—Mr. Wilson presented a memorial from the legislature of Iowa urging the passage of the Des Moines river lands title bill over the president's veto.

Mr. Logan submitted the following:

Resolved, That the sessions of the senate commonly known as executive sessions, so far as they apply to nominations, confirmations or rejections, shall hereafter be held with open doors, and that a public record of the same shall be kept the same as of legislative sessions.

The resolution was ordered printed and to lie over.

A letter was read from Secretary Manning, declining, by direction of the president, to furnish papers as called for by the senate, in the case of two suspended customs officers—Wells, collector for the Vermont district, and Morton, surveyor for the California district. The papers in these two cases were asked for about two months ago. It is apparent that the feeling in the senate in favor of open sessions when considering executive nominations, is making progress.

The bill to increase the efficiency of the army increasing it to 30,000 men was debated. The discussion on the judiciary committee's resolutions concerning removals from office was resumed.

HOUSE.—The bill granting an annual pension of $2,000 to Gen. Hancock's widow passed. Bills were introduced to create a labor strike arbitration commission; prohibiting polygamy; to reduce the salaries of all public officials which have been increased by congress since 1860; for the issue of United States coin notes; to define the unit of value and regulate coins; for the appointment of none but soldiers' descendants to the West Point military academy.

Quite a sensation was produced in the house when the chaplain devoted his opening prayer to an invocation to God to rid the land of gamesters, whether in billiards, dice, chips, stocks, wheat, bucket-shops or boards of trade, and to lead the people to know that money making, other than by the sweat of the face, was contrary to his laws. The prayer was ordered to be inserted in the record.

SENATE.—The house bill granting a pension of $2,000 to Gen. Hancock's widow passed. Mr. Ingalls' resolution of inquiry, was agreed to, asking whether the postmaster general had received the senate resolution calling for information as to the number of fourth-class postmasters removed under the present administration.

Senator Sewall, from the committee on pensions, reported a bill to increase to $4 per month the pension of minor children and widows having minor children, and to extend the period of minority to eighteen years.

The bill passed to confirm public land entries hitherto made in accordance with land office rulings in force at the time. Mr. Logan introduced a bill for the abolishment of the offices of general and lieutenant general when the next vacancies occur therein. The bill to increase the efficiency of the army was considered and the debate on the judiciary committee's resolutions was resumed.

HOUSE.—After numerous bills had been reported from committees the Fourth of July claims bill passed. The Indian appropriation bill was debated.

SENATE.—The Logan bill to increase the efficiency of the army was placed before the senate. Mr. Logan explained that under the 25,000 regulation there were but 24,626 effective men in the army, and under the proposed increase to 30,000 there would probably, owing to casualties, etc., be only about 27,000 effective men.

The resolutions reported from the judiciary committee were placed before the senate.

Mr. Morgan addressed the senate in opposition to the majority report.

HOUSE.—Mr. Anderson asked unanimous consent that an order be made allowing the committee on labor to report for action at any time (not to interfere with revenue or appropriation bills) legislation for the purpose of providing for arbitration in strikes on railroads. There was no objection and the order was made.

The Indian appropriation bill passed, and the postoffice bill was debated. Mr. Burrows assailed the policy and action of the postmaster general.

SENATE.—On motion of Mr. Sabin, the senate passed a bill to authorize the Mississippi Water Power and Boom company, of Brainerd, Minn., to construct a dam across the Mississippi river at or near Brainerd.

In moving an amendment, Mr. Edmunds said that people who expended their money in things of this sort should know that if congress should hereafter decide to alter or repeal the act, no claim could be maintained against congress for any moneys invested.

The debate on the judiciary committee's resolutions continued. Mr. Voorhees spoke against and Mr. Evarts in support of the resolutions.

Among the nominations confirmed by the senate in exutive session were R. Letcher of Missouri, consul Rio Grande do Sul, and Roswell A. Fish of California, assistant register of the treasury; also several army appointments. The nominations of Second Lieutenants John P. McBlair and Richard H. Wilson, to be first lieutenants, were rejected.

HOUSE.—The consideration of the postoffice appropriation bill was resumed, the policy of the postmaster general forming the chief point of discussion. An evening session was held, at which tributes were paid to the memory of the late Congressman Rankin of Wisconsin.

SENATE.—Among the bills introduced was one by Mr. Hoar providing for inquests under national authority. Mr. Hoar said:

The bill was suggested by reports of recent occurrences at Carrollton, Miss., where a wanton and unprovoked crime had been committed, resulting in the death of a large number of citizens, in which all the victims were of one race, and he presumed of one political party, and all the murderers of another. Such occurrences unfortunately had been frequent, but when investigated were apt to take a political turn. Persons defending or apologizing for them said they had no political significance. Still, the fact remained that it was the opponents of the Democratic party that were killed, and that adherents of that party were the murderers. This bill was to supply a method of inquiry which would be removed from politics.

It was referred to the judiciary committee. The Edmunds resolutions on the rights of the senate in the matter of removals on suspensions from office was discussed at length.

The question was then on Mr. Van Wyck's amendment, providing that "in all such cases of removals the matter of confirmations shall considered in open session of the senate."

Mr. Hoar raised the point that the amendment was not in order, inasmuch as it had changed the rules of the senate, and no notice had been given of it.

The president pro tempore sustained the point of order, and an appeal taken by Mr. Butler was laid on the table—yeas, 31; nays 28. This was a strict party vote, except that Messrs. Van Wyck and Riddleberger voted with the Democrats.

Mr. Harris having demanded a separate vote upon the Edmunds resolutions, the first resolution adopting the report of the committee on the judiciary was adopted—yeas 32, nays 26. The second resolution, condemning the refusal of the attorney general to send copies of papers called for by the senate, was adopted—yeas 32, nays 25.

The question being on the third resolution, declaring it to be the duty of the senate to refuse its advice and consent to proposed removals of officers, the documents in reference to the supposed misconduct of whom are withheld.

Mr. Brown moved to amend by striking out the third resolution altogether. Lost. A vote being taken on the third resolution it was agreed to—yeas 30, nays 20—Messrs. Mitchell (Or.) Riddleberger and Van Wyck voting with the Democrats. The fourth resolution, condemning the discharge of ex-Union soldiers and the putting in their places of men who had rendered no military service for the government, was then voted on and agreed to—yeas 56, nays 1 (Morgan).

HOUSE.—The house spent the day on private bill.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Resolutions of Minnesota Farmers.

At the Farmers' Institute, comprising delegates from a number of counties, held of Montevideo, Chippewa county, after a discussion comprising different topics, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, The prosperity of agricultural interests, as well as all other interests of Minnesota, depends in a very large measure upon the adoption of better methods of farming, better products, larger yields upon a more diversified system of agriculture, and upon a larger education of the farmers of our state; whereas, we believe that the institute has been of the most practical value in accomplishing this end; therefore,

Resolved, That we are in favor of liberal legislative appropriations for the maintenance of a system of county farmers' institutes, to be held under state control and management.

Resolved, That we recognize the grand field of work that is open to such practical education of farmers and farmers' boys through the state agricultural college, through its experimental farm, through its able corps of teachers; that we hope to see encouragement given it by our state and by our people, to the end that our agriculture may be thereby practically benefitted.

Resolved, That we look upon the state agricultural society as another of our great educating agencies, but that we do deprecate the practice of holding the state fair at a time when the farmers of the state are deprived of its benefits as an educator, and also are prevented from competing for its premiums and honors. We therefore respectfully urge upon the board of managers of the State Agricultural society that they hold state fairs hereafter in the interests and for the benefit of the people of the state of Minnesota. We would recommend that the time of holding the fair be fixed at a date not earlier than the last week of September or the first week in October, that country agricultural societies be encouraged to hold county fairs before the state fair, and that they be invited to bring in county exhibits to the state fair from each county; and that in making up the premium lists of agricultural products the state be given greater prominence, and that less attention and expense be given to the sport's race course.

Winona county expended $10,272.63 for the poor last year, including the maintenance of the poor farm, salary of overseer, etc.

The stone cutters at Kasota recently formed a union, and went out on a strike. They receive $3.50 and ask $4 per day.

The store occupied by L. A. Gardner, at Lake Crystal, was burned, with most of the contents valued at $9,000.

The board of education at Willmar has been temporarily enjoined from issuing the bonds of the district to the amount of $9,000 lately voted in aid of the construction of a high school building proposed to be erected in the place of the one burned last fall, at a cost of $16,000.

Congressman Milo White has introduced a bill increasing the amount heretofore fixed as the limit for the public building at Winona to $125,000, and that sum is fixed as the limit of cost for its erection.

According to the report of the department of agriculture, there were 11,314,000 bushels of wheat on hand in Minnesota, or one-third the entire crop of the state. This is about 12 per cent of all the wheat in the country. Dakota on that date had on hand 6,000,000 bushels out of 28,000,000 bushels grown.

The foundry and machine shop of S. E. Martin at Glencoe was damaged $1,200; no insurance.

George Granville, a young insurance agent from Detroit, Mich., disappeared mysteriously from Moorhead. Foul play is suspected, as he was known to have valuables with him.

St. Paul contractors and builders organize for mutual protection.

Congressman Milo White writes to Assistant Dairy Commissioner H. C. Howard stating that a bill has gone to the house taxing oleomargarine, and been referred to the committee on agriculture. He hopes that definite action will soon be taken by the house toward passing a bill for the protection of the dairy interests. He is confident that some favorable action will be taken in that direction this session.

James S. Stokes and Martin Woods of St. Paul are committed to St. Peter Insane Asylum.

The St. Paul Ice Palace still stands in form, but is a mere shell, and almost melted away. Strangers still continue to visit it.

A bridge builder named Albert Benson fell from the Robert street bridge, St. Paul, to the ice below, a distance of nearly fifty feet, and was severely and probably fatally injured.

The president nominated as postmasters, Peter Roscoe of Wadena, and D. McLaughlin of Waseca. The following fourth-class postmasters were appointed in Minnesota: Deerfield, A. Wertzler, vice Yust, moved away and failed to qualify; Lake Benton, G. H. Bradley, vice Cass, not commissioned. Postmasters Commissioned—A. C. Lawrence, Carlisle; J. W. Donehower, Homer; B. J. Sawyer, Villard; T. Hussey, Avon; E. A. Englin, Kost; A. Mattisson, Naustdal; T. Frazee, Pelican Rapids; D. Nobles, Sumter; G. O. Miller, White Rock; E. Little, Brook. Postoffice name changed—Hersey, Nobles county, to Brewster; P. Geyermann, postmaster. Postoffices established—Alberta, Benson county; special from Sauk Rapids, sixteen miles southwest, Foley, seven miles south; F. Spieska, postmaster. Norton, Winona county; special from Minnesota City, Oak Ridge six miles north, Rolling Stone nine miles east; W. Sineau; postmaster.

BRIGHAM YOUNG.

First Settlement of Mormons in Ohio —Brigham's First Marriage.

A Chardon, O., correspondent of The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette writes: Learning that there were in the office of the probate judge of Geauga county some interesting facts to be obtained in regard to the early life of Brigham Young, the great Mormon, your correspondent paid that office a visit and was by the courtesy of Judge Smith enabled to obtain the following facts, never before published. It will be remembered that the little town of Kirtland, at that time a part of Geauga county, was the first "gathering place" of the Mormons. Brigham Young was one of the earliest of them to come to Kirtland, and soon after coming to the place he met and soon married Miss Mary Ann Angel. This was his first and legal marriage. In the old records of the probate court may still be seen the original application of Brigham for the necessary license for this marriage and the certificate of the marriage by Sidney Rigdon, another prominent Mormon. By the way, this Sidney Rigdon was at one time a Baptist preacher, afterward joined the Disciples, or, as they were then called, Campbellites, and finally became a Mormon, and soon was among the greatest of that sect. He was at one time after he joined the Mormons, indited for solemnizing the marriage of Orson Hyde, another prominent Mormon, without legal authority, but was acquitted on trial. The copies for the application for license and the certificate of marriage are as follows:

"The State of Ohio, Geauga County, ss:"

"Personally appeared Brigham Young and made application for a marriage license for himself and Mary Ann Angel, of the township of Kirtland, in said county, and made solemn oath that he, the said Brigham Young, is of the age of twenty-one years, and the said Mary Ann Angel is of the age of eighteen years; that they are both single, and not nearer of kin than first cousins; that he knows of no legal impediment against there being joined in marriage.

"BRICKHAM YOUNG."

"Sworn and subscribed this 10th day of February, 1834, before me,

"RALPH COWLES, Dep. Clerk."

"Be it remembered, that on the thirty-first day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four, Brigham Young and Mary Ann Angel, of the county of Geauga, were legally joined in marriage by competent authority, in conformity to the provisions of the Statutes of the State of Ohio, in such cases made and provided, and a certificate of the said marriage signed by Sidney Rigdon, a minister who solemnized the same, has been filed in the office of the clerk of the court of the common pleas for the said county of Geauga, this the third day of April, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four.

"Attest: D. D. AIKEN, Clerk."

The signature of Brigham Young to the application above is a fac simile of the original signature on the record. It will be noticed as an evidence of Brigham's illiteracy that he spells his name Brickam Young, and spells the last name with a small or lower-case "y." How such a man could obtain such a control over the people as he did can only be explained upon the hypothesis that they were very ignorant or very vicious, and his great personal magnetism and insight into human nature and faculty of adapting himself to the different natures, showed them that he was a born leader.

There still live in Kirtland and in Munson, in this county, nephews of Mary Ann Angel, and they confirm all the foregoing statements. There is still living in Kirtland a small band of Mormons who cannot swallow the polygamous portion of the religion. They still hold meetings occasionally in the old Mormon Temple in that place, and crowds of curious people come from the neighboring towns to see their proceedings.

A Negress' Rare Voice.

Sunday night St. Paul's Episcopal church in this city, writes a New Orleans correspondent, was crowded to overflowing by people congregated there to listen to the evengelical teachings of Rev. Dr. Aiken, the distinguished English missionor. The scene as presented was one not often witnessed in New Orleans, for, crowding good naturedly and without apparent friction against each other in the pews and isles were representatives, colored as well as white, of every social class and almost every religious denomination. The softening influence of religious fervor seemed for the once to have broken down and swept away all social barriers and race distinctions. A hymn was given, and before the fluttering leaves of all the hymnals were stilled a flood of rich concerted music swept across and filled the vast sanctuary. It seemed for a moment as if the whole congregation was singing in one voice. Then one pure soprano of silvery, bird-like quality sent its flute-like notes of surpassing sweetness above the very crest of the song wave. Instantly every head in the congregation was turned or bent forward to discover the source of the melodious tones. For not a little while the singer remained undiscovered, save by those sitting near her, and when at last she was singled out, she went on, seemingly unconscious of the attention she was attracting, singing her heart away like an uncaged lark. The singer was a young and exceedingly modest-looking colored woman, who at one time sang in the choir of the little colored church recently sold and dismantled at the corner of Pritania and Calliope streets. Such a voice is seldom heard, even in our city of song.

Mr. Ibid.

It happened during a history recitation that somebody quoted: "Ill fares the land to hastening—to hastening—" and could get no further. "Who can finish it? Who can finish it?" cried the professor, and catching Kitty's steady gaze, he said, "Miss Morris?"

"To hastening ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates and men decay."

But I just happened to see it in 'Familiar Quotations' yesterday. That was the only reason I knew," said Kitty, blushing. "And who wrote it?" asked the professor, smiling. "Ibid." "I beg your pardon." The professor's pet alarm was deafness. "It said Ibid." He was very near asking her the date of Ibid's birth, but he refrained.—Two College Girls.

Ha[illegible]

The edito[illegible] zine, hav[illegible] tive to the habits, hours of work and style and frequency of feed adopted by literary men, and several [illegible] responded who were no more essentially saturated with literature than I am, I now take my pen in hand to reveal the true inwardness of my literary life, so that boys who may yearn to follow in my footsteps and wear a laurel wreath the year round in place of a hat, may know what the personal habits of a literary party are.

I rise from bed the first thing in the morning, leaving my couch not because I am dissatisfied with it, but because I cannot carry it with me during the day.

I then seat myself on the edge of the bed and devote a few moments to thought. Literary men who have never set aside a few moments on rising on thought will do well to try it.

I then insert myself into a pair of middle-aged pantaloons. It is needless to say that girls who may have a literary tendency will find little to interest them here.

Other clothing is added to the above from time to time. I then bathe myself. Still this is not absolutely essential to a literary life. Others who do not do so have been equally successful.

Some literary people bathe before dressing.

I then go down stairs and out to the barn, where I feed the horse. Some literary men feel above taking care of a horse, because there is really nothing in common between the care of a horse and literature, but simplicity is my watchword. T. Jefferson would have to rise early in the day to eclipse me in simplicity. I wish I had as many dollars as I have got simplicity.

I then go into breakfast. This meal consists almost wholly of food. I am passionately fond of food, and I may truly say, with my hand on my heart, that I owe much of my great success in life to this inward craving, this constant yearning for something better.

During this meal I frequently converse with my family. I do not feel above my family, at least if I do, I strive to conceal it as much as possible. Buckwheat pancakes in a heated state, with maple syrup on the upper side, are extremely conducive to literature. Nothing jerks the mental faculties around with greater rapidity than buckwheat pancakes.

After breakfast, the time is put in to good advantage looking forward to the time when dinner will be ready. From eight to ten a. m., however, I frequently retire to my private literary hot-bed in the hay mow, and write 1,200 words in my forthcoming book, the price of which will be $2.50 in cloth and $4 with Russia back.

I then play Copenhagen with some little girls twenty-one years of age, who live near by, and of whom I am passionately fond.

After that I dig some worms, with a view to angling. I then angle. After this I return home, waiting until dusk, however, as I do not like to attract attention. Nothing is more distasteful to a truly good man of wonderfully literary acquirements, and yet with singular modesty, than the coarse and rude scrutiny of the vulgar herd.

In winter I do not angle. I read "The Pirate Prince" or "The Missourian's Mash," or some other work, not so much for the plot as the style, that I may get my mind into correct channels of thought.

I then play "old sledge" in a rambling sort of manner. I sometimes spend an evening at home, in order to excite remark and draw attention to my wonderful eccentricity.

I do not use alcohol in any form, if I know it, though sometimes I am basely deceived by those who know of my peculiar prejudice, and who do it, too, because they enjoy watching my odd and amusing antics at the time.

Alcohol should be avoided entirely by literary workers, especially young women. There can be no more pitiful sight to the tender hearted than a young woman of marked ability writing an obituary poem while under the influence of liquor.

I knew a young man who was a good writer. His penmanship was very good indeed. He once wrote an article for the press while under the influence of liquor. He sent it to the editor, who returned it at once with a cold and cruel letter, every line of which was a stab. The letter came at a time when he was full of remorse.

He tossed up a cent to see whether he should blow out his brains or go into the ready-made clothing business. The coin decided that he should die by his own hand, but his head ached so that he didn't feel like shooting into it. So he went into the ready-made clothing business, and now pays taxes on $75,000, so he is probably worth $150,000. This of course salves over his wounded heart, but he often says to me that he might have been in the literary business to-day if he had let liquor alone.—Bill Nye, in Boston Globe.

John Hyde's Line of Life.

Talking to John Hyde the other evening, he suggested an idea that is worthy of a good deal of serious consideration. He compared a man's life to the efforts of an artist to draw a straight line.

"No man, he said, "Can draw an absolutely straight line. He can draw a line from one given point to another, which may be practically straight, but there will be some irregularities here and there. If the man succeeds in drawing that line he has accomplished his purpose.

"Now if a man keeps an honorable point in view in his life, he is doing as well as can reasonably be expected of him. He may regret the irregularities in his line, but if he reaches the other point in a nearly direct line he is doing very well. If on the other hand his line altogether deflects so that his moral perspective is so all out of drawing, that the point of sight of one object is totally different from that of the other, then the picture of his life is bad.

"If his Doric column be out of the perpendicular, if his plinth have a wavy line like a country road, his pyramid, instead of standing on its base, be standing on its apex, then his life's picture is not what he would desire it to be, nor what any one would choose to purchase. No artist desires to paint a bad picture. No man desires to lead a bad life. We would all desire to be good, to be temperate, amiable, honorable, and in fact, have all the virtues. Take the lowest ruffian that ever figured in a police court and ask him whether he would not prefer to be an honorable man, his answer would be 'yes,' emphatically 'yes.' He only deflects from the straight line because he has not the skill to do otherwise."—Texas Siftings.

Henry N. Copp, the land lawyer of Washington has just issued the eleventh edition of his Settler's Guide. It is an indispensible book for all who are, or expect to be interested in public land. Settlers will save money by purchasing it, and all who expect to take up land should get posted on the several laws under which land can be entered. A chapter illustrated with numerous cuts, shows how to tell township, section and quarter-section corners, and explains the system of surveys. It gives Commissioner Spark's orders and several late decisions and instructions and full information about the homestead, pre-emption, timber culture, desert land and other laws. The price of the book is only 25 cents.

It will tell you who is entitled to enter land; how continuous your residence must be; what improvements you must make; what affidavits you must swear to; all about contests and on what grounds they can be commenced; also about State lands, stone or timber lands, mineral lands, desert entries, saline, railroad, coal, townsite and other lands; scrip, warrant, and other entries, &c. Its purchase will save you money and trouble, as erroneous statements circulated by conversation among settlers may if acted upon, cost you a contest, perhaps your land and improvements.

Mr. Copp wishes to secure the address of every Mexican war veteran and widow.

A Little Sum for Dairymen.

It has been frequently asserted by leading dairymen that it was just as easy to keep cows averaging 5,000 pounds of milk yearly, as to have them averaging 3,000, although on the great majority of farms, even so called dairy farms, the latter would be much nearer the average than the former. The assertion can not be denied that in a few years, at least, with proper methods and proper care, such an average could be readily obtained if only by the oft commended process of weeding and selection and the service of the right kind of sire. Cows averaging 40 weeks in milk and giving a weekly average of 63 quarts, or nine quarts daily, would in the year produce a fraction over the highest figure, and supposing the quality of milk to be superior, both quality and quantity having been sought for in the improvement of the dairy, the average weekly butter production should be nearly if not quite six pounds a week, or, say for 40 weeks, 522 pounds per cow. Now there is nothing out of the way in the hypothetical case we have just put; even in dairies where the general average will be very much less there will be found cows averaging as high as the figures therein given, but the general average will be greatly reduced by the larger number of cows yielding so much less. Now, if we take a dairy composed of cows yielding a yearly average of 3,000 pounds, or, a daily average of a little over six quarts for 35 weeks, the weekly butter yield would hardly exceed 3½ pounds a week, which for 35 weeks would amount to 122 pounds, or, say in round numbers a difference in the annual yield per cow of 100 punds, which on a dairy of 30 cows would amount to 3,000 pounds of butter a year. Another difference must also be taken into account; the greater intelligence and larger profits in the former case would soon enable the owner, by means of all improved methods, increased help, at least as regards intelligence, to surpass his competitor in quality of butter, so that while the one would be selling butter the year around, at, say 20 cents a pound, the other would be getting at least 25 cents and to arrive at the difference in the income, we must caculate a yield in the one case of 6,750 pounds of butter yearly at 25 cents or $1,687.40, and in the other case a total product of barley 3740 pounds at 20 cents, or, $750, and yet we do not think that we have presented extreme cases. We have offered nothing new certainly, but have merely endeavored to reduce often made comparisons to a few plain figures. We may add, however, to answer a possible objector that we believe superior skill and attention would enable the owner of the first 30 cows to maintain them to their superior condition on the same land as that required by the owner of the second lot to keep them in their poor condition.—National Live Stock Journal.

Good Butter.

X. A. Willard says in his Practical Dairy Husbandry: "Its most desirable state is that of a waxy, when it is easily molded into any shape, and may be drawn out a considerable length without breaking. It is only in that state that butter possesses that rich, nutty flavor and smell which impart so high a degree of pleasure in eating it, and which enhances its value manifold."

"In churning I do not care to have butter come sooner than from a half to three-quarters of an hour."

"What is meant by the term grain, as applied to butter in a waxy appearance and the more it resembles wax in its appearence, the better the grain." "When the grain is injured the butter spreads like grease." "Good butter that has not been injured in the grain will not stick to the knife that cuts it."

Profit on Pure-Bred Stock.

One of the most obvious benefits resulting from raising pure-bred stock is the higher price obtained, as a rule, for the male offspring. As there is not less than $15 difference in the value of a scrub and a grade calf at six months, in favor of the grade, so there is, at the very least, a difference of from $20 to $30 between the grade and the pure bred calf, in favor of the latter; this is quite the exclusive of the calves of specially valuable breeding, the difference in favor of which should be counted in hundreds of dollars. We do not forget that the common method of selling every pure-bred male unsteered is eminently unwise, but the exceptional merit of a few of the large proportion sold as bulls which would bring an extra price, would we believe, offset the smaller figures obtained for the steered calves. This kind of benefit would be especially appreciated by a dairy farmer keeping short-horns for dairy purposes. Many dairymen now keep grade shorthorns for dairy purposes, and the difference to those who do, by keeping pure bred animals, would be very material, and the first investment of a pure bred bull and a few heifers of milking families would be comparatively trifling. It should always be borne in mind that the number of animals profitable on the farm is easily ascertained, and almost as easily reached; the great point, therefore, is to see that the value of those kept is increased as much as possible.—National Live Stock Journal.

DECLARATION OF RIGHTS.

Statement of the Rights of the People and What They Should Work to Obtaim.

Fergus Falls Daily Journal.

The Journal, we believe, is the first daily paper in the state to publish the address prepared by Gen. T. H. Barrett as a guide for the organizations throughout the state in the contests with the railroads. It was submitted to the State Alliance and received its endorsement, but was not published by the papers of Minneapolis and St. Paul, and consequently did not see light until it appeared in a pamphlet form. It is published now with a view to get it before the people, that they may know their rights and work to obtain them. It is hoped everybody will read it through carefully.

Free shipments of grain, and the right to construct warehouses at all stations, must not be abridged; these are essential to an open local market, and any attempt to control them, either by state law or railway regulations, is to limit the number of local dealers, and therefore destroy free market.

State inspection at Duluth is necessary to enable our wheat to be properly exhibited in the markets of the world.

State weighing is necessary to the protection of the shippers.

Freedom of access to Duluth from all parts of the state ought not to be interfered with. State inspection and state weighing at that point will remedy all local abuses arising from false weighing and false grading.

Railways are public highways; all citizens are entitled to use them on equal and reasonable terms. There must be no discrimination of either persons or places. The power to make rates is a dangerous power, and ought not to be entrusted to any body of interested men. It is so great that even fair minded men are always in danger of using it in such a manner as to be detrimental to the public interests, and often to the injury of the corporations over which they preside. To give managers of railway corporations the unrestricted power to make rates, with the right to discriminate between persons and places, is to place the property of the whole country in their power. That granted, it is easy for them to enrich themselves and their confederates. They can build up a town or destroy it; they can crush whom they please; the business man who incurs their displeasure is in danger of ruin, while he who has the favor of railway magnates is on the high road to success. It is an irresponsible, despotic power, inconsistent with the rights of a free people, and if long submitted to must become dangerous to public liberty.

We therefore demand that the laws against discrimination be faithfully enforced, and if found inefficient, that such legislation shall be enacted as will make it as dangerous to discriminate as to counterfeit coin.

Not only have the public the right to the use of railways upon equal terms, but the terms must be reasonable. It is not reasonable that the people should be made to pay dividends upon ficticious capital. To issue stocks and bonds for a greater amount than the actual cost of the road is to perpetrate a fraud upon the public. Pretended capital, represented by such stocks and bonds, has no value except that which comes from the power to levy unjust and unreasonable rates. It is not property and is entitled to no dividends.

In deciding what rates are reasonable, only the current expenses and a reasonable rate of interest on the actual capital invested can be rightfully demanded. Large subsidies of lands, bonds and other gratuities have been donated to many of the corporations in this state. It is not reasonable to require the people to pay dividends upon these subsidies. That part of the capital which has been furnished by private individuals, and that alone, is entitled to a reasonable amount of interest.

The systematic and persistent attempt to debauch the leaders of public opinion by granting passes to every official and man of influence is a crime against the people and ought to be punished as a crime.

Railway corporations ought to bear their fair share of taxation. We denounce the present mode of paying a gross sum into the state treasury as inequitable and unfair to the people of the section through which the roads extend, and we demand that laws be enacted requiring railroad property to pay its just proportion of state, county, town and school district taxes. Where exemption from taxation is claimed as a chartered right, it is fair that such exemption be considered in determining what are reasonable rates.

The shipper has the right to choose the market to which he will ship, and to reach that market by the cheapest and shortest route. The cost to the shipper should be the actual cost of carriage, with a fair margin of profit for the use of the capital invested. It is not reasonable to charge the same amount for hauling freight a shorter than for a much longer distance. Still more unreasonable is it to charge a greater sum for a shorter than a longer distance. When the shortest route to market requires the use of the tracks of more than one company the charges over all lines should not be greater than for an equal distance on one line, except the additional reasonable expense of transferring from one road to the other. Car load lots ought to be transfered without unloading from the car in which shipment was first made.

To require the produce of a farm when once under the control of a railroad corporation to seek distant markets, or by long or circuitous routes to seek a near market, when by simply transfering to another line the distance and expense might be greatly lessened, is to levy an unjust burden upon the agriculture of the State by the exercise of an arbitrary power that cannot be justified.

It is an unjust tax upon the producer to require the unloading and reshipment of grain and other freights merely to add to the business of a city, and can be defended only upon the ground that the country exists for the the convenience of the city, having no rights of its own, and that the city is itself the state. Though rebates are unlawful there is reason to believe that they are of daily occurance, and imply discrimination in favor of the shipper getting a rebate at the expense of those who pay the regular rates. To grant to the shiper of a thousand car loads of freight a less rate than to him who ships one car load, is to give to capital an advantage. To pool at competing points is to plunder and divide. To say that a man who ships a car load of tea or tobacco shall have the use of the highways less than he who ships a car load of groceries, is an injustice to the weaker party.

By an ingenious manipulation of rates, rebates and classifying of freight made to fit long or short hauls, the natural growth of trade between different sections of the state is prevented the small towns kept in subjection and business concentrated at such points as shall make it for the interest of railway corporations to foster a monopoly of power, to extract from the people "all that the trafic will bear."

It is by such devices that competition between places is prevented, small dealers driven out, business concentrated in the hands of a few, the rich made richer, and the people placed in the power of unscrpulous combinations, which destroy legitimate business while fattening upon the spoils of labor. The keystone to this arch of confederate abuses is the assumption that railway property is like other property—private property—with no responsibilities except that which pertains to her private property and that over it the public has no control; or even if it had control that it would be unwise to exercise it, because the management of railway affairs is of so delicate and complicated a nature that any attempt to control them would result in a greater inconvenience to the public than to leave the corporations unrestricted. To assume that the control of railways is not within the authority of the state, is to say that the state has created a power greater than itself. To assume that the regulation of the trafic of railways is of so intricate a nature that only railway managers can comprehend it, is to say that to the few men who operate and control railways has been confided a capacity for wisdom and integrity so superior that nowhere else in the state can equal wisdom and integrity be found. It is an assumption that men directly interested in increasing the revenues of the corporations over which they preside shall have the arbitrary power of taxing the people without their consent and that the men who levy the taxes shall be responsible to no authority whatever. What despotism ever demanded more?

We are not hostile to railroad corporations. They are a necessity to our civilization and whether for good or for evil, must remain. As long as they are restricted to the legitimate purposes for which they have been organized, we will defend them from all unjust assaults as we would defend our property. But they are creatures of the law, and by law must be controlled. It is of vital importance to the public welfare and even to the public liberty, that these vast aggregations of power be so regulated as to give to the humblest citizen equal rights with the most powerful. There must be the freest communication between the different sections of the state by the shortest railway line. Traffic must be as free to flow through the centers of business as to flow into them; no place must insist upon breaking bulk in order to take tribute; it is absolutely essential to the best development of the state that no city, however populous, be granted on these tracks greater privileges than the smallest hamlet.

We demand that the principals herein set forth, where not already embraced in the statutes, be enacted into law and enforced by penalties that shall make the law effective. We demand that those whose duty it is to execute the law, shall see to it that the law is neither evaded, ignored or defied.

It is time to act. If the present railway usages are allowed to go on until they crystalize into long accepted customs, the effect upon the state will be as disastrous as if the law had granted all that is now assumed. This magnificent state must not be degraded into a serfdom by corporate rapacity and the monopolistic combinations which everywhere flourish as the direct result of the present system of railway management. Of the one hundred and sixty-nine millions of railway capital, which purports to have been expended in the state, it is safe to say that more than half is absolutely ficticious and of no value whatever. And this ficticious capital is adding millions to itself yearly. If this barefaced fraud of nearly one hundred million dollars is to be paid at all, it must be paid by levying upon the labor and industry of the people. It is time to call a halt. Unless this thing is stopped disaster must overtake every interest in the state, save only those which share the plunder.

The Ladies' Temperance Column.

PLEDGE.

"Be it unto thee even as thou wilt."

I hereby solemly promise, God helping me to abstain from all distilled, fermented and malt liquors, including wine and cider, and to employ all proper means to discourage the use of and traffic in the same.

Liquor-loving mankind may well consider the monkey. Brehm mentions having made some North African baboons drunk on strong beer. "The following morning they were very cross and dismal, held their aching heads with both hands and wore a most pitiable expression." But when the same intoxicant, or wine, was again offered, they turned away with disgust. Likewise, Darwin refers to an American Ateles, which, having once fallen victim to brandy, would never touch it again, "and thus was wiser than many men."

These facts are agricultural from the live-stock point of view, at least, since they tend to promote respect for the animal creation, albeit at expense of the human beings who "sink themselves below the brute."—N. Y. Tribune.

A beer drunkard is as bad as a whisky drunkard. There may not be so much stabbing and shooting resulting from it, but the sorrow and misery arising from stabbing and shooting is but a lake to an ocean, when considered by the side of the misery and sorrow of the deserted and neglected wife and helpless children.—[Father Walworth before the high license committee.

There is a marked difference in the way men treat State and National law. The one they evade, trample upon and resist; the other they submit to and respect. When the United States marshal goes for a liquor seller violating the National law, all hope of escape is gone; but when a sheriff or constable goes for a liquor seller, violating State law, the expectation of escape is confident. Is it not about time the State began to make its authority felt? State law ought to be as binding as National law.—[Living Issue.

The Ladies and the Babies.

"The ladies and the babies—last but not least—God bless them."

The above is the last toast that was drunk by the liquor dealers in their convention held in Reading, Penn., Dec. 9. That those men, whose business ruins more homes, destroys the happiness of more women and blights the lives of more children than any other evil should have the cheek to propose such a toast on such an occasion, is only another evidence of the cruel mockery and heartless disdain of the traffic.

There is hardly a mother or child in the land who doesn't recognize in the saloon a natural enemy, who doesn't know that the greatest dangers met on life's road are placed there by the drink system, who does not know that the whisky business causes more poverty than all other social evils combined. The voice of this infamous business says, "God bless them," while at the same time all the charms of homes are trampled under the brutal feet of lust and avarice bred and strengthened in the saloon.

As well might the devil, with grim sarcasm, congratulate the lost in the infernal regions because of the warmth of the climate, as have the liquor traffic to compliment, the "ladies and the babies," on being remembered and recognized in a whisky convention. "God bless them" says the heartless traffic, while it is deaf to their appeals for help, and indifferent to their cries for protection against the greatest wrong of the age.

"God bless them" says the traffic, while it steals the carpets off their floors the food from their cupboards and the fire from off the hearths.

"God bless them" says this gigantic criminal, while at the same time it is carrying on the devilish work of destroying home's peace and life's joys.

It is high time for men of the land to resent this insult gratuitously offered by the knights of the beer keg to those who look to the manhood of the nation for protection.—[Albany Vindicator.

What is the Matter?

To the Editor of the Witness.

The letter of Hon. Neal Dow about the indifference of christians and churches toward the liquor traffic calls attention to a very serious question. Let me repeat the question with emphasis, "Why are the churches so indifferent to the liquor traffic?" I will venture to answer. In doing this, I endanger my standing with a large class of respectable men. There is an old adage, "Like priests, like people." God says in the Bible, "The leaders of My people cause them to err." This is true—literally. Every general imperfection of the church is due to the preachers. Wherever you see a church encouraging the liquor business, you will find her preacher leading the way. He is silent or an advocate of license. The preachers of the United States are responsible for the liquor crime.

I have said it—it can be abundantly proved. The Louisville Courier-Journal recently said that three-fourths of the liquor business in Louisville was carried on by church members. No one has denied the statement. Sam Jones said in one of his sermons, in Cincinnati, that a large number of the houses and rooms rented to saloon keepers, gamblers and prostitutes were owned by men whose names were on the church books. Cincinnati and Louisville are not exceptions. A large percentage of the distillers and wholesale dealers of my acquaintance are church members. Why are they? Because preachers have not courage enough to tone up the moral sentiment of the churches, and to show the criminality of this business.

I know there are many honorable exceptions. In every State there are God-fearing men who set their faces sternly against the business.

I am a preacher. I will not continue to preach for a church that tolerates makers or dealers in intoxicants. They must either go out, or I go out. Let every preacher take this stand. It is not unreasonable nor unjust.

The time has come, when, for preachers and churches to be backward about this business, is a crime. For the preachers of the word of life to be criminal regarding the greatest sin of the age, is a shame and an outrage. They will by-and-by feel the pressure. They ought now to be in the front ranks of this fight. Let us "talk right out in meetin'" on this question, and let every man take his stand either for the devil or for God.

—J. W. CALDWELL.

The first number of the Political Science Quarterly, published the last of March, contains several timely and interesting articles. Prof. Burgess, in his American Commonwealth," maintains that the State governments are steadily losing power, and that the organs of our future development are the Nation and the Community. Prof. Richmond Smith publishes a destructive criticism of the American Bureau of Labor Statistics. Dr. DeLeon shows that the "Berlin Conference" was a scheme to further German trade, and criticises the role played by the United States. Mr. Goodnow advocates specific in preference to advalorem duties and outlines a plan for securing the interests of the government and doing justice to those of the importer. Mr. Whitridge discusses the exercise of "inquisitorial power" by the legislatures. This number illustrates fairly the scope and purpose of the Quarterly. Questions of present interest to Americans are discussed in a manner at once scientific and lucid. The Quarterly is published by Ginn & Co., 743 Broadway, New York.

and at least a moderate competence, come to those who follow the teachings of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST. This world-renowned periodical, in addition to its other great features, has now employed the LEADING AMERICAN WRITERS to describe THE RURAL LIVES OF OUR AMERICAN PRESIDENTS, nearly all of whom were reared on farms, or retired to them from active life. DONALD G. MITCHELL, (IKE MARVEL) R. H. STODDARD, JAMES PARTON, JULIAN HAWTHORNE, DR. LYMAN ABBOTT, and others equally eminent, are now prparing these supplemental HISTORICAL PAPERS. They are to be accompanied with ENGRAVINGS, 12x18 inches in size, executed at large expense by our first artists, illustrating the Rural Homes and Surroundings of our Farmer Presidents, comprising a MAGNIFICENT PORTFOLIO collection for every house, rich and poor alike. These SPECIAL PAPERS and SPECIAL ENGRAVINGS, will be of absorbing interest to all interested in country life, and likewise constitute an important ACQUISITION to the historical knowledge of the country.

R. H. Stoddard writes: "I am sure they will be popular in a literary sense and equally sure they will be of great value to the boys of this country, who have a right to look forward to becoming our future rulers." Donald G. Mitchell: "I write about Washington's farming, in respect to which I have some copies of unpublished letters." Lyman Abbott: "It is an admirable design, showing the close connection of our Farmer Presidents with the soil." Julian Hawthorne: "An attractive scheme. I shall be glad to have a hand in it." James Parton: "One of my articles will be ready in three weeks."

Every subscriber to the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST for 1886 is entitled to these descriptions and engravings of the Rural Lives of our Presidents, forwarded without additional cost with the numbers of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST, as they appear; or specially executed on heavy, highly finished paper, and forwarded with the additional trifling cost for packing and postage. Mr. Chas. Greenhalgh, has been appointed agent for that great work relating to commerce and the industrial arts, entitled "The Universal Assistant and Complete Mechanic," containing 500 engravings and over 1,000,000 industrial Facts, Calculations, Receipts, Processes, Trade Secrets, Business Forms etc., from the Household to the Manufactuory. This is one of the most valuable works of its kind ever published, and should be in the hands of every capable engineer, mechanic and business man in the country. It being especially adapted to the use of engineers, and no first class engineer can afford to do without it. The price of this work is very low, only $3, which brings it within the reach of all. Persons living at a distance can secure the work by addressing Chas. Greenhalgh, Crookston, Minn. [87 tf]

E. D. Childs had the misfortune to lose his thoroughbred cow, Olga, this week. He says that he would sooner have lost $500 in money than to have lost that cow and her calf.

New cash railroad at Hack & Gallasch'. The first and only one in the Northwest. Don't fail to see it.

Election passed off without a jar to disturb the peace and harmony of the ocasion. No fuss nor feathers were observable but a great deal of earnest work was done all the same.

I do my trading at Hack & Gallasch', tra-la! It is the cheapest store in Crookston, tra-la-la!

Tom Sprague was interviewing the boys last week. Tom has his double in this city and is often taken for the other fellow which makes him consider it dangerous to be safe while here. Fortunately Lucken is one of our best citizens.

Hack & Gallasch have a larger stock of dry goods, shoes, slippers and groceries than ever, and invite all to visit their store and get prices.

Hereafter by a system just adopted, the danger of doing more mischief than good with water at a fire will be averted. The chief and assistant will have a whistle and no water will be turned on until the whistle sounds the order. This is a splendid idea and will save much confusion and much useless loss of property.

Mrs. I. U. Jennings' stock of spring and summer millinery has just arrived replete with everything in that line and is determined to maintain her reputation for low prices. [49-50]

Andrew Steenerson is fixing up the building on Main St., formerly used as a machinery hall by Steenerson Bros.; has put in a quantity of ice and will soon open out a first class meat market. He has secured the services of an experienced butcher, bought Henry Steege's outfit and will run a first-class establishment. He will be ready in a few days to serve up a choice roast or steak.

P. J. Lachapelle, who was a candidate for alderman in the third ward resigned on the morning of election day, to prevent the dire confusion into which his running would have thrown the voters; being prompted by a laudable public spirit. He did it solely for the good of the public, he assured us; to appreciate the extent of the sacrifice it must be imagined that had he remained in the field he could have been triumphantly elected, and this he assures us is the fact; he would have been elected but he pulled out to elect Mix.—302.

The body of an unknown man was found last week near Euclid, and Coroner Shepard at once notified who held an inquest on Thursday. Nothing could be found to identify the man, and although he was brought to Crookston and hundreds viewed the remains, no one could positively say who it was or that they had ever seen him, though some thought they had seen him in the city. He had a valise containing clothing, which, with the clothing he had on were clean and bore evidence of care. He was a man of perhaps 35 years of age, short, and rather slightly built, sandy hair and whiskers. One arm had apparently been broken at some time and not very thoroughly set. A paper covered memorandum book found on his person failed to give his name or any clue to his identity. He was buried at the expense of the county on Saturday afternoon.

The spring boom has commenced at Hack & Gallasch. They are kept busy from morning till night serving their customers.

The Congregational social at O. H. Lucken's last week was a grand affair, well attended and very enjoyable.

Hard to beat such spring weather as this. Everybody will be hard at work seeding in a very short time at this rate.

L. C. Davis drove out to see J. O. Milne's stock on Monday. He says he saw the finest pen of calves there that he has seen in the country.

O. M. Holmes and wife returned from a visit to Minneapolis last week after a pleasant visit under the paternal roof. J. F. was down with the trotter, to escort them home in style.

A burning chimney at McKenzies' on Second St., on Wednesday evening caused a considerable excitement as the wind was blowing at a fearful rate. The department was soon on the ground ready for business which was fortunately unnecessary.

Chas. Chiniquy has his new store nearly ready for business. It is papered in fine style and when completed will not be the worst looking establishment in town. He will begin to receive his goods soon and will be ready to receive his customers and attend to their wants in his usual happy style.

Business never stagnates at Terry & Collins' stables. When nothing else is going on they start up some game or other for fun; so it happened that one day last week a pulling match was indulged in. Six strong men stretched themselves at full length and a team was brought out to pull them up. Bets were about even on the result but all who bet on the team were happy.

Chris. Houston's stock has come through the winter in fine shape and look thrifty and hearty. He has thirty head of horned stock, a fine span of two-year old colts, well broken to drive, a fine yearling Star Bashaw colt, and a six months youngster that look like they might get to be record smashers some day; has also colts from heavier work sires. He believes in keeping the farm fully supplied with horses of his own raising. Among his dairy cows are many fine grade Jersey cows and some very promising youngsters coming on. A bull calf three or four weeks old is almost a perfect type of the Jersey form and would be a valuable animal for some farmer to own. As Chris has no use for him he intends to veal him unless he could sell him to some one who wants a good animal, or trade him for a heifer calf. If any farmer is desirous of getting a fine Jersey calf for a song this is probably the best opportunity he will ever have, and he should at once load in a heifer calf and go and swap with Chris. Hogs and fowls complete the list of live stock and contribute in no small degree to the total success.

Children's suits (short pants) in all ages from four to twelve years in forty styles and patterns at the C. O. D. clothing house.

Perhaps some of the bitter opponents of the regular ticket may have learned a lesson that will be beneficial to them in the future, in this hand writing on the wall—THREE HUNDRED AND TWO! The best interests of a cause are not always best subserved by turning loose on the opposite candidate all of the dogs of war and attempting to blast his prospects for all time to come. Mr. Walsh and Mr. Davis are among our oldest inhabitants and they number among our citizens many who are equally the friends of both who would resent a gratuitous insult to the one as soon as the other. Many of these would have voted for Mr. Walsh from personal choice had not Mr. Davis been so bitterly and unjustly assailed. This is plainly shown in 302 majority for Davis, the largest majority any candidate for mayor ever received or ever could under ordinary circumstances. It can not be said that the "rabble element" that we have recently heard so much about are so largely in excess of the law abiding element. If this lesson so plainly taught is heeded in the future it will be better for the interests of our city. There is no call for the display of bitter partizanship in our municipal affairs, far better would it be to let prudence guide our actions in all our doings in city affairs even if we never do elsewhere.—302.

AUCTION!

1 Triumph Seeder.

COME ONE AND ALL!

The above will be Sold Without Reserve.

THERE WILL BE ON EXHIBITION A PEN OF

GRADE HOLSTEIN BULL CALVES,

From the Stock Farm of J. O. MILNE. These calves range from 6 to 11 months old, and all who wish to get choice samples will be given an opportunity to get one at a figure far less than the worth of the animal, for cash, or exchange for good milch cows, or on good approved paper, at 10 per cent., till Nov. 1st. All who have seen Mr. Milne's calves pronounce them the best pen of calves in the county, and an opportunity is now offered for everybody to see them and to secure a valuable animal, of the largest leading dairy herd in the world. Do not neglect this opportunity to see these animals. They have not been pampered on purpose to bring them in the show condition, but have been raised in a practical manner, by a practical farmer, in just the manner a practical farmer does it, and they show what the Holstein and its grades will do when raised in a practical manner. Do not fail to come out and see them whether you want to buy or not. If you want to buy you can do it on reasonable terms such as are within the means of any man. No Fancy Prices will be asked or expected, as it is the desire of the owner to send these animals out as missionaries. Come and look us over.

TERMS:—$10 and under cash; over $10 time will be gived till Nov. 1st, 1886, with approved security, at 10 per cent. interest. 5 per cent. off for all cash.

Among the things suggested for the consideration of the new council is the appointment of a city examiner whose duty will be to examine the condition of all chimnies to ascertain if they have been properly cleaned according to order. This is a very important item in this city.

Miss Veronneau, Mrs. E. E. Bangs' milliner, has returned from Chicago, and in her train the largest stock of millinery goods ever brought to this city. She is fully posted on the requirements of the spring trade and prepared to do all work in her line in the very latest styles of the art. The best part of all this for the benedicts, is that one dollar this spring goes further than two did last spring. Ladies call and verify these sayings.

Rubbers Rubbers.
All styles at 50 cents. C. O. D. clothing house.

Owing to increase in business, C. H. Saake has been obliged to seek new quarters, so it happens that Hack & Gallasch have set the jewelry shop a peg or two to the north and are putting up a fine new building which, when completed will be filled from cellar to garret with fine jewelry of all kinds and Saake will be prepared to receive his friends in good shape. "Nothing succeeds like success" and it is the best evidence of success when a man is obliged to build a big new store to contain himself. Saake will now have more room and he will have a nice, tasty jewelry store.

Cook Stoves.

Fertile Items.

FERTILE, April 8, 1886.

As our late correspondent has turned his back on Fertile, and left us for good, we will have to send in a few items to let the readers of THE JOURNAL know that our village is still progressing.

Business is becoming very lively.

The farmers are preparing for spring work, which will commence soon; some have already commenced dragging.

The weather has been quite cool, but is now moderating.

The streets of Fertile are crowded with teams and our citizens are very busy, each in his own calling.

LeDuc & Kvenvolden are selling machinery this summer and are doing a tip-top business.

C. Carlson & Co. have built an addition to their blacksmith shop and are on the alert to accommodate the farmers.

Otto Kankel rejoices in the arrival of a fine colt. It is said to be a thoroughbred Norman.

Dr. A. Gilmour is going to build an addition to his store. As he has ordered a large stock of drugs, he was obliged to have more room to accommodate them.

Mr. Hennemuth and Mrs. Zaizer were down from Red Lake Falls last week, visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Kankel.

Mr. Kankel's two sons, Charley and Otto, have been quite sick with the croup, but under the skillful treatment of Dr. Gilmour, they are now restored to health.

Our machine company is going to build a machine shop, as their machinery is not under shelter yet.

Owen Nelson had the misfortune to have his jaw bone broke a few days ago. He went to Dr. Stuart, of Ada, to have a tooth extracted, and unfortunately that strong man made a bad job out of it.

It is rumored that G. Carlson and others are about to establish a temperance lodge here. The originators being church members, we deem it their duty to take the lead, and if the organization be rightly conducted, we'll all join.

A. Gilmour and H. Hennemuth took a flying trip to Ada last week, on business matters. They report Ada a lively place.

The strongest drinks obtainable in Fertile now-a-days is a glass of water mixed with vinegar and soda. We have good prospects of becoming a temperance town.

The citizens of Fertile are complaining about not having a skating rink. They think we Fertilizers would make pretty good skaters. A skating rink was nominated, but we will try and work the thing slick, with Andrew Morrick at the head, and vote for a Sunday school.

Mr. and Mrs. Barholtz gave a very pleasant party on the 24th of March. About fifteen couples participated in the festivities of the occasion. The music was furnished by the Fertile orchestra. The supper was a splendid affair to which the company did ample justice. Everybody was in high spirits and a good time was had. O. N.

Only the [illegible] the eyes of a babe
[illegible] upon my knee;
[illegible] know that wondrous gaze
When we meet in eternity.
Angel of death! ye cannot then
My heartstrings rend apart;
I shall hold my boy forever and aye
Close to my yearning heart.

Motherhood! how dearly bought!
We little know the cost,
Until we suffer birth and death,
Until we've loved and lost.

SAVED.

Slowly to and fro a woman paced the Waterloo bridge, London, apparently unmindful that a drizzling rain had set in and that her thin shawl was becoming wet through. After awhile she turned her steps toward the parapet, and leaning over its edge, gazed down into the black depths beneath.

The next instant she stood erect upon the parapet, a shadowy figure seen through the mistiness of the night. In another moment she would have been fluttering like a wounded bird, down to certain death, had not a man's hand held her back from the fatal act, as he exclaimed:

"Fo' God's sake, lass, dinna do't." For a second the woman struggled in his grasp, then, half defiantly, half wearily, she said, as he helped her descend from the parapet: "Well, I suppose you want me to go along to the lock-up?"

"Na, na, lass, I'd on'y like to see ye among friends. Come, he added, laying his hand kindly upon her arm, "you'll be wet through standing here." The woman gazed at the man with a perplexed look, which he returned with a friendly smile, noted her pale face and the hunted, weary expression of her dark eyes as she said, almost humbly:

"I should thank you, perhaps, for saving my life, and yet it were better if you had let me go. Not a living soul is there to mourn my loss, and I might have found rest."

"Na tha' way, lass; but ye look ill an' na fit to be out o' sich a night. If ye dinna moind, perhaps I might be a help to ye, a-seeing yer home."

"Home! I have no home. I have been sick unto death. This morning only was I discharged from the hospital, and such as I are best out of the world."

"The Lord knows best wha' is fo' our good," reverently repeated the man, then, with a slight tinge of color mantling his honest face, he continued: "If ye dinna moind trusting yerself to me I think I can find ye a place fo' the night. Ye see, I'm just newly come fra' the country, on my way to America, an' there's a family as was on the train with me that is bound fo' the same place, an' is stopping at a bit of a lodging over yonder, an' I'm na doubting but Mrs. Bighart would take ye in, fo' she has a most feeling heart, so if yer agreeable to't we'll be goin', as it's a goodish bit further."

For a second the woman hesitated, then with "very well" she moved along at the man's side. On leaving the buss which they had taken at the opposite side of the bridge they proceeded along divers streets. At last the man turned in at a doorway, and with a smile and a nod bade the woman follow him, into a narrow passage lighted by a flickering oil-lamp. Then he paused, saying in his kindly tones:

"Would yer moind biding a bit here till I just sort o' prepares Mrs. Bighart to' yer comin'?" Signifying her willingness, the woman remained standing where he left her, little heeding or caring what was to become of her. As she waited, a look of dull apathy upon her handsome face, the door through which her rescuer had disappeared opened, and a plump, jolly-looking little woman burst into the hallway, exclaiming:

"Oh, there you are! I didn't know you for the minnit. The passage be dark after the light inside. Ye look tired; just come right along in. The children have everything in a muss, but, Lor' bless 'em, I havn't it in me to scold, along of their being so cooped up here, after the country."

"You are very kind," at last answered the young woman, a softened expression gathering in her eyes.

Bidding her guest lay aside her wet bonnet and shawl and seat herself near the stove, worthy Mrs. Bighart bustled about, bent upon preparing the supper. The children, some five in number, admonished by their mother, and, perhaps, a little awed by the grave, silent woman, ceased their play and shyly eyed the stranger from a distance. All at once there was a delightful shout of "Papa!" as a large, jovial-appearing man entered the room, and, catching up the youngest toddler, sat her upon his shoulder. Then the man who had befriended the young woman came in and was immediately hailed by the children as "Jack" as they clambered about him in high glee. As if in a dream, the outcast woman found herself seated at the table of a happy, honest family, who treated her as an honored guest, receiving her unquestioned within their midst, simply because she was friendless and in need. And that night, moved by a strange longing, she had timidly asked to be allowed to kiss the babe that cooed at her from her mother's arms. And kindly Mrs. Bighart, with a pleased smile, had held out the little one to her, saying:

"There, take her, my dear, and kiss her as much as you please." Later in the evening, when the little woman had resumed the charge of her youngest and was bidding her guest good-night, she ejaculated warmly.

"There now, my dear, just you sleep well and to-morrow we'll see if there isn't a way out of your difficulties," and with a hearty good-night kiss, Mrs. Bighart hurried off to attend to her children's wants, while the young woman's face paled and flushed at the unwontoned caress from such lips.

One by one the days of that week slipped by and the woman still remained with the Bigharts. It was the day before the departure for America, all business having been satisfactorily transacted, when Mrs. Bighart, laying her hand kindly upon Mary's shoulder, said:

"Do you know, Mary, I've been thinking that I don't see how I'm to spare you, an' I've talked it over with Tom, an' the long and the short of it is, my dear, if you've a mind to go along with us, I'd be glad to have you. The children they've took to you so, an' you see, out west in them clearings it's a goin' to be a bit lonesome, without a neighbor, barring perhaps three miles. I'm sorry we're not able to offer much wages at first along of the expenses we'll be to a gettin' there, but your bit an sup and an odd pound now an' agin you'll be welcome to."

Like one dazed, Mary stood listening to the kind offer, then, with deep wonderment in her tones, she said:

"You are asking me to share your home, knowing nothing of me? My God! had I but met such women as you in the past!"

* * * * * *

Five years had come and gone since the day when Mary joined her fortunes of her helpful friends and prosperity had dawned for them and her. Tom's and Jack's log cabins were the envy of their less thrifty neighbors. At first Jack had boarded with the Bigharts, but after awhile it occurred to him that he, too, should like a home of his own—a wife to share the good luck that had come to him. And, as the months slipped into years, he learned to know that there was but one woman for him, the woman he had saved from death. While Mary, when it first dawned upon her how dear she had become to this simple, God-fearing man, was seized with an impulse to flee from the shelter of the happy home that for three years had been hers, but her strength failed her. She could not so easily uproot such tightly riven ties. For Jack had become as a part of her very being. It was only for his sake that she thought of going away, because of the sacrifice she deemed it would be putting upon him if he should wed her. Something of this she tried to tell him when he asked her to be his wife, but he would not listen; he was satisfied, he said. Then almost desperately she begged that he would hear her, and shielding her face with her hands she related to him with pitiful pathos the story of her life before his path crossed hers, holding back nothing from the bitter degredation of the past. With tears streaming down her cheeks she implored him not to judge her too harshly. She who had never known a mother's care; never had a home until he came into her life.

Pityingly as he might have soothed a little child, Jack gathered the stricken woman to his arms, saying:

"Mary, that old life is dead an' gone, buried away this five year back; let it rest. Together we will start afresh. If ye love me I ha' na fear fo' the future, lass."

What woman could have resisted such faith? And so there was a quiet little wedding, and Mary became Jack's wife, and went to dwell with him in in the pretty log cabin he had built "agin that day."

For two years not a cloud had come to dim their happiness. Yet sometimes Mary became possessed with a wild fear that it could not last. One day in her husband's absence she saw a man approaching the house. There was something strangely familiar about the saucy, devil-may-care air with which the stranger sauntered along, but not until he stood within a few feet of her did it flash upon her who this man was. A smothered cry escaped her, and convulsively clasping her babe she hastened to enter the house. But the man called out.

"Here, I say, carn't ye give me a bite of sumat? I've had a goodish walk and I'm about dead beat." White as death, she turned and faced him, when, with an oath, he exclaimed, as if thunderstruck:

"Moll! by all that's blue." Then, insolently laying his hand upon her arm, he added: "I'm blamed if I didn't think ye'd kicked the bucket. It's rather overpowerin' to have ye turn up here in this unexpected fashion. You might offer me a chair, I'm thinkin', after our long separation." Mechanically Mary stepped aside and let the man pass into the house; there, flinging himself upon a seat and chuckling amusedly, he continued:

"Yer seem to be pretty well fixed; but yer always was a lucky devil. I suppose you've got suthin' to eat in the house?"

Placing some eatables before the man, Mary at last spoke, the words seeming to come with an effort, as she said:

"Eat what you will, then go. My husband will be home shortly and he must not find you here."

"Ho, ho! is that the way the wind lays?" ejaculated the man, with a wink.

"The day has gone by for me to fear your words, Jim. I have taken up with a different life. With you and the past I have done."

"Not so fast, my fine beauty. Yer didn't live with me for seven years for nothin', an' d—n me if I don't claim yer as my wife and then what 'ull become of yer—different life, I like to know? If I could just have a talk with that husband of yourn I'd fix yer different life fur yer."

A wail of dispair issued from Mary's white lips as a stalwart figure darkened the doorway, whilst her husband's voice said quietly:

"Yo would speak with Jack Sturdy, stranger, but first let me say, tha' between me an' my wife lie no secrets, an' the man tha' says aught agin her has to answer fo' it to me. Out here the men are not given to many words, an' I've learned the way of the country. With us it is a word an, a blow, but I ha' known the blow to come fust." Then pointing sternly to the door he added: "It is three miles to the next settlement. If ye would reach theer before dark ye ha' best be goin'!"

Perhaps it was Jack's calm even tones, or an undefinable sense of power that superior minds oftentimes exercise over inferior ones, that stayed the blustering answer upon the man's lips and made him slink out of the house like a cur, turning, however, at the gate to shake his fist defiantly.

"Theer, theer, lass," soothed Jack as his wife clung sobbing about his neck, "ye ha' na call to fret. He'll na trouble ye agin, I'm a-thinkin'!"

"But, oh, Jack, you'll not love me the less?" came desparingly from Mary.

"Love ye the less, lass. Why, I couldn't do it if I would, an' wherefo', ye are a good, true woman an' my wife."

A few days afterward the dead body of a man was found in a gully. The theory was that, having drank to freely (an empty leather flask was found in his pocket), he had made a misstep and percipitated himself to his death. The body was identified as that of a stranger who had stopped at a wayside house the night before the accident. There was nothing upon his person to tell from whence he came or who he was. They buried him, marking his grave by a rude wooden cross. And when Jack told Mary concerning Jim's death, for he had recognized the man, he added gently:

"Let the past die with him, Mary, lass. Please God the future shall ha' o'ny good fo' ye on' the little 'un," and honest-hearted Jack lovingly clasped his two treasures within his arms.

How Actors "Make Up" Faces.

Making up the face, as it is called, is an art in itself; by it the old can be made to look young or at least younger, and the young old. By these arts the famous Dejazet, when 80 years old, could play successfully a young page. Formerly a burnt cork, a piece of chalk, and a pot of rouge was all that was necessary; now your well graced actor has his "make up" box, or dressing case, containing stores of violet powder, fuller's earth, chrome yellow, blue, crayons, umber, cosmetic, black enamel, "joining paste," with other unpleasant things. All have their purpose. Are you the hunted villain skulking from justice in the woods you must rub your cheeks and chin thoroughly with thick blue powder, to leave the idea that you have not been able to shave for a week. Or should you be an aged crone or hag, a few blue streaks on the arms or hands suggest the well marked veins of old age. To be particularly youthful and lover-like you must whiten your face thoroughly, rouge well up the eyelids, and then draw a little brown streak under the eyes, which lends brilliancy. An old man has a very disagreeable task before him. He must rub his cheeks and chin well with fuller's earth; then with a camel's hair brush proceed to make three dark streaks between the eyes, with long lines from the nostrils to the corners of the mouth, then get on what is oddly called his "white bald wig," the bald portion of which is fixed to the forehead by "joining paste." A striking additional effect is produced by giving the effect of teeth being wanted, which at first sight seems an almost impossible thing to do. But in your "make-up" you find your black enamel, with which you paint over a couple of teeth; in a few minutes it sets and hardens, and a most satisfactory and disagreeable evidence of old age is the result. A mode of attaching whiskers was the old-fashioned one of hooking them on to the ears. But there is an article called "crape hair," which is gummed on to the cheeks, and when dry can be trimmed and combed like real whiskers. As regards the nose, there is an elegant way of treatment, namely, by fitting on a well modeled papier mache one; but there is the more rough-and-ready mode of dealing with it. We read in one of the text books on the subject the following grave directions: "In some low comedy characters, such as Bardolph, &c., it is necessary to alter the shape of the nose in order to give it that bloated, blotchy appearance so noticeable in drunkards. You must first gum on to the end of the nose a piece of wool, press it down to the shape and size required, and then powder it well with rouge to match the rest of the nose and cheeks. The cheeks may also be enlarged in the same way. The other, and perhaps the better way, is to take a little powder, mix it with water, and work it into dough; fix it to the nose with spirit gum, mold it to the shape and size required, and then powder it with rouge to match the cheeks, &c. Blotches, warts, and pimples may be made by sticking on small pieces of wool and coloring them either brown or red." We may thus fancy our unhappy actor complete, his woolen nose stuck on with gum, his eyebrows and whiskers well glued to him, his black enameled teeth, his cheeks plastered with rouge, white and umber, his "bald wig" fastened to his forehead with "joining paste," and we may wonder, indeed, how he can find spirit or even ease to utter his words!—The Cornhill Magazine.

A Sad Sight.

It is a sad sight says a writer in the San Francisco Chronicle, to watch the gradual decay of love, the development of familiarity and selfishness between a newly married couple. I see them sometimes, from the country evidently, at a restaurant here. I like to watch them and speculate on the subject. They come in together when they first arrive, full of bliss and affection and tenderness and other cuticular characteristics of human nature. He is most delicate and attentive. He takes her cloak off and hangs it up. He sets the chair for her and hovers o'er her until she has fairly settled herself in it. He takes up the bill of fare and divides the hungry eyes between the sparkling face opposite and the monotonous, inartistic, and singularly appetite-destroying document. Then he suggests everything to her, and she accepts everything, and the waiter does not know what to bring them. I like to watch the waiter's patient, half-amused smile while he gazes sideways down upon them. Then he goes and gets what he thinks they ordered, and they never notice that he has not brought them what they wanted. They don't know what they want anyhow. And then he orders champagne. You can see her faint protest. It does look extravagant. But you can tell in the distance he says:

"My darling ducky, we've come to town to have a good time; hang the expense."

The second evening the merest trifle of a tamer proceeding crops up, and there is less enthusiasm and less affection. But there is still champagne, and just a little fuss. The third night sense is beginning to assume its sway. His finances are beginning to suffer. The theatres and champagne are beginning to tell on his purse, and he accepts her very faint protest and orders claret. The fourth evening she takes off her own cloak and hangs it up, and she arranges her own chair, and he takes care of himself deliberately. A kind of weariness hangs over the table, a bored look passes between them, and he tells the waiter boldly to bring him a bottle of beer. Ah, me! Loves young dream! The sweetness that cloys, the fairness that becomes familiar, the fading fires of bliss that has consumed itself all too soon! The fifth night they do not come. They have gone back to the rural districts, where the sharp-eyed editor of the local paper interviews them, and announces in a double-headed editorial that Mr. and Mrs. Jones have returned from their wedding tour to San Francisco.

POSTMASTER GENERAL VILAS' HOME.

Postmaster General Vilas hails from Madison, Wis., and that extremely pretty city is very proud of her handsome and eloquent cabinet officer, who, at the time he was chosen by President Cleveland as one of his advisers, represented her in the Wisconsin legislature. Madison is also proud because she is the State Capital and possesses a very imposing Capitol building standing in a lovely park. Then Madison may also be proud of Wisconsin University, with its hundreds of students and able faculty; of the Soldiers' Orphans' Home, of the State Lunatic Asylum buildings, and of the many industries which go to make up the prosperity of the thriving little capital. All these institutions have grown up since 1836, at which time Madison was in the wilderness. Pushing and intelligent citizens have made her what she is, and it is pleasant to observe that Madison still possesses a very large proportion of clear-headed men and women, who appreciate a good thing when they see it and are glad to make its merits known.

One of this class of citizens is L. A. Rogers, the baggage-master of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad, who is well known to all Madisonians and by a large part of the traveling public. Mr. Rogers has this to say of how he was cured of a long-standing complaint:

"I suffered with rhumatism for some time, so that it was with great pain that I could move around at all, and I also spent many sleepless nights. I am glad to say that after using two bottles of Athlophoros I am entirely free from pain. No one need suffer from rheumatism if they will give it a fair trial."

George W. Huntly, a dealer in groceries at No. 66 Pinckney street, and a leading merchant and old resident, commends the medicine as follows:

"I have used Athlophoros for rheumatism and can most cheerfully say with the most satisfactory results."

"Mary I. Whiting, of No. 810 University avenue, who has lived in Madison for thirty years and is known and respected by every one, says:

"I have been a victim of severe rheumatism for the past three years, and having tried almost every remedy known without any avail, I was much discouraged. Last winter I was afflicted much worse than ever and was induced to try Athlophoros. I am glad to state that I am now free from pain and I pronounce the medicine a Godsend for the afflicted."

To those words of commendation may be added those of Mr. T. R. Lutzow, a well known citizen who says of Athlophoros:

"My wife was seriously afflicted with rheumatism, principally in her arms. She has now used two bottles of Athlophoros and is well and free from pain. I can cheerfully recommend the remedy to my friends and the public as being all that it claims to be."

William Sommers, foreman for B. F. McMillan & Bro., of McMillan, Wis., says that seven bottles of Athlophoros relieved him entirely of rheumatism of five years standing, which was so acute at times as to compel him to give up work. Three bottles entirely cured his brother-in-law, Louis Zimmering, whom rheumatism had compelled to give up his place as edger in a sawmill. He now fills his old position without the least inconvenience.

If you cannot get Athlophoros of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as directed, ATHLOPHOROS Co., 112 Wall Street, New York.

Herr von Puttkamer, Prussian minister of the interior, in the reichstag made a personal appeal on behalf of Emperor William for a continuance of the anti-socialist law. He exclimed: In the emperor's name and by the emporer's order, I assure you that his majesty would regret profoundly and grieve deeply if the prolongation of the anti-socialist law is refused. The emperor would shed his blood in order to maintain the law. The socialist troubles in Belgium threatened the peace of Europe. It behooved Germany to devise measures to prevent such disorders. Had Belgium possessed laws forbidding the publication of Socialists pamphlets and the holding of Socialist meetings, the recent troubles would probably have been averted. The Belgians were Catholics, but the church had proved unequal to coping with one outbreak of wild passion. The Belgian bourgeoise constantly and wilfully sought to create serious disorders, and the government itself provoked trouble. Herr Bebel called the speaker to order, whereupon the speaker denounced Bebel and Herr Most as dangerous agitators.

Mrs. Van Buren and two daughters of Fishkill, N. Y., daughter-in-law and grand-daughter of President Van Buren, called at the treasury department to see the jewels, etc., stored in one of the vaults, which are caid to have been presented to President Van Buren. Treasurer Jordan broke the seals of the package. It contained a pint bottle of attar of roses, a bottle of pearls, some very large; a bottle of diamonds, about forty; a gold plate, a gold ornament, a box of small diamonds and pearls and two pieces of gold. The ladies made no claim, but could not refrain from expressing a wish for them. They could only obtain the property by act of congress.

The harmful and fatal results attending the use of cough mixtures containing morphia, opium and other poisons, are daily becoming more frequent. It is for this reason that Red Star Cough Cure has received the unqualified endorsement of physicians, and Boards of Health everywhere, as a purely vegetable compound, entirely free from all narcotics. Price, twenty-five cents.

The News demands of the government an explanation of the statement printed in New York that British contractors and officials are interested financially in the construction of the new vessels to be built for the American navy. The News bases its demand upon an editorial in the N. Y. Nautical Gazette March 6. This stated that the new American cruisers are to be designed by a syndicate of whom Sir Nathan C. Barnaby, ex-chief contractor of the British navy; Mr. White the present chief contractor and the firm of Sir William Armstrong & Co. are principal members. The article warns the United States against entrusting this work to a syndicate controlled by Englishmen. Mr. White said that the whole story was a lie so far as he was concerned. Sir William Armstrong makes a similar denial.

Frederick A. Lucas, Osteologist, U. S. National Museum of Washington, D. C., writes that "Le Page's Glue has been used in the National Museum reparing various skeletons, from a whale to a mouse, and, for this, as for other purposes, is most admirable." If any man knows which is the best, Mr. Lucas should be the man.

Gen. Forsythe, commanding officer at Fort Huachaca who arrived at Tombstone, Arizona, made known the startling facts that at the first interview which Gen. Crook had with the hostiles, Geronimo had a band of his men with rifles ready to fire upon all the white men, including Crook, at a given signal. Geronimo's failure to keep his promise of surrender at Fort Bowie is ascribed to the fact that having so much blood to answer, he could expect no clemency. The hostiles had 200 rounds of ammunition each. Gen. Forsythe said it was impossible to fathom Geronimo's intentions, and that it is an open question whether he will go south to join Mangus or remain to harass the frontier. This is the third time Geronimo has proved faithless.

London Cable: The Belgian strike is among the most interesting questions of the hour, from a purely industrial standpoint, as well as from the display of socialism and the audacity of convicted criminals which it has occasioned. It is calculated that the wanton destruction of factories by the criminal classes engaged in the riots have thrown out of employment fully 5,000 factory hands, for the most part honest people who have no alliance with the rioters. The newspapers both of London and the continent declare that this lawless outrage on the industrial property of the kingdom will be the ruin of Belgian trade, and place the working classes in a distressing condition. No good at all, and much harm to decent people, will be the net result of the disturbance.

Coming Home to Die.

At a period of life when budding womanhood requires all her strength to meet the demands nature makes upon it, many a young woman returns home from the severe mental strain of school with a broken-down constitution, and her functions disarranged, to go to an early grave. If she had been wisely counseled and given the benefit of Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" her bodily development might have kept pace with her mental growth, and health and beauty would not have given way to decline and death.

[First publication March 11th, 1886.]

WHEREAS, on the 24th day of June 1885, at the City of Crookston, of Polk County, Minnesota, one P. J. Lachapelle and one Andrew Absalomson the said P. J. Lachapelle being then and there the owner, as mortgagee, by virtue of a chattel mortgage, and the said Andrew Absalomson being in legal possession of a certain hack, did request Euclid and Angus Munn, co-partners under the firm name of Munn Bro's, to make and perform certain repairs on said hack. And whereas, the said Munn Bro's pursuant to said request did do, make and perform repairs on said hack of the just and reasonable worth and value of fifty dollars, and the said Munn Bro's claim a lien on said hack to the amount of said repairs and still hold and retain possession of said hack since the making of said repairs. And whereas, more than three months have elapsed since the making of said repairs upon said hack and the said $50 has not been paid or any part thereof, although the sum has been heretofore duly demanded of the said P. J. Lachapelle and the said Andrew Absalomson. Now therefore, notice is hereby given that pursuant to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, the said Munn Bro's, will, on the 5th day of April, 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the front door of Munn Bro's Carriage Works, on the corner of Third Street and Broadway, in said City of Crookston, expose said hack for sale, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy the said lien, and the costs of such sale.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, —ss. In Probate Court.

On reading and filing the petition of Andreas E. Riseland, of Polk County, representing, among other things, that Erik E. Riseland late of Polk County, Minnesota, on the second day of March, A. D. 1886, at Garfield town in said county, died intestate, and being a resident of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is a half brother of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Iver J. Ingebrigtson, granted.

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before the Judge of this Court, on Monday, the 26th day of April A. D. 1886, at 2 o'clock p. m., at Crookston in said county.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, Minn., in said county.

By the Court,
ROBERT J. MONTAGUE,

Mortgage Sale.

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Wenzel E. Newes, and Augusta M. Newes, his wife, mortgagors, to the Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, a corporation duly organized and acting under the laws of the State of Minnesota, mortgagee, which mortgage bears date the 9th day of November A. D. 1883, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of January A. D. 1884, at 11:20 o'clock a. m., in book "L" of mortgage deeds on pages 182, 183 and 184, and whereas said mortgage was executed to secure the payment of the sum of one thousand dollars with interest, from date on the sum of four hundred and fifty dollars, at the rate of ten per cent per annum, and also to secure the sum of five dollars per month as and for the monthly contribution on five shares of the capital stock of said Association then owned by the said Wenzel E. Newes, said interest and said dues being payable on the first Saturday of each and every month after the date of said mortgage according to the conditions of a certain bond for the sum of two thousand dollars executed and delivered by the said Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, and bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain other and second mortgage executed and delivered by the aforesaid Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes, his wife, to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association of Crookston, which mortgage bears date the 17th day of November A. D. 1884, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota on the 17th day of November A. D. 1884 at 5:45 o'clock p. m. in book "S" of mortgage deeds, on pages 468, 469 and 470, and whereas said second mortgage was executed to secure the payment of the sum of one thousand dollars with interest from date on the sum of three hundred and fifty dollars at the rate of ten per cent per annum and also to secure the sum of five dollars per month as and for the monthly contribution on five shares of the capital stock of said Association then owned by the said Wenzel E. Newes, said interest and said dues being payable on the first Saturday of each and every month after the date of said second mortgage according to the conditions of a certain bond for the sum of two thousand dollars executed and delivered by the said Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes, to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston and bearing even date of November 15th A. D. 1884, and said second mortgage being upon the same real estate as the mortgage first above mentioned.

And whereas it is provided in each of said mortgages herein described, that in case any default should be made in the payment of the said principal sums when due or interest, or any part thereof for the space of six months after the same shall have become due, or in case said shares should be sold for the non payment of dues, then and in such case the whole principal debt should immediately thereupon become due, and whereas default has been made in the payment of said interest and of said monthly dues secured by both of said mortgages for more than six months whereby according to the terms of said mortgages the whole principal debt has become due, and said ten shares of stock have been duly forfeited and sold for non payment of dues and whereas no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise for the recovery of said debt or any part thereof.

And whereas, there is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice, the sum of nine hundred forty-eight and 65-100 dollars on said first mortgage and the sum of eleven hundred twenty-three and 45-100 dollars on said second mortgage, making in the aggregate the sum of two thousand seventy-one and 5[illegible]-100 dollars now due.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that under and by virtue of the powers of sale in said mortgages contained, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the real estate and premises mentioned in each of said mortgages which are situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and described as follows to-wit: Lot number thirteen (13.) in block number two (2.) of L. Fletcher's Addition to Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County, State of Minnesota, will be sold by the Sheriff of said County of Polk, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, on Saturday the first day of May A. D. 1886, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on the debt secured by both of said mortgages, together with the sum of fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

MORTGAGE SALE.

BE IT KNOWN, THAT ON THE thirteenth day of January one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, Joseph Boiselle, and Cilo Boiselle, his wife, made, executed and delivered unto The Farmers' and Mechanics' Savings Bank of Minneapolis, their certain mortgage; That said mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, State of Minnesota, on the thirteenth day of January A. D. 1881, at three o'clock in the afternoon, in book "D" of mortgages, on pages forty-two, forty-three and forty-four, that said mortgage conveyed the hereinafter described premises to secure the payment of three hundred ($300.00-100) dollars, in five years from its date, and the interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum, per annum, payable semi-annually. That default has been made in the payment of said principal sum, and of interest thereon. That there is hereby claimed to be due on said mortgage debt the sum of three hundred and thirty six ($336.) dollars, that no action, or proceeding, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, that said mortgaged premises are situate in Polk County, Minnesota, and are described as follows, viz: The northeast quarter (ne¼,) of Section, thirty-four (34,) Township one hundred and fifty-two, (152,) Range forty-six (46,) containing one hundred and sixty acres, more or less, according to United States Government survey.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by reason of said default in the conditions of said mortgage, and by virtue of the power of sale therein contained, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of said described mortgaged premises, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the eighth day of May A. D. 1886, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and twenty-five dollars, attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption as provided by law.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Andreas E. Bokke, mortgagor, to Mattie B. Eaton, mortgagee, dated the 5th day of March A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-three, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 5th day of March A. D. 1883, at 2:15 o'clock p. m., in book "K" of mortgages, on pages 252 to 254, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the sum of four hundred and ninety-three and 65-100 dollars ($493.65) and forty-two and 70-100 ($42.70) dollars, paid by said mortgagee on account of taxes upon the mortgaged premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and under the power of sale in said mortgage contained, the said mortgagee elects to declare and claims that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid is due and payable.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy duly appointed on Tuesday the 18th day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six at 9 o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter (se¼) Section nine (9) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-four (44,) containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less, according to Government survey thereof.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of two hundred seven and 55-100 dollars, ($207.55-100,) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ole Helgesen, of Polk County, Minnesota, to Loren Fletcher and Charles M. Loring, partners as L. Fletcher & Co., of Minneapolis, County of Hennepin and State of Minnesota, bearing date the twentieth day of June A. D. 1878, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 2d day of July A. D. 1878, at 11 o'clock a. m. in book "B" of mortgages, on page 63, and in addition thereto the further sum of eighteen and 10-100 dollars taxes, duly assessed and levied against the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, for the years 1883, 1884 and 1885, paid by said mortgagees, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lot four (4,) in Section twenty (20,) in township one hundred and fifty (150,) of Range forty-nine (49,) containing thirty and 75-100 (30-75-100) acres according to the Government survey, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 24th day of April A. D. 1886, at two o'clock p. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes on said premises and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

MORTGAGE [illegible]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE [illegible] conditions of a certain mortgage [illegible] and delivered by Henry Tiedemann and [illegible] Tiedemann, mortgagors, to the Beloit [illegible] Bank, mortgagee, dated the [illegible] day [illegible] A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 1st day of May A. D. 1882, at 10 o'clock a. m., in book "[illegible]" of mortgages, on pages [illegible] and 223, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the sum of seven hundred and sixty-four and 36-100 dollars ($764.36-100,) and twenty-six and 82-100 dollars, ($26.82-100) paid for taxes by said mortgagee, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and under the power of sale in said mortgage contained, the said mortgagee elects to declare and claims that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid is due and payable.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy duly appointed on Saturday the first day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and Ten dollars attorney's fees, stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section two (2,) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-eight (48) west, containing one hundred and forty-six and 44-100 acres (146 44-100.)

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Melvin Winslow, mortgagor, to Mary D. Fuller, mortgagee, dated the 22d day of February A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-one and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 22d day of February A. D. 1881, at 2:15 o'clock p. m., in book "D" of mortgages, on pages 159, 160 and 161 on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the sum of six hundred and twenty-four ($624) dollars and forty-one and 31-100 ($41.31) dollars, paid for taxes, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and under the power of sale in said mortgage contained, the said mortgagee elects to declare and claims that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid is due and payable.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county, or by his deputy duly appointed on Saturday the first day of May, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, the sums paid by said mortgagee for taxes and interest thereon, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section thirty-four (34,) Township one hundred and fifty-one (151) north, of Range forty-seven (47) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, more or less, according to the U. S. Government survey thereof.

Dated this 15th day of February 1886.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Charles W. Brown and Fanny A. his wife, mortgagors, to Colonial and United States Mortgage Company, (Limited) mortgagee, dated the 31st day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 3d day of February, A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "G" of mortgages, on pages 132, and 133, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of five hundred and sixty dollars. ($560) and the further sum of $11.24 paid for taxes upon the mortgaged premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy, on Friday, the 16th day of April, A. D. 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure and provided by law.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section number twelve (12) in Township number one hundred and fifty-four. (154) in Range number forty-seven (47) west of the fifth principal meridian, containing 160 acres.

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of four hundred and ten and 75-100 ($410.75) dollars, besides the further sum of $71.77 paid for taxes upon the mortgaged premises, which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Henry J. Kertson an unmarried man, mortgagor, to Colonial and United States Mortgage Company, (Limited,) mortgagee, bearing date the 20th day of September A. D. 1882, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 21st day of September A. D. 1882, at 9:45 o'clock a. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 193, 194, 195, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section number six (6,) in Township number one hundred and forty-nine (149,) in Range number forty-five (45,) west of the 5th principal meridian containing 160 acres, in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and $25 dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 16th day of April A. D. 1886, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

The number of miles of railroad in the United States December 31, 1885, was in round numbers 130,000.

Judge Dyer, of the United States district court, in a suit to recover $10,000 insurance on the life of a man who committed suicide while insane, insured in the Accident Insurance company of North America against injuries effected by "external, accidental, or violent means," suicide being especially excepted, decides against the company, holding that in this case the act of suicide was no more the man's act in the sense of the law than if he had been impelled by an irresistable physical power.

The prevailing opinion that the public debt of England is larger than the national debt of any other country is an erroneous one. At the end of the year 1885 the English debt was £740,000,090 (in round numbers). In 1883 the national debt of France, reckoned in English money, was £942,000,000, and is now about £1,200,000,000. In spite of the endeavors of the present French ministry to check the colonial "jingo" policy, the public debt is still increasing.

An English judge has just decided that a divorce obtained in the United States from the bonds of a marriage performed in England is invalid in the latter country. This will cut off a large and steadily growing business in some of the States, many dissatisfied husbands and wives in Great Britain having sought relief at the hands of courts. The days of cheap and easy divorce are numbered, as the tendency everywhere is to render the laws governing the subject of matrimony more stringent.

Carroll D. Wright, commissioner of the National Bureau of Labor has made his first annual report to the secretary of interior. He treats of the business situation with a great deal of detail, and arrives at the conclusion that the present depression in business, so long continued, has arisen through many and diverse causes, which no individual or corporation could avert or much modify. Commissioner Wright is clearly of the opinion that the time has come to call a halt in encouraging indiscriminate immigration; and he advises greater caution in granting lands to corporations, meaning public lands in large blocks; he favors "industrial copartnership," but this only by the way, without entering into detail.

It is estimated that congress has expended thus far, during the session, upon the funerals of its deceased members $20,000 and for printing eulogies some $28,000 more. In addition, the adjournments out of respect, and the time devoted to eulogies have occasioned a loss of eight days from the regular business of the nation. As it costs $16,000 a day to pay expenses of congress, $128,000 more has been spent, making a grand total of $156,000. The expenditure thus involved has become a matter of public concern, and the sentiment is rapidly increasing that the waste must be stopped. A more economical observance of the deaths of members of congress will imply no loss of respect for their memories, but it will inaugurate a needed reform.

The agricultural statistics of Great Britain for 1885, which have recently been issued, show a very serious decrease from the yield of 1874 in some of the most important food products. The decrease in wheat is estimated at 2,628,211 bushels, in peas 1,330,558 bushels, in beans 2,610,783 bushels, in potatoes 544,690 tons, in turnips 6,562,497 tons, and mangold 87,869 tons, in England. In Ireland on the other hand, there has been an increase over 1884 amounting to 197,016 bushels of wheat, 135,888 tons of potatoes, 43,850 tons of turnips, and 60,253 tons of mangold. Both England and Ireland have shown an increase in the production of barley, amounting to 5,338,519 bushels in the former country and 463,908 in the latter. From barley is made malt and from malt, ale, so that, though food may be somewhat scarcer and consequently dearer, there need be no dread of a lack of drink.

A very remarkable statement is made concerning the effects of the homœopathic treatment in the cholera epidemic at Naples last year. The writer, Dr. Tomaso Cigliano, says that he and his three colleagues, Drs. Rubini, Muccu and Orioli, employed a preparation of camphora as a preventive, and that in about 2,000 families where it was used not a single case of cholera occurred. They did not have a chance to test it in the hospitals, being denied access to them, but of the eighty patients whom they did treat after the disease had manifested itself, only three died. The treatment adopted with such wonderful success by those homœopathic physicians consists in administering four or five drops of Rubini's solution of camphora upon a lump of sugar every hour, with a slight increase in the quantity of the dose, and a doubled frequency in very serious cases. For this treatment a recovery of 99 per cent. is claimed.

Sensational Prayer in Congress.

The prayer of the Chaplain of the National House of Representatives was as follows: Give ear, Oh God of Jacob, and awaken us to see the danger which threatens the civilized world, a revolution more tremendous than any of which history tells, in which the scenes of the reign of terror may be enacted in every capital of Europe and America. For long the few have mastered the many, because they understood the open secret—the tools to them that can use them. But now the many have learned the secret of organization, drill and dynamite. Rouse the rich of the world to understand that the time has come for grinding selfish monopoly to cease, that corporations may get souls in them with justice, honor, confidence and human kindness. Teach the rich men of the country that great fortunes are lent them by thee for other purposes than to build and decorate palaces, to found private collections of art, to stock wine cellars, to keep racing studs and yachts and find better company than hostlers, grooms and jockeys, poolsellers and bookmakers. Teach them, oh, God, that it is thee who has given them power to get these fortunes; that it is to prove them, to know what is in their hearts, whether they will keep thy commandments or no, and that these commandments are thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart, and thy neighbor as thyself; that if the rich men of our land keep these commandments the poor will follow the example, and we, at least, will be saved from the days of tribulation that are fast coming on all the world. Help us, oh, God, and save us.

Mr. Grosvenor asked unanimous consent that the prayer be printed in the Record.

Mr. James objected, remarking, sotto voce to the gentleman who asked him to withdraw his objection, that it was made because the prayer was an incendiary speech.

End of the Southwestern Strike.

The strike on the Texas Pacific and the Missouri railways has been settled, and 12,000 men who have been idle in consequence of the strike have returned to work. The strained relations which seemed to exist between the officers of the Missouri Pacific and the general executive board of the Knights of Labor were only strained in appearance. The basis of settlement is the proposition of the Knights to submit the whole trouble to a committee of arbitration, consisting of three selected by the Knights and three by the company, another to be appointed by those six. The following dispatch from Jay Gould is published:

President's Office, Missouri Pacific Railroad, March 28.—T. V. Powderly, General Master Workman—Dear Sir: Replying to your letter of the 27th inst., I write to-day that I will, to-morrow morning, send the following telegraphic instructions to Mr. Hoxie, general manager of the Missouri Pacific railroad at St. Louis. "In resuming the movement of trains on the Missouri Pacific and in the employing of laborers in the several departments of this company, give preference to our late employes, whether they are Knights of Labor or not, except that you will not employ any person who has injured the company's property during the late strike. Nor will we discharge any person who has taken service with the company during said strike. We see no objection to arbitrating any difference between the employes and the company, past or future." Hoping the above will be satisfactory, I remain, very truly yours,

JAY GOULD, President.

The executive board also sent out the following:

To the Knights of Labor now on strike in the Southwest, President Jay Gould has consented to our proposition for arbitration, and so telegraphs Vice President Hoxie. Pursuant to telegraphic instructions sent to the chairman executive board district, you are directed to resume work at once. Per order executive board.

George L. Murr returned to Billings, Mont., from a trip to the new oil fields in the Bingham basin, Wyo., bringing with him a sample of the oil. It is a black lubricating oil, and an analysis of it by Dr. Kent, of the New York board of health, shows it to contain 40 per cent. of mineral sperm oil, 27 per cent. kerosene, with small percentages of gasolene, benzine and naphtha. Its illuminating power is of a high order.

Prince Bismarck appeared in the German reichstag one day recently. Referring to criticisms on his recent speech attacking the opposition for combatting the crown's policy in Posen, in which he was accused of meditating a coup d' etat, he reaffirmed that he was not. Warned the reichstag of what might be its fate if it stood in the way of Germany's progress. The bundestag, he reminded his hearers, was founded on treaties and laws, yet Germany was contented to see it fall, and the reichstag might possibly have a similar end if it refused to fulfill its duties to the empire.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

SENATE.—The Morrow (house) Chinese bill was introduced, with an amendment changing from twenty to ten years the period during which the entrance of Chinese laborers shall be prohibited. The Logan bill to increase the army was debated.

In executive session the senate confirmed a large number of postmasters and collectors of internal revenue whose nominations had been reported favorably. Among the collectors confirmed were S. J. Tilden, Jr., of New York and all the collectors in New Jersey, Ohio, Kentucky, Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa. All of the Pennsylvania collectors were confirmed except F. Gerker of the Philadelphia district, whose nomination is held upon some charges now under investigation by the finance committee. The nomination of Collector Spear of the Vermont district was also confirmed without objection.

The only nomination rejected was that of the postmaster at St. Albans, whose unfitness for office was recognized by all the members of the committee.

There were several rather positive noes on the Democratic side, but a roll call was not asked for. The following nominations were also confirmed:

William L. Alden, New York, consul general at Rome; Charles T. Russell, Connecticut, consul at Liverpool, vice Stephen Packard, suspended; Samuel T. Cain, associate justice of Wyoming Territory.

HOUSE.—Bills and resolutions were introduced for the investigation of the pending labor troubles, and to create a labor commission and boards of arbitration; enabling the people of Dakota to form a constitution; to establish the territory of North Dakota; to pension all honorably discharged Union soldiers or sailors who served during the late rebellion and to furnish artificial limbs to confederate soldiers and sailors; an educational bill identical with the Blair measure; appropriating $147,748 to pay the Chinese government in consideration of the Rock Springs (Wyo.) massacre of Chinese.

SENATE.—Much of the day was consumed in a debate on the Logan bill to increase the efficiency of the army, and a somewhat acrimonious controversy occurred between Messrs. Logan and Teller, having rise in the supposed presidential aspirations of the former. Mr. Plat spoke in favor of the bill to admit Washington Territory as a state. Mr. Voorhees introduced a new bill for the admission of Montana.

Senator Cullom introduced a bill appropriating $500,000 for the erection of a monument to Abraham Lincoln in this city.

HOUSE.—Mr. Guenther of Wisconsin, rising to a question of privilege, denied the charge that he had defended Postmaster General Vilas on the floor of the house in pursuance of an agreement whereby he (Mr. Guenther) had been appointed a member of the postoffice committee. The postoffice appropriation bill was debated, the discussion being confined to the refusal of the postmaster general to expend the $400,000 appropriated to compensate American vessels for carrying foreign mails.

SENATE.—Mr. Coke offered a resolution requesting the president to call the attention of the Mexican government to the difficulties incident to the reclamation of live stock crossing the Mexican frontier line with a view to the mutual agreement of the governments of Mexico and the United States that may facilitate such reclamation. Referred. The army bill was then placed before the senate, and a long debate ensued of no special interest. In executive session—among the nominations confirmed were the following:

Arthur D. Bissell, collector of customs, district of Buffalo Creek, N. Y. Brig. Gen. O. O. Howard, major general, vice Pope, retired. Consuls: William C. Emmell, New York, at Smyrna; Alex H. Shipley at Auckland and H. C. Crouch, at Milan.

The following nominations were confirmed: Allen R. Bushnell, United States attorney, Western district of Wisconsin Spuille Braden of Montana, assayer at Helena. Postmasters: T. H. Langley, Algona, Iowa; J. L. Etsel, Clear Lake, Iowa; W. B. Gillespie, Thayer, Iowa; R. J. Harrison, Toledo, Iowa; Peter Roscoe, Wadena, Minn.; D. McLaughlin, Waseca, Minn.

The senate rejected the nomination of John C. Wise as postmaster at Mankato, Minn. He was reported adversely by the committee on postoffices and post roads.

G. W. Bell, nominated as postmaster at Webster City, Iowa, was also rejected. He was appointed to succeed C. W. Hunter.

HOUSE.—The committee on labor reported a bill to settle railroad strikes by arbitration. The measure was debated at great length. The river and harbor appropriation bill was reported.

SENATE.—The bill appropriating $500,000 for the erection of a monument to Abraham Lincoln passed.

Mr. Platt consented that his Washington Territory bill might be informally laid aside in order to finish the army bill next week, but on condition that the Washington bill should not lose its right of way. The latter bill was laid before the senate.

Mr. Dolph of Oregon continued his remarks in favor of the admission of the territory, and said that, if admitted, it would soon become one of the most important states of the republic. Mr. Dolph spoke strongly in favor of woman suffrage, which he said had gained a foothold in the territory, as women there were allowed to vote. He concluded:

Should this bill pass we shall witness the spectacle of a state government founded in accordance with the principles of equality, and have a state at last with a truly Republican form of government.

The senate has passed a bill providing: —The charge of desertion now standing on the war department record against any soldier who served in the late war, by reason of having enlisted without having first received a discharge from the regiment in which he had previously settled, shall be removed in all cases where it is shown that such re-enlistment was not made for the purpose of receiving bounty or other gratuities the soldier would not have been entitled to had he remained under his original term of enlistment. The bill is not to apply to any soldiers who left their command without proper authority while the same was in the presence of the enemy, or who was at the time of the desertion under arrest for charges.

HOUSE.—The House discussed, without action, the labor arbitration bill. Mr. Kelley of Mo., said: By his remarks yesterday he did not mean that the gentlemen on the committee on labor had deliberately perpetrated a trick and a fraud. He knew that gentlemen who could submit this bill to the workingmen of the country as a provision for the speedy settlement of troubles between employers and employes were quite too innocent to deliberately attempt a fraud or a trick. [Laughter.] Mr. Powderly had done more to advance the principle of arbitration, than all the frothy eloquence that he (Mr. Kelley) and his associates had uttered yesterday and to-day. Mr. Powderly's paper had been read and considered by the heads of corporations, and they had said: "If this is the spirit of workingmen, we must regard it." He (Mr. Kelley) had seen so many frauds and tricks perpetrated on workingmen that he had hastily used the words for which he now apologized to the members of the committee on labor.

The house voted to dispense with private business and consider the labor arbitration bill. Four sections of the measure were adopted, acompanied by a large number of speeches. The most notable utterance was that of Mr. Lawler of Illinois when he said that if Jay Gould could be hanged to a lamp post in New York it would be a blessing to the United States. The first and second sections of the labor arbitration bill, as agreed upon by the house, provide for a board of arbitration, which shall possess the power belonging to United States commissioners appointed by the circuit court of the United States, but in no case shall any witness be compelled to disclose the secrets or produce the records or proceedings of any labor organization of which he may be an officer or member, and any order, finding, conclusion or reward made by a majority of the arbitrators shall be of the same force and effect as if all the arbitrators concurred therein or united in making the same.

FARM AND GARDEN.

In selecting young Brahmas an indication of what the plumage will be is given by the bills. When the bill has a dark stripe down the upper mandible the hackle and tail will be dark.

A correspondent of the National Stockman says: "To prevent the depredations of rabbits on young fruit trees, take some lamp black or soot from the chimney back, mix it up with milk (skimmed milk will do), and with a cloth or an old broom paint the body of the tree from the ground to the limbs. It will remain through the winter, and nothing will molest the trees. In the spring take some strong soapsuds and wash the black from the tree, and it will remove all tree lice or any impurities from the bark and give the tree a green, healthy appearance."

Students of forestry have frequently stated that cultivation of the soil has a beneficial influence upon the distribution and amount of rainfall, a fact well illustrated by a statement made by Mr. Holstein at a recent meeting of the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences. Mr. H. affirmed that the streams in certain cultivated portions of Northern Texas were found to continue running during the portion of the year when they formerly dried up. The change is supposed to be due to the fact that the rainfall, which has not changed in amount, is more evenly absorbed over the cultivated areas.

The Maryland Farmer takes strong ground in favor of feeding cattle in yards and sheds instead of letting them roam over large pastures, which must be fenced at great expense. It is so much cheaper for a farmer to fence in his own stock than to fence out all the stock of his neighbors; and then an acre will yield three or four times as much cattle food if it is cultivated and the crops cut instead of being gnawed off by tramping animals. The cost of fences is usually more than the value of the animals pastured, and sometimes more than the land enclosed. Cattle that are kept rather close, and are handled often, are also tamer, and less breachy than those which run at large, and are often compelled to shirk for their supply of food.

A Kansas farmer who has had considerable experience in raising and feeding sorghum, is quite enthusiastic as to its merits as a fodder crop. He grows the Early Amber sort, sows broadcast one and a fourth bushels of seed, or drills in one bushel. He cuts when three or four feet high, and beginning to show here and there a head, with a mowing machine; cures thoroughly. When cut thus early a second crop, nearly or quite as good as the first can be harvested, or if preferred, the field affords abundant pasturage at a time when pastures are generally dried up. The same care must be exercised in turning cattle into a sorghum pasture as into fresh clover, turning them in for a short time only till they become accustomed to it. The feed, whether green or cured, is excellent to stimulate milk production. It yields from five to six tons per acre.

Mr. A. H. Gaston, Marshall county, Illinois, always found that when pumpkins or squashes were fed with corn the animals were more healthy and thrifty than when receiving corn alone; it also required less corn, and the hogs were free from disease. He noticed that the hogs ate the pumpkin or squash seeds first, showing that they furnished something particularly needed. Mr. Gaston advises swine growers to try the "fruit of the vine." He has grown what is known as the Valparaiso squash, a very prolific variety, said to have sometimes produced thirty tons per acre, an amount he considered equal to 300 bushels shelled corn. He thinks the seed may be had of some of the seedsmen. This squash grows well in an early potato patch, planted about the middle of May. Put one seed in a place, ten feet apart; they begin "vining" about the time the potatoes are dug, and thus give a profitable second crop.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

EGGS AND HAM.

A nice way to serve eggs with broiled ham is to butter some patty tins, sprinkle conscientiously with fine crumbs of bread, break an egg into a saucer, and then, without disturbing the yolk, pour it into the tin. Set the tins into a hot dripping-pan and let them stand in the oven until the white is cooked. Then, after putting the thin pieces of nicely broiled ham upon a hot platter, take the eggs from the oven and turn out on the ham. It is not necessary to close the oven door while the eggs are in it, and indeed it is better not to do so.

FIG PUDDING.

Three-quarters of a pound of grated bread, half a pound of best figs, six ounces of suet, six ounces of moist sugar, a teaspoonful of milk and a little nutmeg grated. The figs and suet must be chopped very fine. Mix the bread and suet first, then the figs, sugar and nutmegs, one egg beaten well, and lastly the milk. Boil in a mold four hours. To be eaten with sweet sauce.

LEMON PUDDING.

Cream up one tablespoonful of fresh butter with one teacupful of sugar. Two eggs must be beaten up very light and two lemons provided for seasoning. Dissolve a tablespoonful of cornstarch in a little cold milk, then pour over it a teacupful of boiling water. Add to this the butter, sugar and eggs. Rub the lemons until soft, grate the rind into the batter and also strain into it the juice. Bake in puff paste. This quantity makes two puddings and will be found very nice.

MACAROONS.

Take a half pound of almonds, pour boiling water over them, taking the skins off very neatly; do not let the water remain on them more than a minute; put them in a mortar with a half pound of white sugar and the whites [illegible] and a half eggs; all is then pounded together; flavor with lemon or vanilla; make them into round balls and put on paper; then flatten them with a little brush and cold water; put them in a moderate oven for half an hour.

DRAWN BUTTER.

Take two teaspoonfuls of flour, moisten with a little cold water, one teacup of hot water or milk, a little salt, three tablespoonfuls of butter, parsley chopped and added if liked; boil thoroughly.

SOUR MILK PANCAKES.

Three cups of flour, one and one-half cups of sour milk, one teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth spoonful of carbonate of soda. Mix well and fry on a greased pan.

POTATO BREAD.

Two cups of mashed potatoes, one teaspoonful of salt, small pinch of carbonate of soda. Roll out two and one-half inches thick and fry on a greased tin.

AN AGRICULTURALIST.

A Professor Whose Oats Took Their Own Time in Sprouting.

Prof. J. Cudigo Philemsbury, after having spent the best years of his life in editing an agricultural journal, decided upon buying a farm and settling down to put into practical shape the many ideas which he had expressed through his paper. The professor was delighted when he sniffed the free air of the country, and, as he stood around "bossing" the plow hands, he wondered why he had been content to sit in a dingy room.

One day the professor sent the following order to a grain dealer in town: "Please send me fifty bushels of seed oats, best quality."

The shipment was made. The professor had been so imperious with his hired men that neither of them would offer him any advice, in fact, he had told them that when he wanted a suggestion he would ask for it.

The shipment of oats came. The professor had asked for the best quality and was highly satisfied with the result. The land was prepared with great care and the oats were sowed and harrowed in, then rolled and then harrowed again. Every day or two the professor would go out and make an examination to see if the oats had sprouted. He became impatient, for oats in neighboring fields had come up.

One day while Colonel Subberly, a well-known planter, was visiting the professor, the great agriculturalist asked:

"Oh, yes; the field is green."

"I don't know what's the matter with mine. I sowed them three weeks ago, but they haven't sprouted yet. Wish you'd come out and make an examination."

They went to the field and began to scratch around.

"See, they haven't sprouted," said the professor.

"I don't see any oats," the colonel replied.

"Here's one, Colonel."

"Sawdust!" gasped the professor.

"Of course."

"Is it possible that I have sowed sawdust?"

"It seems that you have." The colonel laughed. The professor's face grew red. He called his foreman whom he saw standing a short distance away.

"Confound it, Jackson!" he exclaimed, "didn't you know we were sowing sawdust instead of oats?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, why in thunder didn't you tell me?"

"Because, sir, you told me that you wanted no suggestions—said that you had been editor of the Farmer's Scientific and Practical Cultivator so long that you knew what you were doing, so we all thought that we'd let you go."

"He's got it on you, professor," said the colonel.

"That's all right," said the great agriculturalist, "but if there's any law in this country I'll make that merchant smoke."

He hurried to town and called on the merchant, restrained his angr as well as he could, and said:

"Have you got an order that I sent you some time ago?"

"Yes, sir, I think so."

"Let me see it."

The order was produced. The professor looked at it several minutes. He prided himself on his bad writing, and it was some time before he could read it.

"What does this order say—what are these words?" the professor asked.

"Sawdust," replied the merchant.

"Sawdust the deuce. Anybody can see that they are seed oats."

"Leave it to anybody in town."

"All right."

They called in a printer who had worked in the professor's office.

"Read this order," said the professor.

The printer took the order. "It is as plain to me as print," said he. Then he read: "'Please send me fifty bushels of sawdust—best quality.' Oh, its plain enough."

The merchant roared. The professor said: "Do any of you know who wants to buy an excellent farm? I have one that I desire to sell. I am tired of farming. I shall return to the editorial room and make myself useful to my country. I think that the drinks are on somebody and it strikes me that I am the citizen. A man who cannot write a better hand than I do has no business with a farm. Come, gentlemen."—Arkansaw Traveler.

No Assistance From Waiters.

"Sorry, sir, but I haven't time to chew it for you now."—Tid Bits.

While Ho[illegible] his turn to be [illegible] barber shop, the [illegible] up a newspaper [illegible] eye landed upon was this:

"No matter how busy a man may be he should find time every day to tell his wife that he loved her."

Hopplebopper dropped the paper and went to musing on the golden past. Visions of beauty flitted before him and made him sigh that the wheels of time should whirl so rapidly. Once more he was a young man, living on hope and six dollars a week, sparking his wife, and swearing to love her until the mountains sank into the sea. One by one the buried years were resurrected, and the joys and sorrows of each were dwelt upon.

Just then the barber shouted "Next!" and Hopplebopper roused up with a start and got into the chair.

The man of gab said it was a nice day, but Hopplebopper heeded him not.

The towel went under his chin and the lather went on to his face, and the sable man who bent over him intimated that it looked a good deal like rain, but Hopplebopper was too deep in thought to heed him.

So the barber lathered and scraped him in silence, and Hopplebopper went right on with his musing.

He was trying to remember the last time he had told his wife that he loved her.

He couldn't do it.

But after a long mental tussle he made up his mind that he would do better in the future, and blurted out:

"I'll do it! I will, by George!"

"What's that sir?" said the barber, stopping suddedly, with the razor in the air.

Hopplebopper blushed through the lather, and said it didn't matter. He had been ruminating on the newspaper paragraph, and was resolved that he would put its teaching into actual practice from that day forward.

He would turn over a new leaf, and make his wife's heart bound with joy. He would tell her that she was dear to him, and watch the roses bloom in her cheeks again.

The thought was delicious, and made him feel as though he had money in every pocket.

When Hopplebopper got home his wife had just been having a noisy matinee with the hired girl, about something that hadn't been done to suit her, and she was just about mad enough to leave the prints of her teeth in cold iron.

She bounced into the sitting-room just as he entered, and threw herself into a chair with an emphasis that made the windows rattle and broke a spring in the upholstery.

Hopplebopper was too much taken up with his new idea to notice her excitement, so he walked up to her side, chucked her softly under the chin, and, as he stooped to kiss her, said quite tenderly:

"My dear, I love you."

"Simon Henry!" said she, in tones as cheerless as the dumping of a load of coal, "don't be a fool!"

"But, my dear——"

"Don't you dare to dear me. You've been drinking again. Oh! you old reprobate! Ain't you ashamed of yourself? As though I hadn't trouble enough already, but that you must——"

"You're mistaken, my love, I——"

"Not another word!" exclaimed the excited woman, with snapping eyes, as she stamped her foot. "You're a beast; that's just what you are! A good-for-nothing drunken beast!"

Hopplebopper tried to slip his arm around her waist and pull her on his knee. She tore herself away from him and grabbed a chair, which she raised in a threatening manner, as she shouted:

"Keep away from me, you nasty sot, or you'll get hurt."

"I'm not drunk, my dear."

"You are."

"I ain't—I haven't tasted a drop."

"What's the matter with you then? Ain't you got no sense at all?"

"Why don't you let me tell you——"

"Tell me what?"

"That I love you."

"Stop right there! I don't want any more of that! You make me sick. I won't let you nor any other bald-headed old idiot make fun of me to my face. Go right over to the grocery this minute, and get me a beefsteak for supper!"

Hopplebopper turned sadly away and went out, with his heart beating with a dragging motion.—Chicago Ledger.

A Bad Engagement.

"Your country engagement, then was not a success," said a man addressing an actor who had just come back from a tour over the country roads.

"Hardly. The other night we opened up at a place called Sour Apple. We engaged the church and arranged the stage with a piece of carpet for a drop curtain. I took my place at the door and waited for the audience to assemble. Pretty soon a fellow came up and started in. I asked him for the price of admission and, turning upon me he said:

"'I'm a deacon in this church and if you don't let me in there shan't be no show.'"

"I let him go in. Just then another fellow came. I stopped him.

"'What's the matter with you?' said he. 'I am an exhorter in this church and if you want to give a performance you'd better let me in.' I let him in and turned around just in time to catch another man. 'I am the pastor of this church. If you don't let me in I'll have the lights turned out.' He went in and just then a crowd came up. One of the number said: 'We are all members in good standing of this congregation and are going in.' We had a large audience that night but did not take in ten cents. No, I shall not again go out with the Grand County Road combination."—Arkansaw Traveler.

Immediately after the results were obtained on Tuesday evening, the band came out and "302" citizens started for the Commercial house to find the new mayor elect; "302" more joined enroute and upon arrival the highways were blocked so great was the crowd. Mr. Davis was called out who responded in a brief speech, bearing down pretty severely upon the newspapers of the city for their course, saying that he would do his best to give the city a clean, honest administration and should he fail, he felt that the citizens would be all right for he would leave them in the tender care of their papers. After thanking his 604 voters, and assuring all that the city government under his guidance should not go to the "demnition bow wows" head first, he retired to be followed by His Honor, Mayor Montague, E. M. Walsh, Hon. H. Steenerson and many others. No larger demonstration gotten up on the spur of the moment, was ever held in the city and all seemed to thoroughly enjoy themselves. The victor and the vanquished each wore a smile equally expansive and a jolly good time for several hours was had, after which Mr. Davis went to his home on the hill and the balance went their several ways, some to the quiet of their homes others to further celebrate the event in a manner best suited to their taste and inclination. As to the "wide open policy," of which we have heard we do not believe there will be more of that under Mr. Davis, than there has been in the past. What any mayor needs and must have to be perfectly successful, is that the better class of people unite with him in his efforts to execute the laws and preserve good order, and if this is done, any administration will be far more successful than it can be without. The sentiment of this city is in favor of law and order by a large majority and there is no valid reason why any other course should obtain.

J. S. Randall arrived from the Moreland ranch, Gallatin Co., Montana, last week with a car load of mustangs, and put up at Terry & Collins' sale stables. On Tuesday he decided to take them over to L. Daoust's stables, in Carman, and Mr. Daust brought his trotter, Joe, over to escort them home. Mr. Randall requested Mr. Daoust to take the lead and keep it. Mr. Daoust got in the lead all right enough but the mustangs attempted to pass the trotter, "Joe" objected and the fun commenced; the way they went through the city was a caution to the Dutch. It showed that on speed the mustang is no slouch. They will prove a valuable acquisition to the country for speed. They are a fine lot; and parties desirous of seeing them can do so by going to Daoust's stables at Carman.

Notice is hereby given a competitive examination will be held at Fergus Falls, on Tuesday, April 20th, 1886 by a committee consisting of Hon. H. Steenerson, of Crookston, Prof. I. J. Gray, of St. Cloud and Supt. Geo. F. Cowing, of Fergus Falls, for the purpose of selecting a candidate for appointment to the vacant cadetship at the U. S. naval academy at Annapolis from the 5th Congressional district. Applicants must be bonafide residents of the 5th Congressional District, must be not under fourteen nor over seventeen years of age, certificates of parents or guardians as to age will be required. The candidate selected must be physically sound, healthy and of fair size for his age. Examination will be made in the subjects of reading, spelling, writing, geography, English grammar, arithmetic and U. S. history. [illegible] attention is given to the sub[illegible] of arithmetic, U. S. history and such parts of geography as relate to the U. S. Applicants must have a good knowledge of the principles of English grammar, be able to write readily and correctly from dictation. Candidates are requested to be present at 10 o'clock a. m., on the date named. The successful candidate will be required to pass the entrance examination at the naval academy in May. Any further information will be furnished on application to members of the committee.

The Crookston Ideals.

A large audience greeted the first appearance of the Crookston Ideals at the opera house on Monday evening and we venture to say that no one went away disappointed. When we consider the fact that this was the first time the boys have played together before an audience we must confess to a feeling of surprise that the mistakes were as few as they were. When the curtain raised, the boys were greeted with a storm of applause that continued for several minutes. When the enthusiasm had subsided so that one could hear a pin picked up, the boys limbered up and shot off their mouth all the same like old vets. Where all were so good it would not do to draw comparisons but we can say for the Ideals, that had it been Cal. Wagner's troupe or some other noted crowd at a dollar a head the universal verdict would have been that it was well worth the money. The songs were all well rendered, baring the "stage fright" of some of the stars, the jokes new, crisp and sparkling and many good hits were made. The boys did well, and the receipts, netting about $100 showed that they were duly appreciated.

VOL. IX. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, APRIL 15, 1886. NO. 51.

Mentor Locals.

MENTOR, MINN., MARCH 28, '86.

We live! We live! Every man in our town is to be accommodated with a railroad right at his door the St. P., M. & M. R. R. survey party are running lines on every ridge and in front of every door; going over tops of houses, straw stacks, etc., they seem to be looking for the best house in town for a depot and concluded that Dr. Cable's house as regards proximity to the track, design of architecture, etc., is the best they have struck; so they run within four feet of the door.

Teams that were on the road last week to Crookston were froze in; an ice boat would have come handy.

Mr. John Smith tells your correspondent that he was robbed on the streets of Crookston while going to his hotel rooms on Tuesday evening last. The amount taken was $5.

On Sunday March 14th, Rev. Mr. Tassell was called on to perform the marriage ceremony, which unites for life Mr. Fred Denison of Woodside to Miss Minnie Mitchell, who resides east of Maple Lake. Mr. Tassell had some trouble in finding the parties, he was lost in the woods, but an exploring party consisting of the anxious groom and friends found him and conducted him to the proper place and in due time the ceremonies were celebrated to the satisfaction of all concerned. Mrs. Denison was formerly of Crookston.

Mr. Jno. McLaughlin of Crookston is building a two story log house in our town, preparatory to moving his family here permanently.

Died on March 22nd at his residence in Maple Bay, Mr. Adams aged about 70 years. He was one of the oldest residents and was highly respected by all who knew him. He was burried on the 24th inst.; services conducted by Rev. Tassell of Mentor.

Mr. John Smith of this place has experienced several losses recently, on Saturday last while Mr. Smith was sick in bed with only two small children left with him; the first thing he saw was his barn in flames, his little girl having scratched a match and dropped it in the straw; no neighbors being near, he had all he could do to save his house, his loss was a light wagon, a new seeder, hay rake, sulky plow and all his hay. His neighbors helped him get out logs for a new barn. Last night one of his horses was taken sick and we all sympathise with him.

MENT-HER.

Stock In The Northwest.

Farmers Advocate.

Mr. John B. Power of this city, who with his brother, W. A. Power, has been engaged in stock raising for several years in Cass Co., Dak.,—the Hellendale Stock Farm—has positive opinions about the adaptability of Minnesota and Dakota for profitable stock raising. Mr. Power's opinions are based on a practical experience of six years, during which time he has studied the subject thoroughly and carefully compared the results obtained with other sections. When, therefore, he declares his only regret that he did not go into the business in the start on a much larger scale than he did, the only inferrence to be drawn is that the enterprise has proven much more remunerative, and much more encouraging for the future than he had anticipated. In his enumeration of the advantages possessed by Minnesota and Dakota for successful stock raising, Mr. Power lays great stress upon the theory we advanced in our last week's issue, that stock bred and reared in this latitude is uniformly possessed of greater vitality, a healthier internal organism—are stronger framed and hardier than those of milder climates where they are continually subjected to the debilitating, enervating and disease producing malarial influences incident to such sections, and that the comparative freedom from disease in this section, the hardier and more vigorous growth, more than offsets the added labor of production incident to the long winter season.

But Mr. Power places his greatest faith of profitable stock raising in the northwest in the future upon the belief that the beginning of the end of range cattle kings of the plains will be compelled to purchase lands for their immense herds. Mr. Power has given this range cattle question close study for several years, and he finds that on an average each head of stock requires fifteen acres of grazing land to keep it in condition for marketing. If the land had to be purchased at the government price, $1.25 an acre, the original outlay for land would be $20 per head, while in Minnesota and Dakota on new farms, three and at the outside four acres has been found amply sufficient to furnish food for one animal. [illegible] Estimating the cost at $5 per acre, a liberal price for new land, and the cost for the land in the two cases would be about the same. Of course the smaller the area adequate to give the necessary sustenance occupied by stock the greater the proportion of enriching qualities returned to the soil in their droppings, thus giving the small farm breeders of this section an avarage over the rangers. Another advantage is found in the much larger per centage of marketable stock produced by the small breeders of Minnesota and Dakota. Still another advantage and a very important one, is that they are nearer the consumer, and thus the cost of transportation is proportionately smaller, while their nearer location and the character of their operations, enables them to take advantage of the markets. On the other hand the range breeder, who depends entirely upon grass is forced to market his surplus at the end of the grass crop. The result is a glut of the market and low prices.

These points might be elaborated at length, but the brief statement should be sufficient, we think, to decide northwestern farmers to increase their stock operations as rapidly as possible. It is surprising how easily, and with a small outlay, grain fields can be transformed into pastures and occupied by thrifty stock, if only intelligence and system is practiced. It is not expected, it would not be desirable that farmers of the northwest should generally abandon grain for stock. By no means. The northwest is peculiarly adapted to the production of grain and of the best qualities of grain, and so long as the quality is retained there will be a demand for it, the more profitable the demand, the nearer the annual output is kept in harmony with the wants of the consumers. The giving of a portion of the area now devoted to grain in favor of stock, will not only serve to more nearly equalize the supply and demand, but by the rotation of uses to which the soil would be necessarily subjected by such a division of products, a system of fertilization would be established which would go far toward keeping up the fertility of the soil, and thus insure a continuance of large yields and the excellence of our grains. There is little danger of over doing the stock product of to-day. Statistics show that the percentage of stock to population is not so great to-day as in 1861. This too, notwithstanding the phenominal growth of the range industry in the last few years. For these reasons, we urge farmers of the northwest to more generally go into stock raising. Don't try too much on the start, but whatever you undertake, do well. The first essential is a good sire. This in sparcely settled communities can often best be secured by co-operation. Get a good sire some way and then breed up. Start right and the rest is easy. Events will point the way in the future.

Dairying and Farming.

Farm, Field and Stockman.

Dairying and farming are entirely different, yet the one is dependent on the other for complete succes. Dairying could, under certain circumstances, be conducted in a large building in a city, and without great difficulty, if necessary, from the fact that true dairying is a manufacturing business. With the aid of the cows a dairyman with limited space has only to buy what we may term raw materials—ground grain and bulky food—and change them in form by feeding them to the cows, the product being milk, which in turn is made into butter and cheese. Farming without dairying means the production of the raw materials, which are sold for manufacturing purposes. But, when the two industries are conducted together the farmer who grows the products can manufacture them on the farm, and if he only succeeds in securing a remuneration equivalent to the cost of growing and manufacturing the products, his profit can be secured from the refuse material—manure—which will slowly but surely enrich him. It is plain that all the material that can be returned to the farm without loss is simply a saving of the same for use another season, and it is in that respect that the farm may be considered a factory also, as every pound of refuse material is worked up in the soil, and re-converted into plant food, then into material for the cows. The farm is the foundation upon which is built the wealth, while the creatures are the producers. The farmer can also produce by purchase, other raw material and bring it to the farm for manufacturing purposes, and in so doing he has two outlets for profit, the one being from the direct sale of the products and the other by placing upon the farm for future use that which does not immediately contribute to a profit. And thus while dairying and farming may be considered as different pursuits, yet the two combined offer the greatest advantages in securing the best results.

The Minneapolis Tribune has now achieved the very credible circulation of 14,500 daily. Price, $8.00 per annum.

An Order From Sparks.

The Bismarck Tribune is authority for the statement that Commissioner Sparks has "issued an order" adding the appended questions to the usual ones in making proof upon homestead and pre-emption entries on government lands in Dakota.

1. In what state were you born, and is your mother a woman?

2. Are you a Christian or a Democrat?

3. What is your sex and how do you know?

4. Does your wife cook potatoes with the skins on?

5. What is the difference between a hypothetical hyperbole and a perpendicular parallelogram?

7. Do you want the land for a farm or a skating rink?

8. Do your wife's folks live with you, and how old is your granmother?

9. Have you ever told a lie?

10. If so, has it ever been found out?

Cheaper and Better than Lard.

The Housekeeper, Minneapolis, Minn., is publishing a series of articles on American Cooking Oil, which is made of Cotton Seed Oil, refined and then refined again. This vegetable oil, which is a substitute for lard, much more wholesome and cheaper, is far better than lard for any purpose in cooking, and requires about one-third as much in quantity. Those who want to learn something of this new thing under the sun should send for a specimen copy (free) to Buckeye Publishing Co., Minneapolis.

STOP. Before subscribing for an agricultural paper, consider where it is published and whether the teachings are adapted to the latitude in which you live. Farming in the Northwest cannot be conducted as it is East and be successful. FARM, STOCK AND HOME, of Minneapolis, is edited by the farmers of the Northwest themselves, and is the best, most practical and reliable paper a farmer can have. It is printed twenty-four times a year for only 50 cents; or we will send it and a copy of the JOURNAL for one year for $1.50. [25-tf]

and at least a moderate competence, come to those who follow the teachings of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST. This world-renowned periodical, in addition to its other great features, has now employed the LEADING AMERICAN WRITERS to describe THE RURAL LIVES OF OUR AMERICAN PRESIDENTS, nearly all of whom were reared on farms, or retired to them from active life. DONALD G. MITCHELL, (IKE MARVEL) R. H. STODDARD, JAMES PARTON, JULIAN HAWTHORNE, DR. LYMAN ABBOTT, and others equally eminent, are now prparing these supplemental HISTORICAL PAPERS. They are to be accompanied with ENGRAVINGS, 12x18 inches in size, executed at large expense by our first artists, illustrating the Rural Homes and Surroundings of our Farmer Presidents, comprising a MAGNIFICENT PORTFOLIO collection for every house, rich and poor alike. These SPECIAL PAPERS and SPECIAL ENGRAVINGS, will be of absorbing interest to all interested in country life, and likewise constitute an important ACQUISITION to the historical knowledge of the country.

R. H. Stoddard writes; "I am sure they will be popular in a literary sense and equally sure they will be of great value to the boys of this country, who have a right to look forward to becoming our future rulers." Donald G. Mitchell: "I write about Washington's farming, in respect to which I have some copies of unpublished letters." Lyman Abbott: "It is an admirable design, showing the close connection of our Farmer Presidents with the soil." Julian Hawthorne: "An attractive scheme. I shall be glad to have a hand in it." James Parton: "One of my articles will be ready in three weeks."

Every subscriber to the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST for 1886 is entitled to these descriptions and engravings of the Rural Lives of our Presidents, forwarded without additional cost with the numbers of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST, as they appear; or specially executed on heavy, highly finished paper, and forwarded with the additional trifling cost for packing and postage. Single Subscription, $1.50; Ten Subscriptions, $1 each.

Busy City.

Mr. A. V. Eastman was up last week attending to a little legal work.

HACK & GALLASCH'.

Mr. L. K. Aker took a run down to Alexandria last week to visit the old friends in Douglass County.

M. R. Brown has nearly finished seeding on the home farm. On Monday he thought three days would complete it with good weather.

Country merchants and farm s all trade at Hack & Gal-was up from Ada on consulting with the Democratic ms. Fred says he will start a here to "meet a long felt want!"

LePage's new store is assuming fine proportions. It will soon be enclosed and ready for the finishing touches. LePage promises to be in it by the 1st bit of a rainstorm last Saturday sed many apprehensions as to the ather this week. However the worst was not realized and a large amount of seeding has been done.

The work of seeding commenced pretty generally last week. Farmers are beginning to use drills and a number of these implements have been sold by the different dealers.

Sole agents for the celebrated Dunlap htas. C. O. D. clothing house.

The Duluth Herald enters upon the fourth year of its existence with bright prospects and bright hopes. It is one of the neatest and best local papers that comes to our table, and we heartily congratulate it upon its prospects.

The river is nearly free from its icy fetters and on Monday several men in a skiff were catching the finny tribe in a net, below Sampson's bridge. If that becomes general the officers of the law will soon be spreading their nets for the fishermen.

Go to the Bee Hive to trade. It is the cheapest place in the city.

Terry & Collins' sale was not so wel attended last Saturday as the previous ones have been, owing probably to the fact that farmers were busy with the seeding. One or two animals were sold at auction and a number of private sales were made.

Rev. T. F. Allen of Warren is this week assisting in revival services at the Methodist church. The meetings which are increasing in interest will be continued for some time. Special services will be held next Sabbath, both morning and evening.

Children's suits (short pants) in all ages from four to twelve years in forty styles and patterns at the C. O. D. clothing house.

The Boston Block, at Minneapolis, was destroyed by fire on Sunday. Among the papers burned out was the Housekeeper, one of the best papers of its kind in existence. We trust that the drawback will be only temporary, and that the Housekeeper will come orth purified as by fire.

New cash railroad at Hack & Gallasch'. The first and only one in the Northwest. Don't fail to see it.

Our good friend of the daily pitches into us red hot and threatens to "trot out some fax of the late campaign that we won't like to hear." All right, J. W., if you have anything on your mind, trot 'er out; we are not ashamed of anything we have done and if you can say anything that will ease you any we do not object.

Among the attractions at Terry & Collins' sale stables are several fine grade Holstein bull calves which are for sale at figures that can not be duplicated anywhere. Now is the time to secure a choice animal for the stock farm. You can make your own price and terms. If you want a choice animal don't fail to call at Terry & Collins' sale stables and see these animals.

Wm. and Delbert Adams, brothers of Mrs. Dr. Tooly arrived from Albion, N. Y., on Friday last on a tour of inspection to this Red River Valley. When they left New York the happy dwellers in that favored clime were wallowing in snow two feet deep or so and upon arrival here they found that farmers had been seeding all the week. They expect to remain for the summer and should they continue to like the country will locate.

Mrs. Geo. Buckman is reported very sick with dropsy.

Mrs. E. E. Perry, who was severely injured by falling last week is recovering encouragingly.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Copeland's little daughter, Mabel, who has been very sick with pneumonia is convalescing.

Hat department completed in every detail look us over and see if it aint. C. O. D. clothing house.

Farmer Pierce reports the arrival of a fine Guernsey heifer calf. He anticipates having a fine dairy herd in a few years.

Parties wishing to see only the latest styles in hats should go to the C. O. D. clothing house.

Tom Kelley was called to Dakota last week by the sickness of his brother, and telegraphed back on Sunday that his brother had died. John Sullivan went over on Monday.

The spring boom has commenced at Hack & Gallasch'. They are kept busy from morning till night serving their customers.

Frank Jerome is fixing up the building on Broadway, formerly occupied by Bray & O'Brien and says he will soon have the neatest butcher shop in the city. He knows how to do that when he sets about it.

Dunlap hats at the C. O. D. clothing house.

Mr. O. O. Christianson arrived from Ada last week and may now be found in the office of Christianson Bro's ready to attend to all sorts of business in their line. He is a pleasant gentleman, one with whom it is a pleasure to deal.

HACK & GALLASCH.

Lowe & Huggard take hold of the machinery business like old wheelhorses. They have had an excellent run already and amply deserve it. Dave, being a farmer of long experience in this county knows just what kind of machinery to keep and will have nothing but the best. We can recommend the firm.

Earl & Wilson's collars and cuffs, C. O. D. clothing house.

Mr. J. O. Milne went down to Lowe & Huggard's machinery depot last week and took home one of those Acme pulverizing harrows, one of the best implements ever used on the farm. Mr. Milne is one of the live, progressive farmers of the county, who will use nothing but the best and most approved machinery and in his judgment the Acme is the best in the market.

Hack & Gallasch have a larger stock of dry goods, shoes, slippers and groceries than ever, and invite all to visit their store and get prices.

Charlie Greenhalgh has for some time been to work on a shell-loader which he has at last got so perfect that he can load shells perfectly, just as rapidly as he can work a lever. It is a very ingenious piece of mechanism and reflects great credit upon its inventor and builder and it would serve Charlie right if it should make a fortune for him. He amply deserves such a fate.

Latest advices indicate a better price for wheat at an early day. All reports show a large decrease in the visible supply and it is thought that the opening of navigation will cause an appreciable rise. Reports from winter wheat countries are of such a nature as to indicate a larger crop, with less acreage than last year. We can not see any encouragment to hope for more than 75 cents per bushel here at the outside.

Largest stock of men's and boys boots and shoes in the city, prices warranted, C. O. D. clothing house.

One of our city grangers started for his farm on Monday night prepared to put in his wheat. In his wagon he had cooking utensils, a 52 gallon barrel marked "Cognac Brandy," a small ten gallon cask which he assured us was full of the best of spirits a few pounds of groceries and a 25 pound sack of flour. What in the world he could want of so much flour and so many groceries we can't imagine and no one could inform us, so if you are curious about it you will have to ask Mat Cornelius.

I do my trading at Hack & Gallasch', tra-la! It is the cheapest store in Crookston, tra-la-la!

Lowe & Huggard handle the new Osborne self-binder which seems to be as perfect as a machine can be made. The improvements made upon the machine are wonderful and leads one to wonder how it could be made more perfect. The parts most likely to wear are protected by steel plates, the machine is easily adjusted by levers, and is so constructed that almost any part of it can be replaced if it should get broken. It is impossible to describe the many improvements that have been made in the Osborne but Lowe & Huggard will take pleasure in showing the machine and making the necessary explanations to their friends. Don't fail to call and see a perfect binder whether you want to buy or o

Mr. Wahlgren, of East Grand Forks, who has spent the winter in Norway, has returned and says that he is perfectly satisfied to stay here as times in the old country are fearfully slow and everybody anxious to get away. He says our people know nothing about hard times here, and that we have everything to be thankful for.

Geo. O. Buhn, the new alderman from the First Ward had his new residence photographed on Tuesday morning. It was suggested that they take Jennings' residence as a companion piece, but Buhn said he captured Jennings by a large majority last Tuesday and is well satisfied. He has a nice residence and it looks well in a frame.

Mrs. S. F. Markant returned from her California trip, on Saturday very much improved in health, having had a very enjoyable time. She says that Judge Reynolds health is so much improved that the Judge and Mrs. Reynolds will leave soon for home, reaching here about June 1st. Mrs. M. brought a sample of an ostrich egg which S. F. has on exhibition at the store.

The Northwestern Farmer will appear on time as usual. It comes out tried as by fire, having been burned out root and branch since its last issue, bought an entire new outfit and started on the ground floor as it were. One would suppose that a deal of this kind would necessitate a raise on the subscription price but we are told that such is not the case. The price will remain the same and the new dress thus hastily donned to cover the naked forms, rendered nude by the fierce flames will enhance the value of the Farmer many fold as it will be of the very latest pattern and of the richest material cut and trimmed in the latest style of the art and not of calico or some other cheap fabric. Success to the plucky Farmer.

Mrs. A. L. Lindsley arrived on Tuesday on a visit to her parents Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Box.

Dan McDonald don't seem to be any prouder than ever since he assumed the duties of street commissioner and policeman.

The post office at Fisher was burned on Wednesday morning at 4 o'clock. It is reported to be a total loss. No particulars have been learned.

Mr. S. A. Farnsworth, of Ada, was in the city on Thursday. He reports seeding generally commenced in Norman Co., and being pushed with vigor. Mr. F. was once principal of our high school and has many warm friends in this city.

M. G. Peterson, the affable town clerk of Garden, was in the city on Wednesday. He reports seeding well under way in the Garden town. Mr. Peterson is one of the stalwart republicans of the county and reports prospects from a political stand point very promising. He says there are only two democrats in Garden.

After an immense amount of work in receiving and arranging goods Chiniquy has at last got things into ship-shape and announces the grand opening to take place to-day, (Thursday.) The store is beautifully decorated, the goods tastifully arranged and Charlie wears a smile that is a yard wide and all wool, (warranted.) It is worth while to drop in and see the fine display.

Al. Kaiser, the genial editor of the Thirteen Towns was in on Monday. Al. says in relation to the matter of the lumbermen boycotting Crookston, which the JOURNAL spoke of a few weeks ago: "I can tell you that the JOURNAL was all right in that statement and if you want it I can bring you abundant proof. The boys did have an agreement and they did carry it out whatever the Times man or any other numbskull has to say to the contrary!" We will say that in relation to that matter that we knew whereof we spoke and we knew that it could be substantiated if necessary.

Plant Trees.

The Governor has appointed Saturday, April 24th as Arbor Day when everybody and his wife and children are supposed to turn out and plant a tree. If everybody would do it our prairie country would soon blossom as the rose as it were and ere many years the good effects of Arbor Day would be felt as a power for good.

WALNUTINE. BOND'S NEW DISCOVERY, FOR THE HAIR.

WALNUTINE is prepared from the Extract of Black Walnut Hulls and Mexican Soap Root with Vasaline and other ingredients (agreeably perfumed). In the Walnut Hulls we get the Coloring and Astringent matter. In the Vasaline we get the Softening and Dressing qualities. In the Mexican Soap Root we get the Cleansing and Stimulating effects at the roots of the hair. It is not a Dye! [We do not use Nitrate of Silver.] We invite Ladies and Gentlemen—OLD or YOUNG, BALD or GRAY—to use WALNUTINE, knowing that its effect will cause you to recommend it to others who desire to produce a healthy growth of dark or brown hair. It will gradually change and restore Gray hair to its natural color, without discoloring the skin. It also removes Scaly Humors and Dandruff and prevents the hair from falling off. We recommend the disuse of ALL OLD REMEDIES and a trial of this NEW DISCOVERY. It is unquestionably the Best Hair Restorative, Tonic and Dressing EVER MADE!! It is sold by all Druggists at 25 per cent. less than the old $1.00 price—our price being 75 cents per bottle, LARGE SIZE.
CAUTION!! Don't be induced to take any other article—insist on having WALNUTINE! BOND'S NEW DISCOVERY when you call for it. J. R. BOND & CO., Chicago, Proprietors. The Trade supplied by all WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS.

Council Meeting.

At the meeting of the new council on Tuesday evening, W. H. Stuart was elected President of the Council and R. B. Gates, Vice President. The mayor elect, Mr. E. C. Davis, on being presented to the council, said in brief that he regards the council as the law makers and that he would do his best to execute all laws they shall make. Wm. Box was appointed chief of Police, Dan McDonald street commissioner, with all the powers of a policeman. An attempt to raise the salaries of different officers failed except in the case of Assessor, former salary $2 per day, raised to $3. R. A. Wilkinson was reappointed comptroller; Hon. H. Steenerson city attorney and R. H. Skuse, city engineer. Liquor license fixed at $200. A lively session was had until a late hour, when the council adjourned to meet this, (Thursday) evening.

...at the ... made against ... Senator Platt of ... offered an amendment providing that the bonds and stock per mile should not exceed the construction. After a running cross fire of some moments Senator Sabin, for the first time this session, took a hand in the debate. Mr. Ingalls had said there was capital and business strength behind the Kansas & Arkansas company to put the road through. Yet the amendment of Senator Platt was not exactly what the friends of the Kansas & Arkansas wanted to see tacked on their franchise. Senator Sabin taking the floor said:

Mr. President, I understand the senator from Kansas to state that this charter is in the hands of a strong and conservative corporation who owns this charter.

Mr. Ingalls thought the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad company.

Mr. Sabin—The senator's statement confirms the information that has been given heretofore on this subject, that the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad is to build 240 miles of railroad. Now, it strikes me, Mr. president, that if the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway company will be prevented from building this 240 miles of railway by the adoption of an amendment which simply imposes upon them the condition of being an honest railway, one that shall be bonded and stocked so that the interest of the bonds and stocks of the corporation shall be paid from the earnings of the railway, which earnings shall be secured to that road by the freight traffic that is given it by the over taxed and languishing agricultural interests of this country to-day, it certainly is not a link worth building under such circumstances. Far be it from me to lay in the way of any railway construction in the West a single straw. I am myself a western man and have seen the necessities of railway construction. We have been greatly benefitted and builded up by the construction of railroads, but we are to-day suffering, and our agricultural interests are suffering, our farmers are compelled to sell their wheat at 50 or 60 cents a bushel, our industries are languishing with over-taxed burdens, one of the most potent reasons for which is the large amount paid for transportation of their products to their markets by corporations requiring excessive and arbitrary charges to secure the large amount of revenue necessary to pay dividends and interest, the bonded and watered stocks of which aggregate from two to four times the actual cost of the property. In the construction of this railway undoubtedly bonds will be placed to the full amount of the cost, therefore it is no hardship to have this new departure on the part of the representatives of the interests of the country incorporated in the bill. Our labor strikes would have assumed much less threatening proportions, if indeed not been averted entirely, if the railroads on which those strikes have occured, were simply bonded and stocked for any reasonable amount of their cost. I shall vote for the adoption of this amendment and every other of like purport that is presented.

Woodside Warbles.

WOODSIDE, April 1, 1886.

Thermometer at zero.

Messrs. Chas. Crossman and Samuel H. Dunfee as still cutting cordwood for E. D. Childs.

Mrs. Green, of whom we spoke last week as being ill, has recovered so as to be about again.

It was our good fortune to meet Mrs. M. Dunfee last week, the first time since her visit to Minneapolis, and we intend no flattery when we say she looks young, and as though she had enjoyed her visit very much.

Messrs. Goodrich & Roome will stop sawing for a short time until the ground thaws out. But as they now have about 1,800 logs in the yard they will commence sawing again soon, as there is a great demand for hard wood lumber just now.

And now, Mr. Editor, in regard to that railroad being built. Why, this morning I was dreaming of railroads and engines, when all at once I heard a whistle as of the cars. I caught my crutch and hopped to the door to look; but, lo, it was Goodrich's sawmil whistle.

We saw most unmistakable signs of an early spring yesterday. You ask what it was? Why, nothing more than a man sitting down in a chair where a lady had left her sewing with a needle it it. That's all!

We are informed that Mr. Charles Churchill intends making a visit to Crookston next week to be treated by some physician for his sickness.

Mr. A. Works has begun to tap his maple trees. But somehow the sap won't run when the thermometer is at zero at 10 o'cock a. m.

Mortgage Sale.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Axel Arnedson, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to Francis Reckitt, mortgagee, dated the 28th day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 30th day of April A. D. 1883, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book "L" of mortgages, on pages 453 and 454, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of seven hundred and forty-five dollars and thirty cents ($745.30) besides the further sum of $32.81 paid for taxes upon the mortgaged premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy, on Saturday the 29th day of May, A. D. 1886, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure and provided by law.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold, are the piece or parcel of land situated in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section number twenty-six (26) in Township number one hundred and fifty-four (154) in Range number forty-seven (47) west of the 5th principal meridian, containing 160 acres.

Mortgage Sale.

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Wenzel E. Newes, and Augusta M. Newes, his wife, mortgagors, to the Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, a corporation duly organized and acting under the laws of the State of Minnesota, mortgagee; which mortgage bears date the 9th day of November A. D. 1883, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 5th day of January A. D. 1884, at 11:20 o'clock a. m., in book "P" of mortgage deeds on pages 192, 193 and 194, and whereas said mortgage was executed to secure the payment of the sum of one thousand dollars with interest from date on the sum of four hundred and fifty dollars, at the rate of ten per cent per annum, and also to secure the sum of five dollars per month as and for the monthly contribution on five shares of the capital stock of said Association then owned by the said Wenzel E. Newes, said interest and said dues being payable on the first Saturday of each and every month after the date of said mortgage according to the conditions of a certain bond for the sum of two thousand dollars executed and delivered by the said Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, and bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain other and second mortgage executed and delivered by the aforesaid Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes, his wife, to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, which mortgage bears date the 17th day of November, A. D. 1884, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota on the 17th day of November A. D. 1884, at 2:45 o'clock p. m. in book "S" of mortgage deeds, on pages 468, 469 and 470, and whereas said second mortgage was executed to secure the payment of the sum of one thousand dollars with interest from date on the sum of three hundred and fifty dollars at the rate of ten per cent per annum and also to secure the sum of five dollars per month as and for the monthly contribution on five shares of the capital stock of said Association then owned by the said Wenzel E. Newes, said interest and said dues being payable on the first Saturday of each and every month after the date of said second mortgage according to the conditions of a certain bond for the sum of two thousand dollars executed and delivered by the said Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes, to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association of Crookston and bearing even date of November 10th A. D. 1884 and said second mortgage being upon the same real estate as the mortgage first above mentioned.

And whereas it is provided in each of said mortgages herein described, that in case any default should be made in the payment of the said principal sums when due or interest, or any part thereof for the space of six months after the same shall have become due, or in case said shares should be sold for the non-payment of dues, then and in such case the whole principal debt should immediately thereupon become due, and whereas default has been made in the payment of said interest and of said monthly dues secured by both of said mortgages for more than six months whereby according to the terms of said mortgages the whole principal debt has become due, and said ten shares of stock have been duly forfeited and sold for non payment of dues, and whereas no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise for the recovery of said debt or any part thereof.

And whereas, there is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice, the sum of nine hundred forty-eight and 65-100 dollars on said first mortgage and the sum of eleven hundred twenty-three and 45-100 dollars on said second mortgage, making in the aggregate the sum of two thousand seventy-one and 50-100 dollars now due.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that under and by virtue of the powers of sale in said mortgages contained, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the real estate and premises mentioned in each of said mortgages which are situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and described as follows to-wit: Lot number thirteen (13,) in block number two (2,) of L. Fletcher's Addition to Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof, on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County, State of Minnesota, will be sold by the Sheriff of said County of Polk, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk at 2 o'clock in the afternoon on Saturday the first day of May A. D. 1886, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on the debt secured by both of said mortgages, together with the sum of fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Andreas H. Bokke, mortgagor, to Mattie B. Eaton, mortgagee, dated the 5th day of March A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-three, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 5th day of March A. D. 1883, at 2:15 o'clock p. m., in book "K" of mortgages, on pages 292 to 294, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the sum of four hundred and ninety-three and 65-100 dollars ($493.65,) and forty-two and 70-100 ($42.70) dollars, paid by said mortgagee on account of taxes upon the mortgaged premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and under the power of sale in said mortgage contained, the said mortgagee elects to declare and claims that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid is due and payable.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy duly appointed, on Tuesday the 18th day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six at 9 o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter (se¼) Section nine (9.) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-four (44,) containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less, according to Government survey thereof.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication March 25th, 1886.]

BE IT KNOWN, THAT ON THE thirteenth day of January one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, Joseph Boiselle, and Cile Boiselle, his wife, made, executed and delivered unto The Farmers' and Mechanics' Savings Bank of Minneapolis, their certain mortgage; That said mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, State of Minnesota, on the thirteenth day of January A. D. 1881, at three o'clock in the afternoon, in book "D" of mortgages, on pages forty-two, forty-three and forty-four, that said mortgage conveyed the hereinafter described premises to secure the payment of three hundred ($300.00-100) dollars, in five years from its date, and the interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum, per annum, payable semi-annually. That default has been made in the payment of said principal sum, and of interest thereon. That there is hereby claimed to be due on said mortgage debt the sum of three hundred and thirty-six ($336.) dollars, that no action, or proceeding, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, that said mortgaged premises are situate in Polk County, Minnesota, and are described as follows, viz: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section thirty-four (34.) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152.) Range forty-six (46,) containing one hundred and sixty acres, more or less, according to United States Government survey.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by reason of said default in the conditions of said mortgage, and, by virtue of the power of sale therein contained, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of said described mortgaged premises, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the eighth day of May A. D. 1886, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and twenty-five dollars, attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption as provided by law.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Lars K. Hassell against Eugene C. Elwood for failure to comply with law as to Timber Culture Entry No. 180, dated Nov. 12, 1878, upon the southwest quarter Section 10, Township 152 n., Range 46 w., in Polk County, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; contestant alleging that the said Eugene C. Elwood has wholly failed and neglected to cultivate any part of the tract aforesaid for or during the year last past. That there are no trees planted thereon nor growing to exceed the number of 100 trees in all. That the whole tract is overgrown to weeds and grass and not fit for replanting of trees. But that if trees are to be planted the land must first be broken again. That the whole tract and any part thereof is now unfit for the planting of trees and the tract is wholly abandoned by said claimant the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 1st day of June 1886 at 10 o'clock a. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged failure.

Advertising Fine Live-stock.

Breeders of fine stock may properly be divided into two classes—those who aim to create a demand for their favorite breeds, with the expectation of helping to fill the demand, and those who fill the demand already created without going to the trouble of trying to increase its volume. The one does all he can to bring his herd and breed into prominence and keeps himself and his business constantly before the public by advertising in Live-Stock papers, and by various other means. The other drifts quietly along without making much noise, and, if he advertises at all it is when he is compelled to in order to dispose of his surplus stock. Those of this class, like many other business men, have fallen into the habit of advertising, if at all, during the selling season only, their harvest time, when their stock or goods are wanted immediately; yet these same men would enjoy a hearty laugh at the expense of the farmer who waited until it was time to reap the grain before plowing the ground or sowing the seed—the very thing they themselves do in effect.

If there is any special season when it is particularly advisable to advertise, and when advertising will give the best results, it is when the majority in any given line of business are doing the least advertising.

The breeder who would succeed in securing remunerative prices for his stock must accomplish two things:—First, he must establish a reputation for himself as being one who thoroughly understands his business, and is strictly reliable and trustworthy. Second, he must establish a reputation for his stock, as being equal, if not superior to stock of the same class bred by any one else. The more fully he accomplishes these two objects the more complete will be his success, and in no way can they be more speedily brought about than by advertising; and he who advertises most systematically, thoroughly and persistently, will secure the desired end most certainly and speedily. He should begin to cultivate the acquaintance of the class of people from whom he desires to secure as customers long before the time they will need his animals, in order that they may acquire confidence in him and learn the advantages he has to offer them; then when the buying season comes, he will not seem to them like one of the many strangers who are making their appearance on all sides soliciting their custom, but of whose stock they know not and of the merit of whose stock they have no proof. On the contrary his advertisement will stand out strongly among those of the hosts of new comers as being that of an old acquaintance upon whom they can depend.

The more continually and persistently he advertises, "in season and out of season," the more he assists in creating and sustaining a public interest in his particular breed and the greater his interest the larger will be his ultimate profit. Probably no farmer ever purchased an animal the first time he saw one of the breed or herd advertised, but all have waited until an interest in his particular breed has been established by reading and hearing about it. The breeders who have achieved the greatest success have been those who have ully realized these facts and acted up- hem; and those who would attain a ccess must follow the same gener- as nearly as circumstances will —National Stockman.

Farm, Field and Stockman.

It does not require any calculation to easily show that shelter is the cheapest and best method of insuring a large yield of those products composed almost entirely of carbon. All substances coming under the head of products may be increased or diminished in proportion to the supply from whence they are derived. The cow, in consuming her allowance of food, involuntarily directs it to those portions of the body where it is mostly required. A natural law provides for such an emergency in all creatures, and it cannot be violated. In the winter the first effort is to provide bodily heat. This heat cannot be fixed upon as being created to any certain limit, as it is constantly being given off, or lost. We may safely say it is radiated, and the more exposed to cold the surface of the body may be, the greater the loss. When we feed a cow we give her that which we suppose will be converted into milk and butter, and the effect produced by the food upon the yield depends upon the loss of heat from the body. Hence the greater the retention of heat in the body the larger the proportion directed to production. Now, heat and butter are almost one and the same, although many of our readers may not have had the matter presented in that light before; yet there is a difference. Butter is composed almost wholly of carbon. As soon as it is united with oxygen, when consumed, the product is heat. Heat from the body of the animal is the consumption of carbon before it can be transposed into butter. Every pound of carbon prevented from being converted into heat may be made into butter, and it is therefore apparent that a saving of heat is a gain of butter.

Shelter, once erected, is what may be termed permanent. That is, it is capable of service for several years, and is, therefore, a cheap source of supply when aggregated over a period of time. True, shelter does not really supply heat, but it will prevent its loss. This saving also depends upon the kind of shelter. An open shed is better than nothing but as the majority of farmers have stables, we will take them into consideration. A stable may have a roof, but a small leak will cause dampness, consequently an absorption and loss of heat. A small crack, one that can scarcely be seen, will often admit cold air enough to cause a rapid radiation of heat from the body. All the cold air that enters must be warmed, whether the quantity be great or small. This fact is so well known to scientific dairymen that many of them have resorted to the system of heating the stables, the effect being almost immediately perceptible in the yield. Butter comes from carbon, as does the yolk of an egg, and the flow of milk is increased or diminished according to the temperature, while it is well known that hens sometimes refuse to lay when the weather is very cold unless given warm quarters. We present these facts to dairymen, and assure them that the most profitable method of caring for their cows is to keep them warm.

In conclusion it will be evident to every reflecting person that in the spring shelter is also imperatively necessary. Therefore, do not turn out your cows to shift for themselves during cold storms.

Clean Milk.

Agriculture: The good dairyman is the one who has a care for small things. No single item in the whole range of dairy practice should be considered too small for his engrossing care. The point where this principle applies with greatest force is where this delicate white fluid first makes its appearance amid the filth and rubbish of the cow stable. Verily it is symbolical of the first appearance of purity on earth when the humble manger held the world's promise. No surroundings, however crude, should be allowed to contaminate the white purity of milk. This can only be acomplished with the most minute care. Various devices have been invented to compass this end. On the Island of Jersey a can is used shaped something like an urn, with a cloth over the norrow mouth. Into the sag of the cloth is placed a clean sea shell into which the stream of milk is directed to prevent wearing holes in the cloth. Then the milk is strained immediately and the least possible surface is exposed to catch dirt. There is in this country a Yankee invention consisting of a long spout to a pail, and on the end of it a mouth to receive the milk, while the milker sits on the top of the pail. The trouble with these devices is that they present so small a surface for receiving the stream that the milker often misses it wastes the milk. The best plan we have seen for clean milking is to first have the cow well bedded in perfectly dry material. Do not allow any water to come near the udder. Before beginning to milk take a long-haired, soft brush and clean the side of the cow and the udder thoroughly, then hold the pail between the knees and milk rapidly. The milk should of course be strained immediately upon removal from the cow, and when taken to the house it should be strained again. It goes without saying that scrupulous care should be taken to see that all the milking utensils are perfectly clean and that they have been well aired and sunned between milkings. These little things make up the balance sheet between profit and loss in the dairy.

Isaiah Gervais was in last week from whom we learn particulars of the death of his nephew, Henry I. Gervais which occurred at Red Lake Falls on the 6th inst., caused by over exertion. He was one of the pioneers of the valley, a young man of exemplary habits and was very ambitious, and had he lived would one day have ranked among the leading business men of the county. He was a grandson of Benjamin Gervais who was one of the first settlers in St. Paul. He was named after his uncle Isaiah, with whom for many years he had made his home. So passed away in the flower of his youth one of nature's noblemen, one who will long be mourned by relatives and friends that he had made wherever he had lived for any length of time.

A Japanese Euchre Party.

Not content with holding left-handed euchre parties and excluding everything masculine, the ladies have taken to holding Japanese euchre parties, rigging themselves up a-la Jap and affecting chop sticks and all that. The first of the kind was given by Mrs. Ed. Carey on Wednesday, April 14th. Well now we should remark! If there is anything that can beat a feminine euchre party of seven tables it is seven tables of chattering Japanese eucherists. We heard they had a grand good time—we can't vouch for it as we were unavoidably detained and could not get time to go. The favors were little Japanese ...and the prizes ditto—very pretty little businesses however.

Orange Party.

The ladies of Crookston will give an orange party on Tuesday, April 27th, at G. A. R. Hall, on Broadway. The entrance fee for each lady will be one orange handed to the committee who manipulate it with a string tape or ribbon, then it is dropped into a bag. After all the guests have arrived, some beautiful damsel is selected to take charge of the bag and sell a draw for ten cents, every third orange, or one in every three taking a prize; also there will be one grand prize for the lucky winner. Ice cream and cake will be furnished for all who wish to gratify their epicurian tastes. Tripping the light fantastic toe and cards will be the order of the evening. Admittance 50 cents.

This entertainment by the ladies is to raise funds for the purchase of two banners for the G. A. R. and Sons of Veterans. One and all are cordially invited.

Benson, Swift County, Minn.

It was our good fortune to be cast away at Benson, on Saturday last and as good luck would have it we fell into the hands of the Aldrich Bros., of the Aldrich House, who took us in and gave us as fine a bed to rest on as it was ever our good fortune to tumble into. We thought, as we piled in, if all of our brethren of the press had as soft a roosting place that it is no wonder the craft have the reputation of lie-ing so easily. In the morning we sat down to an elegant breakfast, served by a bright eyed damsel who was just as attentive to our wants as though she had been our best girl. The hotel was built of brick in 1879, is capable of accommodating 125 guests in its capacious sleeping rooms, and double that number when cots are used. Benson is a famous hunting resort and the hotel, in the shooting season, is crammed to its utmost capacity. Benson contains about 1,000 population, is the trading point for a large agricultural region, has six general business houses, two hardware stores, three blacksmith shops, a photograph gallery, two banks, a large lumber yard run by A. W. Johnson, who is also an extensive cattle dealer, shipping last year over 800 head of neat cattle; a large flouring mill capable of turning out 500 barrels daily, five churches and a large school building, a creamery that turns out 400 pounds of choice butter per day, run by the Sandwich Bro's, three large elevators, and last, but not least, an enterprising newspaper, the Times, conducted by Bro. W. A. Folland. The country round about is settled by much the same class of people as here, and like our people they started in on the fallacy of all wheat. They soon saw their error, and the result is a prosperous class of people, having good stock, good horses, good barns, good fences, and all in independent circumstances. There are many large stock farms here, one of the most important being a farm of 2,200 acres belonging to the Northwestern Breeders and Importers Association, managed by Maj. A. G. Wilcox, of Minneapolis, and Col. Ligget, who is the resident manager. They breed horses, sheep, hogs, Holstein and Short-horn cattle, and the representatives of this stock they can show are a credit to any country. They have, besides other buildings, a barn capable of holding 300 tons of hay and of accommodating 150 head of cattle. They do an immense business, shipping stock to all parts of the United States. Our time and space forbids a more particular mention of everything they have, but we will add that if any of our patrons need stock of any kind that this company is one of the best in the United States to deal with, and their word is as good as the gold. We talked with a number of farmers about Benson, and we did not see one who was not enthusiastic on the question of stock raising. They were all loud in their praises of the Holstein and their grades, and many have been well acquainted with them for several years. They are mostly patrons of the creamery and would not have it taken away from them for a great deal of money, neither would they go back to the all-wheat system. By their experience we can see that stock raising pays best by a long ways.

The following resolutions were adopted by Col. Cobham Post No. 90 G. A. R., Crookston, March 19th, 1886:

Whereas the fell destroyer has invaded our ranks and taken from us and stricken down the gallant and brave Gen. W. S. Hancock.

1st. That in his death we have lost one of our bravest comrades, and our country one of its noblest defenders.

2d. That deeply deploring our loss by his death we turn with mournful pride to his unsullied record of patriotic heroism.

3d. That we will ever hold in memory the noble manhood that marked his life in war and peace an inspiration to every loyal heart.

4th. That in respect to his memory this Post (be draped in mourning 30 days) and these resolutions spread upon the Post record, and published in the newspapers of Crookston.

[First publication April 22d, 1886.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Samuel Sabourin and Celina Sabourin, mortgagors, to Martha J. Remmey, mortgagee, dated the 28th day of June A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 28th day of June A. D. 1882, at 4:20 o'clock p. m., in book "F" of mortgages, on pages 514 and 515, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the sum of six hundred and twenty-five and 85-100 ($625 85) dollars, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and under the power of sale in said mortgage contained, the said mortgagee elects to declare and claims that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid is due and payable.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county, or by his deputy duly appointed on Tuesday the 22d day of June A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, the sums paid by said mortgagee for taxes and interests, thereon, and fifty ($50) dollars attorney's fees, stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section twenty-seven (27,) Township one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range forty-three (43) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres according to the Government survey thereof.

Mortgage S...

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MAD... the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Wenzel E. Newes, and Augusta M. Newes, his wife, mortgagors, to the Workingmens' Building and Loan Association of Crookston, a corporation duly organized and acting under the laws of the State of Minnesota, mortgagee, which mortgage bears date the 9th day of November A. D. 1883, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 8th day of January A. D. 1884, at 11:20 o'clock a. m., in book "P" of mortgage deeds on pages 192, 193 and 194, and whereas said mortgage was executed to secure the payment of the sum of one thousand dollars with interest, from date on the sum of four hundred and fifty dollars, at the rate of ten per cent per annum, and also to secure the sum of five dollars per month as and for the monthly contribution on five shares of the capital stock of said Association then owned by the said Wenzel E. Newes, said interest and said dues being payable on the first Saturday of each and every month after the date of said mortgage according to the conditions of a certain bond for the sum of two thousand dollars executed and delivered by the said Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, and bearing even date with said mortgage.

And whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain other and second mortgage executed and delivered by the aforesaid Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes, his wife, to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association, of Crookston, which mortgage bears date the 17th day of November A. D. 1884, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota on the 17th day of November A. D. 1884, at 3:15 o'clock p. m. in book "S" of mortgage deeds, on pages 468, 469 and 470, and whereas said second mortgage was executed to secure the payment of the sum of one thousand dollars with interest from date on the sum of three hundred and fifty dollars at the rate of ten per cent per annum and also to secure the sum of five dollars per month as and for the monthly contribution on five shares of the capital stock of said Association then owned by the said Wenzel E. Newes, said interest and said dues being payable on the first Saturday of each and every month after the date of said second mortgage according to the conditions of a certain bond for the sum of two thousand dollars executed and delivered by the said Wenzel E. Newes and Augusta M. Newes, to the said Workingmens' Building and Loan Association of Crookston and bearing even date of November 18th A. D. 1884, and said second mortgage being upon the same real estate as the mortgage first above mentioned.

And whereas it is provided in each of said mortgages herein described, that in case any default should be made in the payment of the said principal sums when due or interest, or any part thereof for the space of six months after the same shall have become due, or in case said shares should be sold for the non-payment of dues, then and in such case the whole principal debt should immediately thereupon become due, and whereas default has been made in the payment of said interest and of said monthly dues secured by both of said mortgages for more than six months whereby according to the terms of said mortgages the whole principal debt has become due, and said ten shares of stock have been duly forfeited and sold for non payment of dues, and whereas no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise for the recovery of said debt or any part thereof.

And whereas, there is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice, the sum of nine hundred forty-eight and 15-100 dollars on said first mortgage and the sum of eleven hundred twenty-three and 35-100 dollars on said second mortgage, making in the aggregate the sum of two thousand, seventy-one and 50-100 dollars now due.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that under and by virtue of the powers of sale in said mortgages contained, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the real estate and premises mentioned in each of said mortgages which are situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and described as follows to-wit: Lot number thirteen (13,) in block number two (2,) of L. Fletcher's Addition to Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Polk County, State of Minnesota, will be sold by the Sheriff of said County of Polk, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, on Saturday the first day of May A. D. 1886, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on the debt secured by both of said mortgages, together with the sum of fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated March 8th A. D. 1886.
